NOT LONG AGO.

Not long ago
A darker cloud our Country's sky o'ercast
Than whirling stormrifts in November's blast:
When winter, stealing through sad autumn's gate,
Found deeper cold on hearths made desolate
Than all his snow.

It is not long
Since timid Spring, on her first southern breath,
Brought news of terror and a scent of death;
Since Summer met no answer to her smiles,
And the drum's clangor in her leafy aisles
Hushed the birds' song.

Have we forgot
The ranks that answered freedom's warning bell,
Braved the death tempest and the prison hell;
With sturdy hearts hurled back the impending doom,
But when the trump of Victory called them home,
Responded not?

Not all forget!
The struggling widow keeps with tears the day
That turned her staff to dust, her hope to clay;
The shadow on the mother's brow that fell
When her brave darling kissed his last farewell
Is brooding yet.

Some yet can tell
Of hours of anguish, worse than sudden doom,
That left them helpless in a helpless home,
Crippled or broken from the cruel strife,
Fettered forever in the race of life
By painful spell.

Oh! hearts at ease!
Your ease was bought at price of others' pain;
Another's loss your ransom and your gain;
Your homes secure with flowers of joy are strown,
But other homes grow dark to bless your own;
Remember these!

With open hand
Pay back the debt where not, alas! too late;
Bid comfort seek the hearths left desolate;
Save those who stood you from misfortune's blast,
And prove our Country, mindful of the past,
A grateful land!

S.

THE CATHOLIC VIEW OF THE SCHOOL QUESTION.—We presume that this was well given last Sunday by Rev. Thomas S. Preston, a leading Catholic clergyman of New York. In his sermon, which was devoted to the subject, he said that the mere reading of the Bible in the common schools wasnot particularly important with Catholics. What they wanted was, that religious teaching should accompany every step in the instruction of their youth. "That," said he, "we have no right to ask in the public schools, and so we ask for schools of our own, where our children shall be educated in such a way that while their temporal knowledge is not neglected their spiritual knowledge is continually increased." In other words, as he puts it:

"Much as we are bound by the years we of our conscience to establish without education, we demand that the money levy our proportion, in reasonable number of children instructed good schools to be raised, and the State this Legislature recognize this, and that has no right to—no private or public, or denominational, so that it be gratuious, call upon from the State its proportion of the and raised for general education, and no more."

The school Son was very courteous in its phraseology, but we think no one will have any difficulty in understanding the threatening nature and scope of the demand it embodies.

ACTIVE STOCK.—Where can we find a herd of cattle possessing the combined qualities required by the farmers of our hills, more fully than the natives, who bred a series of years with the same care as are the fancy breeds? We want working beef and dairy stock combined. Almost any breed will work, but some require a third more keeping than others do.

The Durhams are large for beef, but they also take all the richest pastures, the best of hay, and the shaking of the meal bag. Who ever heard of a big butter cow among the Durhams, according to cost. The Ayrshires are too small for beef, but are rather easily kept. The new fancy breeds, Alderneys and Jerseys—probably give the rich best milk, but I have information from those who have them that they are not very small milkers, which spoils them for cheese dairies; besides they are small and ill-looking animals. Now where shall we find the flowing pail of milk for cheese, or two pounds of butter to each pail day, combined with a handsome form, and from six to twelve hundred pounds of beef, in such perfection as in well-bred native stock, taking into consideration the cost of breed, keeping, &c.

Mr. John Alce of Newcastle has consented, at the very earnest and general request, to repeat his admirable lecture on the Farm, which gave so much satisfaction last week. We predict for him a crowded house next Tuesday evening.

We understand that in addition to the lectures already announced the Association will be entertained with lectures by Frank H. Hackett Esq. of Boston, Rev. George M. Adams and Rev. H. Kogy.

BEST CABINET ORGANS,
AT LOWEST PRICES.
That the MASON & HAMLIN CABINET and METROPOLITAN ORGANS are the best in the world is proved by the almost unanimous opinion of professional musicians, by the award to them of SEVENTY-FIVE GOLD and SILVER MEDALS or other highest premiums, at principal industrial competitions within a few years, including the MEDAL at the PARIS EXPOSITION and by a sale very much greater than that of any similar instrument. This Company manufacture only FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENTS, and will not make "cheap organs" at any price, or sell an inferior instrument to bear their name. Having greatly increased their facilities for manufacture by the introduction of new machinery and otherwise, they are now making BETTER ORGANS than EVER BEFORE, at increased economy in cost, which, in accordance with their fixed policy of selling always at least remunerative profit, they are now offering at prices inferior work. FOUR OCTAVE ORGANS, Plain, Walnut Case, $50. FIVE OCTAVE ORGANS Double Reed, Solid Walnut Case, carved and panneled, with FIVE STOPS (VIOLA, DIAPASON, MELODIA, FLUTE, TREMULANT), $125. Other styles in proportion.
Circulars with full particulars, including accurate drawings of the different styles of organs, and much information which will be of service to every purchaser of an organ, will be sent free and postage paid, to any one desiring them.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.—Eastern Star Division No. 5, of this order, on Wednesday evening elected the following officers for the ensuing quarter: John Dame, W. P.; Joseph T. Taylor, W. A.; Albert Junkins, R. S.; Frank William, Asst. R. S.; Charles E. Shaw, F. S.; Robert Bates, Trea.; Edwin L. F. Holbrook, C.; Henry H. Corbett, A. C.; Chas. H. Twombly, I. S.; Daniel A. Cox, O. S.; Joseph R. Curtis, Chaplain; B. F. Thorndike, P. W. P.; Mrs. B. F. Thorndike, L. C.; Miss Nellie Thorndike, 1st Asst.; Miss Ada Rice, 2d Asst.; Miss Alice Tucker, 3d Asst.

Thursday evening the Division celebrated their Anniversary by a merry social gathering of the members and their invited friends at G. A. R. Hall. Bro. B. F. Thorndike made the opening address at 7 1-2 oclock, and other speeches, with dialogues, recitations, music and songs, enlivened the proceedings until about 10 o'clock, when a bountiful repast was spread and full justice done to the same. After the refreshments were satisfactorily disposed of, various social amusements, with more music and singing, employed the party until midnight, when they separated, all apparently well pleased with the evening's amusement. Many of the recitations were very superior; and the singing of a quartet (Miss Hatch, Mrs. Meloon, and Messrs. Newell and Tilton,) was a pleasing feature of the entertainment.

This Society aims to advance the temperance cause by encouraging in the young a taste for pleasant social intercourse in preference to a love for the drinking-saloon,—and by furnishing the young with the means of enjoying congenial company without seeking it in the bar-room. Their affairs are in a favorable state, and the list of members is constantly and rapidly enlarging.

That it is not an absolute necessity to get drunk in order to enjoy life rationally was abundantly proved by this anniversary celebration of a temperance society, for a pleasanter or more social party has not met in Portsmouth for many a day than that which gathered on this occasion. Rum is very good to get up fights, no doubt,—and to make ragged clothes, empty pockets and aching heads; but five hundred drunken men and women, though they might make more noise, would not have half the real pleasure in a whole night's carouse, that was found by the Eastern Stars and their guests on Thursday evennig. ☞ Our readers in search of a superior Portable Steam Engine, are referred to the card of J. C. Hoadley & Co., in this paper. A very large number of these engines are in use, giving great satisfaction, and the demand for new ones is so great that Messrs. H. & Co. are constantly driven to fill their orders.

The Chronicle wishes every reader a Happy New Year!

THE PROPOSED NAVY YARD CONSOLIDATION.—The Secretary of the Navy will soon make a report in answer to an inquiry of Congress concerning the necessity of maintaining two navy yards so near each other as the yards at Portsmouth and Charlestown; whether the yard at Portsmouth can be so enlarged as to meet the demands of the service in this part of the country; and the probable cost of such an enlargement, and how much could be realized toward meeting such an expense, by selling the land and permanent fixtures of the Navy Yard at Charlestown.—Traveller.

Communication.

Eds. Chronicle: Your correspondent "Mentor" was clearly proved a tormentor to your copperhead contemporary. Its response is so tame as to demonstrate the truth of the adage,

"Tender-handed touch the nettle,
It will sting you for your pains:
Grasp it like a man of mettle,
And it soft as silk remains."

Let Republicans heed the suggestion of "Mentor" in regard to the abatement of the "nuisance," and let

"The mower mow on though the serpent may writhe,
And the copperhead hiss at the point of his scythe."

GOSPORT, Dec. 28.

It will no doubt interest some of your many readers, to hear that Santa Claus seemed to find no difficulty in getting out to the Shoals, (if he was not already there) on Christmas; and more highly favored than some of us are, he took his wife with him; and the old woman was a great addition to the amusement of the evening. Her costume was hardly less grotesque than that of Santa Claus himself, though he seemed to have the longer hoary locks; but she was far the most talkative and intent on stripping the well-filled Trees for the party,—for all were remembered, especially the Teacher and Missionary; and most the dwellers on Star Island were out. Much singing with music and some speaking, were enjoyed.

On Sabbath morning a funeral sermon was preached by Rev. D. W. Barber, in reference to the death of Colin Chisholm, his comrade Lars Nelson being present. A Christmas discourse and singing comprised the evening service. B.

Mr. Lars Nelson, the young Norwegian who accompanied the ill-fated Chisholm in that fearful storm a few weeks ago has returned to his boarding place on Haley's Island. Both hands show marks of the bitter frost that clutched his fellow in the arms of death. Both were well clothed and Chisholm had warm mittens, while Nelson had none, and they had nothing to eat, but the living spirit the Sabbath and drank water, the other, (tho' of many fine qualities,) was injured by strong drink. He started with a lot that he could out sail Newton's boat, and when they had put up their new sail off White Island, they beat close up to the shore, but Chisholm refused to bond the fear of losing his boat, saying it would clear off and asking Nelson "if he was afraid." As they drifted away, he spoke of leaving his dear mother, sister, other friends, but continued bailing water to the last, when just before light on the second morning as he ceased to work, Nelson found him cold in death. The young Norwegian had to bail water for dear life till taken off the third day. When Nelson was taken off it was impossible to get the body of Chisholm, and Nelson was drawn to the vessel by a line thrown around his neck.

NEW INVENTIONS. — In the older countries of Europe, where labor is cheap, the inventive faculties are not stimulated to the extent so common in the United States. Wherever civilization extends, American ingenuity is recognized as leading that of all other nations in the number and value of its labor-saving appliances.

The three great triumphs of the Electric Telegraph, the Lightning Press, and the Sewing Machine, are but shining stars in the constellation of useful inventions that encircles our republic.

With a weekly list of applications for new patents that is numbered by hundreds, it is a matter of importance to the ingenious inventor that he should place his business in the hands of a solicitor who is not only well versed in the present details of the Patent Office, but he should seek one who is au fait concerning the multifarious letters patent heretofore granted, and whose success in difficult cases in the past is a guarantee of a favorable result when doubtful points are at issue.

The card of R. H. Eddy, Esq., Boston, in our columns to-day, is that of one of the most successful solicitors of American and Foreign patents, and his long experience in this line, aside from his connection with the Patent Office, renders him amply competent to furnish all needed information, while his character for business integrity is too well established to need comment from us.

On Wednesday we saw several pansies which had been relieved from their covering of snow by the warm rains early in the week. The colors were as brilliant as in early spring. They were from the garden of H. H. Ladd, Esq.

BRIGHTON CATTLE MARKET.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, DEC. 28.

[Reported for the Boston Journal.]

At market for the current week—Cattle 1096; Sheep and Lambs 5694; Swine 1700; number of Western Cattle 443; Eastern Cattle 403; Northern Cattle and Working Oxen 300. Cattle left over 50.

Prices Beef Cattle—Extra $13 00 @ $13 50; first quality $12 25 @ $12 75; second quality $11 50 @ $12 00; third quality $10 00 @$11 25; poorest grade of coarse Oxen, Bulls, &c., $8 00 @ $9 50 ℔ cwt, (the total weight of hides, tallow and dressed beef.)

Brighton Hides 9 @ 9½c ℔ lb; Country Hides 8 @ 9c ℔ lb.

Brighton Tallow 8 @ 8½c per lb; Country Tallow 6½ @ 7c ℔ lb.

Lamb Skins 75 @ $1 25 each; Sheep Skins 75 @ $1 25 each; Calf Skins 20c ℔ lb.

The supply of Cattle in market for the week was light and there were but few extra Cattle coming them. Prices remain unchanged, and the trade for Beef Cattle has been dull. There were but few Cattle sold as high as 13½ ℔ lb. From Maine there was a good supply, and quite a lot of good Beef Cattle among them. Several lots of the Eastern Cattle were bought by parties to take back to the river farms to feed.

Store Cattle—Yearlings $15 @ $28; two year olds $38 @ $45; three year olds 45 @ $65 ℔ head. Many of the small Cattle that are in a fair condition are sold for Beef.

Milch Cows—Most of the Cows in market are of a common grade. There are but few of the fancy breeds offered in market. Prices range from $50 @ $110 ℔ head. Many of the Store Cows are bought for Beef.

Working Oxen—There was a good supply in market. We quote sales at $165, $187, $150, $105, $240,$205, $200, $210 ℔ pair.

Sheep and Lambs—The supply was light, but enough for the demand. Those from the West and East were owned by butchers or taken on drift. We quote extra lots at $3 50 @ 7 50 ℔ head, or from 3 @ 8c ℔ lb; ordinary lots $1 50 @ 3 50 ℔ head. Lambs $4 @ $7 ℔ head. There has not been a very active demand for Sheep this week.

Swine—Store Pigs, wholesale 11 @ 12c ℔ lb; retail 11 @ 15c ℔ lb. Fat Hogs—1300 at market; prices 10 @ 10½ ℔ lb.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in France, England, Prussia and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents; also, giving legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such a remarkable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be assured of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

NAVAL RANK. — The Washington Republican has an article on the question from which we take the following:—

But the most damaging circumstance connected with the rank regulation of 1869, which the line writer declares to have been extorted from Secretary Welles, during the absence of the line officers on distant fields, is that the regulation in question, under which the staff served in the war, and which has been unjustly revoked by Mr. Borie and Admiral Porter, was prepared and commended to the Secretary "as an act of justice" by the gallant Rear Admiral Foote, then chief of the bureau of equipments in the Navy Department, who stood next to Farragut on the Naval Roster, and who doubtless would still stand next to him in honor and in place had his valuable life been spared to his country.

In assigning their proper place to these "secondary," and, in his opinion, unimportant "non-combatants," the writer affects to ignore the fact, that in the late war as large a number of staff officers as of line officers were killed in battle, drowned, blown up and scalded, or died of diseases contracted by exposure in the line of duty.

CONSUMPTION.

The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this mellow remedy on the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.

"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion.

"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ an healthy tone, and cure Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.

Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. d3dlm.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a work that must be locked up and not left about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does common sense tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. While removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.

Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principle, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are effected, even in the condition of the feeble, nervous and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative compound has been discovered by chemists of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

is the most important medicinal novelty that modern chemistry has produced. It contains two botanical extracts, perfectly harmless in themselves, but embodying all the remedial properties of mercury, and destined in this pleasant form to supersede and banish from general use, the nauseous pills and portions of which that dangerous excitant is the main ingredient. More than

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative compounds has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the female constitution is peculiarly subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or drastic pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

MERIT SOON NOISED ABROAD.

It is but six years since ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, was first offered for sale. Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near; now it is sold in nearly every Drug Store in the United States—NORTH, EAST, SOUTH and WEST. No similar medicine stands higher with the people. It is well known on the Pacific coast, and liberal demands for it from San Francisco, Sacramento in California, and Portland, Oregon; even from Australia, large orders are received for it. And throughout Canada, it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.

Read what Captain Foster writes:

PORT BURWELL, March 23d, 1869.

Messrs. PERRY DAVIS & SON,

Sirs:—I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM; having been troubled with a cough for several years past, the Balsam was recommended to me. I immediately procured it, and found it to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with the most satisfactory results.

☞ Jeremiah esteemed good Figs as very good indeed, and also do we—and many a good dinner have we made from a half-dozen fat ones. Had Jere. lived in these days, he could always find the best quality of Figs, &c., at Lafayette Laighton's nice Grocery, Market Street.

DIED, in San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 22d, Mr. HORACE MORRISON, aged 43 years, youngest son of Mr. Jona. Morrison of this city. He went to California in 1849, and has never returned since. He leaves a widow. Hhe was buried in San Francisco, by the side of his brother Augustus, who died in that city ten years ago.

NEW EXPRESS AGENCY.—We learn that Mr. Wilber I. Trafton of this city is to establish a new express line immediately between Portsmouth and Boston. The Boston office will be at Nos. 8 and 10 Court Square, and the Portsmouth office at No. 45 Congress Street. Mr. Trafton is well known as an energetic young man.

☞ One thing a little unpleasant or mournful about the printing business, is the manner in which it makes time fly—seeming to hurry it off, saying all the while, fly swifter round, ye wheels, &c. In editors' parlance, (writing for next day's paper,) to-day is always yesterday, and to-morrow is to-day. So with the years—w have for weeks been receipting so many subscriptions to 1871, that it seems as if 1870 were gone, instead of just beginning.

CITY POLICE.—City Marshal Johnson reports for the last quarter 433 arrests, as follows: For assaults 13, brawl and tumult 5; bawdy house 1, breaking glass 6, drunk 176, disorderly conduct 4, Deserters from U. S. 12, do, from H. of Correction 4, do. from parents, 6, fornication 2, insane 1, lodgings 164, larceny 18, maiming 1, malicious mischief 1, obstructing sidewalks 4, profane language 1, selling intoxicating liquors 1, suspicious persons 3, transient persons assisted out of town 8.

☞ Mr. E. A. Stevens, stove dealer, of this city, has never allowed a number of the Chronicle or Gazette to be ...ted, during the seventeen and a half ... have published the paper, ...at his advertisements inserted ... In this way he has been a ...supporter of the Chronicle—and, ... is the only kind of support it ever ... had—no man having ever been called upon to directly contribute a cent for the purpose, as is usual with party organs everywhere. In every regard, Mr. Stevens will be missed.

☞ Mr. Eben. W. F. Brackett, Mr. H. Pryor, and another young man, have purchased three lots on the new Union Street, at the West End, and we understand will each erect thereon a house for his own residence, next season. Probably in less than five years from the commencement, all the available land opened by the new streets in that vicinity, will be occupied by residences, tax-paying property. The lots which will be opened by the continuation of Summer Street, and which might have been made available by the completion, also, of Cabot Street south of Middle, would likewise be speedily taken up, were they in the market.

IN BOARD OF ALDERMEN, Thursday Evening, Dr. Dearborn's bill for small pox case of Aug. Meloon, $105; paid. ... for Mr. Plummer, $125, and Miss ...azeen, $50, were laid on the table ... one week; as was also R. Shillaber's bill of $50 for cleaning said houses. This carries the matter over to the new Board probably.

Reports of City Marshal (quarterly,) and Chief Engineer (yearly,) were accepted. There were but 12 alarms of fire during the year. The Marshal reports 433 arrests during the quarter; and $267.64 as net amount of fines and costs received.

A great number of bills were paid, and a good deal of fun was had, it being the last regular meeting. A special closing meeting of both Boards will be held on Saturday evening.

After the Board adjourned, Mr. W. P. Jones appeared, and desired some action respecting a disputed tax of $200 on $300 on shipping in 1867—either to insist on the payment, or release his firm from the claim. Action deferred to next meeting.

For the Chronicle.

☞ Mercantile Hall was filled Tuesday evening, in spite of the darkness and unfavorable state of the weather, by an intelligent and appreciative audience, who listened with interest to the reading of one of Goldsmith's plays, by J. P. Bartlett, Esq. The farce was rendered in a graceful and easy manner, bringing out the several characters with great truthfulness, and clearly unfolding the plot, which was followed in all its intricacies by his hearers, who frequently burst forth into laughter, and no less often into applause. The entertainment was very much enjoyed by all present, and Mr. Bartlett is entitled to the thanks of the Association for this effort in their behalf.

The lectures before the "Mercantile" thus far have been first-class, and well attended, — thus demonstrating that there is no need of sending abroad for Lyceum lecturers, when there is so much home talent available. Let the M. L. A. give a full public course next winter, and there is no doubt but they can sell tickets enough to fill the Temple and pay all the expenses. O.

We cannot refrain from alluding to the extreme quietness of the audience on this occasion. Except when a particularly fine point called out merited applause, a perfect stillness prevailed, and no word was lost to any hearer. This close attention must have been gratifying to the reader, and added much to the satisfaction of those occupying the extreme parts of the hall.

☞ Lt. Col. Geo. Frank Towle, 19th U. S. I., of this city, who is stationed at Little Rock, Arkansas, is now on a visit here at home—after an absence of four years. Frank's war record is a good one.

NAVAL. — Admiral Thomas Craven has been transferred to the retired list.

☞ Divine services at the Navy Yard Chapel, every Sunday morning at half-past 10. The church boat leaves Portsmouth landing at 10:15; returns at 11:45. The public are respectfully invited.

☞ A pleasant little spot for a summer residence, just over the Portsmouth Bridge, in Kittery, is shortly to be sold,— the former residence of the late Samuel Remick.

☞ The New Hampshire Gazette for this week, is now ready for delivery at the Chronicle office. Price 5 cts. per copy—$2. per year. Contains all the Local and other reading from the Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, Dec. 29, 1869.

NOTICE.—About the year 1845 the wife of an officer in the U. S. Navy by the name of BURNS or BARNES, residing at Portsmouth, N. H., came to Boston, Mass., and adopted as her child a young girl by the name of GEORGIANA HALL, then about 4 years of age. Soon after, they went South, supposed to Norfolk, Va., since then nothing has been known of them. Any information concerning this young lady will be thankfully received by the subscriber, who is in possession of information which will be of great value to her.

PROCLAMATION.

AS ANOTHER CHRISTMAS is drawing near I am preparing to make my annual visit among the various nations of the earth. I would proclaim and make known to the good citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity that my friend has a larger assortment than usual and that is saying a good deal) of articles for Christmas and New Year's Presents.
J. F. SHORES JR.,
I peeped in the other evening when five pair of busy hands were at work, and I tell you, it seemed like a visit to fairy land.
Therefore I would give a word of advice to one and all. Before you make your purchases for the HOLIDAYS,
Be sure and drop in at

MALT EXTRACT—

Is a beverage particularly adapted to persons of weak and debilitated constitutions and those suffering from dyspepsia, loss of appetite, general debility, etc. It takes the place of and is SUPERIOR to ale, porter, and spirituous liquors in all cases where nourishing beverages and tonics are needed. Eminent physicians of New York, say: "We have used HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT in practice, and the result have been such as to fully justify the claims made for it; we feel certain that it is destined to supply a want long felt."

COUGHS, INFLUENZA,

SORE THROAT, COLDS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, LIVER COMPLAINT, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, BLEEDING OF LUNGS, and every affection of the THROAT, LUNGS and CHEST, are speedily and permanently cured by the use of WISTAR'S BALSAM
Of Wild Cherry.
This well known preparation does not dry up a cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most medicines, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED
by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Morning Chronicle.

New Hampshire Items.

Geo. Washington, colored, 25 years of age, a member of Company E., United States heavy artillery, shot a rebel in Kentucky after the close of the war, was sentenced to be hanged and had his sentence commuted to state prison in New Hampshire for ten years. He was on Friday morning set at liberty, at Concord, on the order of Gen. Sherman, having served three years. His transportation back was provided him, which he declined, saying he could get a living in New Hampshire.—Keene Sen.

At the republican Senatorial convention, at Manchester, Mr. George Holbrook was nominated; and at the Councillor convention, held at the same time, Mr. Daniel Barnard of Franklin was nominated.

John E. Goodwin & Co of Dover have increased the facilities of their Shoe manufactory by the addition of an eight horse power engine, with boiler of 15 horse power, in place of the small engine formerly used by them.

The Norway Plains Manufacturing Company of Rochester have cut down wages 12 per cent. This new order of things commences with the new year. The Courier is informed, that a number of hands will leave, but that there will not probably be a strike.

Springvale is already feeling the good effects of the Portland & Rochester Railroad. It is increasing in business and this winter is the best one for the laborers of that place that they have had siace 1860.

An attempt was made to enter the dwelling house of Ezekil Dore, in Dover, about 2 o'clock on the morning of the 28th inst. Had it not been for a worrying infant that kept its mother awake, the burglar would probably have entered. He had succeeded in pushing in the key of the front door, which remained in the lock inside, and opened it by a false key, when Mrs. Dore, hearing the noise at the front door, struck a light, and on going to the door found it open, but the intruder had decamped.

The Dover Enquirer with satisfaction announces the complete resumption of work in all the Cocheco Mills, and while they regret the reduction of the wages, state as a necessity for it, that the balance sheet of the Mills, aside from the Printery, shows a profit for the last six months of just $2000—a possible profit of 1-4 of one per cent, on the capital invested, — scarcely equal to two days' pay for the operatives in the mills. A continuance for another six months at former wages could hardly have been without absolute loss. This stock has depreciated in common with all other manufactory shares, but it is absurd to imagine the strike had any effect in this direction.

The Portland Press says that their New Hampshire friends are very much in earnest in railroad matters, and the City of Concord, which has been built up by its railroad enterprise, is now doing more than any city of its size in New England. The indications seem to be that the city of Portland (via Rochester and Concord) will reach Rutland and the West sooner than by any other contemplated route.

Mr. James F. Chase lost a horse valued at $300 in Dover, caused by a fall on the ice.

AT THE FARMERS' CONVENTION in Manchester the prizes for Indian Corn, offered by Hon. John D. Lyman, were awarded as follows: Corn, ten rows or over, first, D. F. Hayes of Exeter; second, Wm. Connor of Exeter; eight rowed corn, first, S. B. Gove of Raymond, second, Mr. Hayes of Exeter. There were twenty entries. The owners of the corn were unknown to the judges until after the awards were made up.

The principal premiums offered by the State Society for Grains and Potatoes were awarded as follows: Buckwheat, first, Adam Dickey of Manchester: Wheat, first, Thomas Cogswell of Gilmanton; second, M. Clark of Auburn; Oats, first, Ward Parker of Merrimack; second, V. C. Gilman of Nashua; Barley, first, Peter Kimball of Fisherville; second, City Farm of Manchester; Beans, first, Joseph Cate of Manchester; second, J. P. Jameson of Dunbarton; Garden Seeds, first, J. P. Prescott of Manchester. Largest and best assortment of Potatoes, first, G. F. Reede of Fremont; second, F. W. Holbrook of Amherst; best Potato for the table and for general culture, "the Excelsior," shown by Mr. Holbrook of Amherst.

The committee recommended a medal to Moses Hussey of North Berwick, Me., who had a very fine show of potatoes, but who, living out of the State, could not compete. The entire display of grains and vegetables was very attractive and creditable.

New Hampshire Items.

During the absence of the family of W. T. Perkins in New York, some sneaks entered his house by gaining access to the shed connected with the house, and then cutting through a panel of the door and throwing back the bolt. They stole a feather bed, mirrors, clothing, &c. They also meanly damaged the house in various ways, and left two impudent notes behind them. The valuables that such rascals usually seek as plunder, were fortunately safely secured elsewhere.

The Dover Cornet Band honored Charles H. Trickey with a serenade at the American House. Mr. Trickey and his bride recently returned from their wedding tour, and many friends present were invited to a sumptuous repast, "and at a seasonable time the large party left the happy pair to enjoy in quiet the pleasant hours of domestic bliss," says the Enquirer.

Four or five tons of Canada Poultry were sold in Concord.

A new soapstone quarry, that promises well, has been discovered in South Weare. Specimens will soon be sent to market.

Lizzie M., a little daughter of M. J. Deming, of Cornish, lately got a beechnut into her windpipe. It got upon her lungs, and caused her death on the 16th inst. She was two years old.

A little girl who disappeared in a mysterious manner from Manchester, about a year ago, recently reported herself at the Marshal's office in Manchester, and told her story, which was in substance this:—That she was ill-treated by her parents, suffered for want of food and clothing, saw no prospect of respectability or even improvement, and resolved to try her fortune among strangers. There were a few persons of character whom she knew. From these she obtained advice and assistance, and soon found a place in a respectable family, where she has lived. No one knows her place of residence, but she has returned to her adopted home.

WHO WILL CARE?

When we lay beneath the daisies,
Underneath the churchyard mold,
And the long grass o'er our faces
Lays its fingers damp and cold;
When we sleep from care and sorrow,
And the ills of earthly life—
Sleep, to know no sad to-morrow,
With its bitterness of strife—
Who will care!

Who will think of white hands lying
On a still and silent breast,
Never more to know of sighing,
Evermore to know of rest?
Who will care? No one can tell us,
But if rest and peace befall,
Will it matter if they miss us,
Or they miss us not at all?
Not at all.

THE ACCIDENT IN GREEN, RHODE ISLAND.—A correspondent of the Providence Herald gives the following account of the accident at Green, on Friday evening last, which was very near being an appalling disaster:—

Some three hundred men, women and children had collected on Christmas eve, at a festival in a building destined for a store and hall, recently erected, but not yet completed, at Green Station, Coventry. The number present had been about equally divided between the upper and lower halls up to about ten o'clock. Nothing had occurred to awaken apprehension in the minds of any one, and it was announced that Santa Claus had arrived and was about to decorate the Christmas tree in the upper hall. Immediately nearly all present repaired to the upper floor and crowded around the Christmas tree.

Mr. McGregor, dressed as Santa Claus, had no sooner arrived at the tree, when with scarcely an instant's warning, crash went the frail joists beneath the floor and down it went with all upon it, parting in the centre, to the floor beneath, which instantly gave way with another crash, mingled with the noise of crockery and glass, and the loud screams of the women and children promiscuously jumbled into the cellar beneath in a small space, shaped by the broken floor that remained hanging at the sides and ends, like a hopper to a grist mill, twenty feet deep.

No avenue of escape was open, and some time must elapse before a breach could be made in the cellar-wall large enough for all to escape from their perilous position. What if a fire should occur? Where were the two stoves filled with burning coal? Where were the kerosene lamps, five in number, that had gone down with the falling mass? Ever so little fire coming in contact with the dry shavings, a foot thick, in the cellar, and communicating with the kerosene spilled from the burning lamps, would in five minutes, in all probability, destroy every life within the ruins.

Any of the lights that still remained attached around the inside of the hall, and partially detached by the shock of the falling timbers, might at any instant drop and start the fatal flame that would convert this, but a moment before the scene of festivity, into a holocaust. Fortunately the part of the floor occupied by the stoves did not give way, and the lamps that went down were extinguished by the fall. Through these happy circumstances alone, over two hundred men, women and children were spared a terrible death, and the community a horrible calamity. In the meantime the groans of the wounded and the loud screams of the women and children piled one upon the other in the cellar, were heartrending and continuous.

As soon as tools were obtained, a breach was made in the cellar wall, and a portion of the fallen floor removed through which those who were able made their escape. A scene for a few moments of the wildest character ensued, as the screaming women and children rushed to and fro in their frantic search for their friends. Those unable to extricate themselves from beneath the benches and Christmas tree that had gone down upon them, or were too much injured to help themselves, were carefully removed, and the seriously wounded sent home in carriages. Full half an hour had elapsed before all were extricated. While, as may be supposed, almost all who fell received more or less sprains, bruises and scratches, it is wonderful that so few received serious injury, and that none were killed.

At the time, it was supposed that a considerable number hurt had been fractured and surgical assistance was immediately sent for to the city. It now appears that only two, a Mrs. Wilcox and a Mrs. Brown, aged seventy-two, had bones fractured. Each of these has a broken leg. A number of others received serious injury, but I hear of none that are not in a fair way to recover. It seems that those engaged in putting up the Christmas tree the day before the festival, discovered that the upper hall floor had settled several inches with the weight of the few in the hall at the time. They raised it up and placed a small joist beneath it, and with this frail support these very persons, with a full knowledge of this fact, trusted their lives and those of their neighbors and friends.

BEST CABINET ORGANS,
AT LOWEST PRICES.
That the MASON & HAMLIN CABINET and METROPOLITAN ORGANS are the best in the world is proved by the almost unanimous opinion of professional musicians, by the award to them of SEVENTY-FIVE GOLD and SILVER MEDALS or other highest premiums, at principal industrial competitions within a few years, including the MEDAL at the PARIS EXPOSITION and by a sale very much greater than that of any similar instruments. This Company manufacture only FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENTS, and will not make "cheap organs" at any price, or suffer an inferior instrument to bear their name. Having greatly increased their facilities for manufacture by the introduction of new machinery and otherwise, they are now making BETTER ORGANS than EVER BEFORE, at increased economy in cost, which, in accordance with their fixed policy of selling always at least remunerative profit, they are now offering at prices inferior work. FOUR OCTAVE ORGANS. Plain, Walnut Case. $50. FIVE OCTAVE ORGANS Double Reed, Solid Walnut Case, carved and panneled, with FIVE STOPS (VIOLA, DIAPASON, MELODIA, FLUTE, TREMULANT), $125. Other styles in proportion.
Circulars with full particulars, including accurate drawings of the different styles of organs, and much information which will be of service to every purchaser of an organ, will be sent free and postage paid, to any one desiring them.

MONDAY, JAN. 3, 1870.

Brief Mention.

STANTON is dead. "Like the sound of the fall of a mighty pine in the stillness of the woods," as an Indian orator once said of a chief of his tribe, came the death of this statesman to our ears. His life was surrendered for his country's good. He worked himself to death. An intimate friend of his, Gen. Gilman Marston, states that in some of those dark days and weeks when the union and confederate causes were almost in a state of equipoise, Mr. Stanton remained at the war office for three weeks in succession, having his meals brought to him, and only catching an occasional nap upon a lounge or sofa. Such indefatigability and perseverance, with the want of proper rest and recreation, robbed him of that nervous energy necessary for the support of life, and he died — a hero, a statesman and a martyr.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM ANOTHER HORROR.—The breaker of a Nottingham, Pa., coal mine caught fire while 55 men were in the mine, Friday. It caught by carelessness and was extinguished without calling the men up, this being the only exit from the mine.

At noon some of the men came up to dinner and they became aware for the first time of the terrible fate they had escaped. When they went down again they held an indignation meeting and resolved at once to go up out of the mine. When they got up they assembled the rest of the men belonging to the mine, in all about 75, and held another meeting, resolving that they would not again go down into the mine until there were two brick chimneys built for the stove pipes, a watchman placed in the building night and day, and a bell at the bottom of the shaft so that they should have a signal when there was danger at the surface.

MASONIC.—The Third Annual Council of Deliberation of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry within the jurisdiction of New Hampshire was held recently at Nashua. The meeting was a well attended and interesting one. The following officers were elected:

Illustrious Commander-in-Chief, William Barrett, 33, Nashua, Deputy Commander-in-Chief, Albert R. Hatch, 33, Portsmouth; 1st Lieut. Commander, Thomas E. Hatch, 33 Keene; 2d Lieut. Commander John D. CASTE IN THE NAVY. — While Congress is engaged in discussing the question whether staff officers in the navy are officers or not, and if so, how much, it would be well for them to consider the expediency of abolishing the High-and-Low-Caste system of making out the official Navy Registers at present in fashion.

The staff do not ask for nor want any authority which can conflict with the special duties of the line, nor any rank but such as they are justly entitled to from length of service. What the staff demand is absolute rank based on length of actual service, and real authority in their several departments—so that the line officer who orders a surgeon to declare a sick man well or to cut off a well man's leg, or directs a paymaster to hand over moneys to him and charge the crew with it, or commands an engineer to oil his fires instead of his engine, or to raise more steam in an already over-pressed boiler, will be unable to kick more valuable men than himself out of the service for refusing to obey such orders.

The demands of the staff are supported by the press without distinction of party. The ravening lion (the Democratic press) lies down with the guileless lamb (the Republican press) on this platform; and if any paper of influence opposes the introduction of democracy into the navy, I have not seen it. Such charming unanimity in the people's organs, should convince the people's servants in Congress that the people are in earnest in demanding naval reform; and no doubt such will be the effect. And a damaging blow to the "caste" system, which has already done injury enough to the country without now making the navy a mere nursery for a privileged upper class, can be dealt by merely simplifying the method of compiling the Navy Registers.

At present all naval officers are carefully divided into "classes," the line officers coming first, of course. Thus the boy who enters the service to-day as a line officer, ranks on the list before the surgeon who entered the navy twenty or thirty years ago; the surgeon lowest in grade comes before the highest engineer, &c. As the laws of primogeniture and entail are necessary to the existence of England's aristocracy, so this method of classifying our naval officers is one of the essentials to the preservation of our naval nobility,—for at every point of contact with the lower orders they must "lose caste," and allowing the plebeian staff to be mixed up with them on the lists would go far to break down the anti-republican distinction that at present exists between men who have won their rank as staff officers, and the gentlemen of the line.

It is an insulting outrage to old and long-tried officers, to rate them after mere boys of a few days' service; and the whole arrangement of the lists is nonsensical, serving only to "keep the staff where they belong"—i. e., distinct from the sacred line. Why not register all officers of any one grade, no matter in which department of the service (so that it was in actual service, and not at school,) their rank was gained, in one list, according to seniority, with the special duty of each opposite his name? No confusion, or conflict of duty could arise from such a registry,—not so much as sometimes occurs under the present regulations,—for a certain commander not long ago mistook himself for a surgeon, and ordered the genuine doctor to say a man was well when he wasn't, and the doctor wouldn't say anything of the kind, for which he was punished by the authorities and lauded by every one else. The line could not possibly claim more authority for interfering in other people's affairs than they claim at present; and I do not believe there is a surgeon in the navy who would claim the command of a ship because he was first on the list, of all on board,—nor an engineer who would demand the privilege of cutting off legs because he outranked the surgeon.

It would be a sad blow, no doubt, to the line, to find themselves in such low company as that of doctors and engineers, on the list; but it would help to break down the "caste" system, which aristocratic England is working hard to destroy in India, but which democratic America yet sustains in the navy, and which the line seek to have perpetuated by law—or without it. PAKEHA.

—In the early days of Western emigration, an intelligent Irishman, known as Pat Doogan, settled on the Kentucky side of the Ohio river, where he built a little dock and supplied steamboats with wood. The place was called Pat Doogan's Landing. It was soon shortened into "Pat Doogan's," then into "Padoogans," and finally to the euphonious name which now appears on all the maps, Paducah.

☞ Meeting of Piscataqua Agricultural Society, (and proprietors of Fair Grounds) at National Hotel, Wednesday evening, Jan. 5th, at 7 o'clock.

FARMERS' CONVENTION.—In the N. H. Farmers' Meeting at Manchester; Hon. J. D. Lyman of Exeter was called up, and urged that cold and sterile as New Hampshire was sneeringly called by dwellers in the virgin soils of the west, her soil could grow more corn to the acre than Illinois. It made less show of tall stalks and suckers, but gave nearly double the yield of that vaunted agricultural paradise.

Josiah Clark of Hooksett said his yield was about sixty bushels, shelled, per acre. C. H. Holt of Lyndeborough said this year he had got from each acre acre seventy-nine bushels, one year he raised a third more, but averaged between fifty and sixty. H. H. Roberts of Rollinsford set his figures between forty and fifty. He believed that Canada corn gained handsomely in size, in this State.

J. H. Gregory of Marblehead was introduced and spoke on the potato, saying that it is one of the few root crops that keeps all the year round. The early days of the potato are the most prolific and hence farmers should seek new varieties. He had mamemorranda of the progress of the seventy varieties which he had grown this year. He discussed various varieties preferring the Early Snowball. The Early Rose he praised highly, but said it was very apt to rot. Mr. G. thought new pasture land the best for a "tater patch," with about twelve cords of manure to the acre, spreading it, with some in the hill. High manuring bad for this crop. People generally seed too much. The speaker advocated digging seed potatoes before fully ripe, and urged frequent changes of seed. He thought a hundred and fifty bushels an average crop, and estimated the cost of production in his neighborhood at $150 an acre.

Prof. Thomas R. Crosby, of the State Agricultural College, said that the hay crop of New Hampshire was valued at $15,000,000, corn $3,000,000, and the potato at $2,500,000. As an article of diet no substitute has yet been found for the potato. Even in Chili, the birthplace of this esculent, disease had sometimes become manifest. Such pests as the wire worm, beetle, &c., were noticed in detail. The farmer should encourage birds to exterminate insects, even the crow, which particularly affects grub worms, though often damaging young corn. In regard to the potato disease, Prof. C. said that after all theorizing its origin was yet in doubt.

Levi Bartlett of Warner spoke strongly in favor of the Orono potato as the best of all. G. F. Sanborn of Grantham said that in Maine the Orono was running out, and he showed a new specimen called the Chamberlain seedling, now rapidly coming into favor in that State. He advocated the crows as the farmers' right bower. Mr. Gregory thought the crow killed the young of small birds which destroyed more worms and insects than the crow itself. Mr. Hills of Windham thought the king bird an enemy of the bee, but was referred to a work taking a different view.

N. H. AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The Annual Meeting was held at Manchester on the 27th inst. There was a good attendance, and much interested manifested. Natt Head of Hooksett was re-elected President, Aaron Young of Portsmouth, Secretary, and George W. Riddle of Manchester, Treasurer.

It was voted to increase the number of directors to eight, who were chosen as follows:

Warren F. Daniell of Franklin, James W. Cogswell of Gilmanton, Robert Elwell of Langdon, Stephen Schlek of Great Falls, Peter W. Jones of Amherst, John Lindsay of Lancaster, Charles H. Hayes of Portsmouth, and Abner P. Balch of Hanover. Messrs. Daniell and Coggswell are re-elected officers.

At the Farmers' Convention held at the same place, on the day previous, the premiums offered by Hon. J. D. Lyman for the best Corn were awarded as follows:

Corn, ten rows or over, first, D. F. Hayes of Exeter; second, Wm. Connor of Exeter; eight rowed corn, first, S. B. Gove of Raymond, second, Mr. Hayes of Exeter. There were twenty entries. The owners of the corn were unknown to the judges until after the awards were made up.

It is a noticable fact that all the premiums should be awarded to residents of Rockingham County; and three of the four to two citizens of Exeter.

HARD ON OUR NAME.—An English correspondent of the Boston Journal says:

There are three Portsmouths in the English speaking world which strike me as being very much alike in characteristic dulness and cheerlessness for a stranger. Here is one in merry England which is sad colored and dull enough to give one a melancholic congestion; New Hampshire, in New England, has one which might be improved as to cheeriness; and Virginia has the crowner! But "as dull as a navy town" is a proverb.

CONSUMPTION.

The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.

"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for the worst cases of indigestion.

"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

To those three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, o Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ an healthy tone, and cure Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic digests the food in the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.

Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. d3d1m.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and hygiene of our sexual nature, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—No matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under any one of the notorious QUACKS—native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life.

Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

Food makes blood; blood makes the body. If the blood be pure, the body is healthy. So if we are not in health, we know some impurities are lurking about, which must be removed, and the sooner the better.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS remove all from the system which nature needs no longer.

The wonderful cures effected by Brandreth's Pills have arrested the attention of enlightened physicians. Upwards of five thousand now use them in their daily practice, and two hundred have given their testimony as to their innocence and value, as cleansers of the bowels and blood. Their untold value is to those living in settlements where medicine can only be had at great expense. For if you are sick, you have only to take one or more doses of Brandreth's Pills to get cured. Full Directions are with each box.

SPECIAL NOTICES,

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicinal aid present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.

Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principles, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

Ten thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its effects, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art; their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy and the irritations to which the weaker feeble sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible nauseous compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among the vaunted preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

MERIT SOON NOISED ABROAD.

It is but six years since ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, was first offered for sale. Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near; now it is sold in nearly every Drug Store in the United States—NORTH, EAST, SOUTH and WEST. No similar medicine stands higher with the people. It is well known on the Pacific coast, and the demands for it from San Francisco, Sacramento in California, and Portland, Oregon; even from Australia, are large and orders are sent for it, throughout Canada, it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.

Read what Captain Foster writes:

PORT BURWELL, March 23d, 1869.

Messrs. PERRY DAVIS & SON,

Sirs:—I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM; having been troubled with a cough for several years past, the Balsam was recommended to me. I immediately procured it, and found it to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results.

MALT EXTRACT—

Is already recommended by our leading physicians, as a tonic and a nutrient (ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO LADIES) with the most satisfactory results. This beverage is extensively used where all spirituous liquors and ales are discarded, as it differs from all other malt preparation, being ALMOST FREE FROM ALCOHOL, and therefore neither intoxicating nor irritating; so it contains MORE NUTRIMENT THAN PORTER, ALE, OR THE STRONGEST BEER. ja3

☞ The New Year came in as the old year went out, calm and placidly. The weather was spring-like and favorable for dress parade by the ladies.

☞ The thanks of the Pearl Street Freewill Baptist Society are tendered to Mr. Thompson of Boston, Agent of Kearsarge Mill, for a New Year's Present of $25 value.

WHITMORE & CLARK's minstrels and Chinese artists come to-morrow evening, and have a first-class company, including Hank White, Johnny Morrissey, Geo. W. Clark, G. E. Kingsley, Chiriski and Eddie Lincoln. The troupe make "fun alive" and should be seen and heard to be appreciated. They do not deal in old, stereotyped jokes, and their programme is new.

THE MASQUERADE of the C. B. B Club came off on Friday evening, and was a complete success, notwithstanding another was held at the same place (Congress Hall) but three evenings before. The Hall was very handsomely dressed, the dancers were numerous and the spectators more so, the costumes varied and many of them supremely ridiculous; the music being by Cushing's Quadrille Band. The procession, which resembled the contents of a mammoth toy-shop running away, commenced the March at half-past 8 o'clock, and from that time till half-past 11 the dancers were kept busy. At the latter hour the company unmasked, and an hour's intermission gave them opportunity to get breath and wish each other "A Happy New Year,"—after which dancing was resumed, and kept up till well towards morning. The managers announced another Masquerade to take place on the evening of Feb. 22d.

CITY COUNCIL.—At the special meeting Saturday evening, the Aldermen passed an Ordinance transferring certain unexpended balances of appropriations to the amount of $9000 or more to pay deficiences in others.

Ald. Nowell, from the Com. to acknowledge the gift of Mayor Jones for a Public Library—reported a resolution of appreciation and thanks for the same. Passed unanimously, the Board rising.

Voted to pay the land damages awarded on Fleet St. to Messrs. Cotton, Parry, Lydston, and the Ladd heirs, from any unexpended appropriation.

A vote of thanks and compliment to the Mayor, for his courtesy and impartiality as presiding officer during the year,—was unanimously passed, the Board rising. Mayor Jones responded fittingly, declared his endeavor to serve the City faithfully, without regard to sect or party—and thanking the Board for their courtesy, invited them (with the other City Council, present and past, city officers, and some of those to come,) to supper at the National House—which was done.

The Common Council passed in concurrence the preamble and resolution relative to the Mayor's Donation; also an Ordinance regulating laying of sidewalks; also an Ordinance in addition to Ord. No. 7 relating to Quarantine; also the vote authorizing the City Treas. to pay land damages; also the Ord. in relation to Dogs; also an Ordinance making transfer of appropriation for year 1869.

☞ After the adjournment of the City Council, Saturday evening, the members of both Boards partook of a supper at the National House by invitation of his Honor, the Mayor. Gen. Hadley spread a bountiful repast, which, after prayer by the city Missionary, was attacked and partially disposed of by about forty persons, including nearly all the city officials and several represeniatives of the press.

After doing justice to the tempting viands, Judge Bufford was called upon and related a dream, which abounded in sly hits at the various members of the Board of Aldermen,—concluding by asserting that the Board would be remembered as well for the things not done as for things done. Mayor Jones spoke briefly, and referred to the pleasant associations of the past year, and hoped that the time would come when political abuse would be abandoned and our citizens forget party for the welfare of the whole city. Remarks were also made by Aldermen Miller, Pendexter and Cotton, Alderman-elect Marvin, Rev. Mr. Medbery, Collector Shannon and City Marshal Johnson,—and after considerable sparring which ended in smoke, the dignitaries took themselves home to their wives and sons and daughters, having passed an hour very pleasantly.

☞ A little girl named Hersey broke through the ice at the South pond on Saturday, and was rescued by several boys.

☞ Mr. W. I. Trafton announces that he will commence the Express business on Tuesday morning, Jan. 4th,—starting for Boston at 6:15 A. M.

☞ Something fell from the Noble's Island railroad bridge into the river, Friday night, and two employees of the Railroad heard the noise. The police think it was Thomas Galliban of York, who was discharged from the lock-up the same day, after getting partially sobered.

☞ A humorous constituent of one of the Portsmouth members of the Legislature, who last year voted for the new wine measure for Milk,—recently told him that he, a political opponent, would vote for his re-election, if he, the Rep., would vote to sell rum by beer measure,—which, by the way, would be a new thing, even with beer itself.

☞ Portsmouth is one of the most healthy places in this country, thanks to the pure water furnished the citizens; and notwithstanding the warm weather of our open winter, which has heretofore been considered injurious to good health, there is less sickness at the present time than at a corresponding time in previous years; so a veteran physician informs us.

☞ There are now 140 paupers at the new Rockingham County Farm at Brentwood,—and all is working well there. None of these are Town paupers, not having gained a residence or settlement since 1840, as required by law. Sometime the effort may be successful, to make all paupers chargeable to the County only, and do away with all Town settlements; or perhaps even to substitute the State Pauper and State Almshouse plan, as in Massachusetts.

NORTH PARISH FESTIVAL.—The Sabbath School connected with the North Church, also the Mission school established at the Creek by the Young People's Association of the church, had a very pleasant entertainment at Congress hall on Monday evening. A bountiful supper was enjoyed by the children after which "tokens" were dispensed from the Christmas Tree, which was very beautiful being laden with gifts to please the eye and tempt the two hundred and fifty children which gathered about. The singing by the school was very fine, and the "Festival" will long be a pleasant spot in the memory of all who participated in it.

NOTICE.—About the year 1845 the wife of an officer in the U. S. Navy by the name of BURNS or BARNES, residing at Portsmouth, N. H., came to Boston, Mass., and adopted as her child a young girl by the name of GEORGIANA HALL, then about 4 years of age. Soon after, they went South, supposed to Norfolk, Va., since then nothing has been known of them. Any information concerning this young lady will be thankfully received by the subscriber, who is in possession of information which will be of great value to her.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

BY THE SEA.

Last night I watched the old year die,—
A wind swept once across the sky,
That seemed to me his parting sigh—

The tolling ceased. Then weirdly gay,
The bells rang forth across the bay,—
Stealing a sea-charm on their way,

An echo from the hollow caves,—
A thrill of music from the waves,
Where some that hear shall find there graves!

O! young babe year, that yet shall grow
To work as either weal or woe—
'Tis strange that men should hail thee so!

O! dread, mysterious volume sealed—
What fateful words lie there concealed—
Not till the end to be revealed—

O! ship that sails the the unknown sea!
We guess not what thy freight may be—
What storms—what shipwreck—none foresee!

As two boys were playing near the river back of Dover Printery, the larger boy fell into the water and called for the smaller one to help him. In attempting to do so the small boy also fell in, and was fast disappearing under the ice, when Charles Dunn, with great presence of mind, jumped into the water and with a boat-hook succeeded in rescuing the drowning boy. This act on the part of Mr. Dunn is the more meritorious because he has a wooden leg, which he broke in the operation, while others looking on had two good legs each.

As Frank Varney and Charles Roberts were driving in a wagon on Central street Dover, some part of the harness broke, and the horse ran swiftly towards the City Hall, striking the wagon against a lamp post in front of C. H. Trickey's store. The wagon was badly broken, and the men were thrown violently to the ground, but without receiving much injury.

Two cout-thieves stole several articles from a boarding-house in Manchester, on Thursday evening. One of them, calling his name Butler, was caught next morning, with one of the stolen coats on his back. He is in jail.

The carriage factory of Darius Towle & Son, in Kingston, is making arrangements to build 1000 carriages during the coming year, and recently advertised in a Boston daily for a party to contract for the painting of that number. Thirty-two applications were received in three days, and the contract was secured by Mr. J. D. Olsen, of St. John, N. B., who has deposited a handsome sum in greenbacks, as an earnest of his prompt fulfilment of the contract. A similar advertisement for the ironing of the same number elicited five responses next day.

Mrs. Keay, wife of Cyrus Keay, died very suddenly at Springfield, on the 18th, supposed from the rupture of a blood-vessel.

On last Friday afternoon, as Mr. Woodbury M. Durgin, shoe freighter, was descending Rollins' hill, in Nottingham, his wagon parted and load divided, precipitating Mr. Durgin to the ground and seriously injuring him.

The students of Hampton Academy showed their appreciation of the services of their teachers, Rev. D. W. C. Durgin and his assistants, by making them several handsome Christmas presents.

Until last week, for 145 years, two elm trees have stood in front of the quondam parsonage property, on Kingston Plains. One of them has been cut down, and on Christmas day an attempt was made to fell the other. After seven or eight hours' labor, and the tiring out of several men, who relieved each other at the axe, the attempt was abandoned as involving too much labor, and the tree, which has at the surface of the ground a circumference of thirty feet, will stand, perhaps, another century.

Mr. George J. Warner, contractor for carrying the mails between Newburyport and Exeter, will run a daily stage, leaving the Squamscott House daily, for Newburyport, at half-past one o'clock P. M.

—A veteran soldier, who shows honorable scars, informs the New York Times that 16 sick, destitute and disabled soldiers were on Friday morning last, turned out of the Brooklyn Almshouse at the instance of the President of the Board of Almshouse Commissioners, because they voted the Republican ticket at the last election. This at least was the cause assigned by the warden of the house, who said his orders were imperative. Of the sixteen veterans thus turned adrift, eight had only one arm each, and six only one leg each. All were without money. Such partisan malice toward the country's defenders could only emanate where elections are carried by fraud and where bad men hold office.

—Among the accidents at Washington on Christmas day was one of a shocking character. A child sitting in his father's lap was instantly killed by a stray bullet. The day is usually celebrated there by firing guns, pistols and fire crackers.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE.

We are permitted to publish the following correspondence, indicating the feeling of Russia towards this country, which will prove interesting to our readers:

LETTER FROM VICE-ADMIRAL CRABBE, MINISTER OF THE NAVY.

ST. PETERSBURG, RUSSIA May 9-21, 1869.

SIR:—The Russian Nation has a most retentive memory for the past attention and respect paid to their beloved Emperor. And the American Embassy in the year 1866 is still fresh in the memory of the people. As a proof of this fact I have the pleasure, at the request of the brothers Milutine, merchants of Tcherepowiets, to forward you a case containing the picture of a memorial, which has been shown to the Emperor, and most graciously approved of, by his Majesty.

I flatter myself with the idea that this picture will be a pleasing memento to you and yours of the lasting impression produced in Russia by the Embassy sent by the American Congress of which you were the worthy chief.

I avail myself of this opportunity to assure you of my high consideration and remain

Sir, Your obedient humble servant,
(signed) CRABBE.

To the Honorable
GUSTAVUS V. FOX, Portsmouth N. H.
U. S. of America

Description of the ornamental window forming the frame of the memorial sent to the Honorable Gustavus V. Fox Portsmouth N. H. United States of America, by the brothers Milutine, merchants of Tcherepowiez.

The frame is carved in Russian wood of different qualities and tints, from a design made by Colonel N. Mussard. The carving has been done in twelve days by a Russian pleasant Leontjev.

The objects represented on the frame are as follows:

The Byzantine Cross,
The Chalice,
A star on each side,
A Russian salt cellar,
The Bread,
A Russian Towel on supporters,
The arms of the Government of Novgorod,
The Dove with an olive branch,
The picture inside represents the memorial stand with inscriptions,
On both sides of the ornamental window are cars of corn the emblems of fertility.

The whole has been executed in pure Russian style.

LOWELL Mass. Sept. 21. 1869.

Hon. HAMILTON FISH, Sec'y of State,
Washington, D. C.

SIR:—I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of a letter from Vice Admiral Crabbe minister of Marine at St. Petersburg, forwarded with the memorial picture, by the Consul General of Russia at New York, a copy of whose letter is also enclosed.

The letter of the minister and the testimonial which accompanied it, are expressive of the grateful remembrance which Russia cherishes for the sympathetic Resolution of Congress, which I had the honor to present to the Emperor in 1866.

With great respect
Your obt svt.
G. V. FOX.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.
WASHINGTON. 5th Oct. 1869.

G. V. Fox, Esq.
Lowell, Massachusetts.

SIR:—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st ultimo and the papers which accompanied it in relation to an interesting Memorial picture which has been presented to you in commemoration of your mission to Russia.

That memento and the correspondence by which it was accompanied are gratifying manifestations of a friendly spirit which I am happy to believe is cordially reciprocated by the people of the United States.

I am Sir,
Your very obedient servant,
(signed) HAMILTON FISH.

—That was a queer case of picking up turkeys in a store in Knoxville, Tenn., the other day. A man of that place, having won a fat gobbler at a raffle, stood treat. He soon got too full for utterance, and had to retreat, which he did in a style resembling the base line of a Virginia rail fence. With a nice turkey under his arm he went on his winding way, but finding the road rather rough, stumbled and fell several times over all sorts of obstructions. Each time he dropped his turkey, but contrived to pick it up again. On entering his house he steadied himself as well as he was able, and said to his wife:

"Here, wifey, I've got 'leven turkeys for you."

"Eleven turkeys! What do you mean? There is only one."

"There must be 'leven, wifey, 'cause I fell 'leven times, and every time I found a turkey. There must be 'leven turkeys."

NEW HAMPSHIRE IN WASHINGTON.—A correspondent of the Exeter News Letter writes:

Of our New Hampshire delegation, Senator Patterson is the only one who has taken a residence, and made himself at home. He resides on the 6th street, not far from the Avenue. Mr. Cragin is boarding at the St. James (a hotel, kept by a New Hampshire man.) Mr. Ela is at 25, 4 1-2 street, a house well known by New Hampshire visitors. Mr Stevens, has his rooms on F. street, near the Treasury, and Mr. Benton is stopping at the Ebbitt House.

Thomas L. Tullock of Portsmouth, who is well known to most of the leading citizens of Rockingham County, is Collector of Internal Revenue for the District. Mr. T's name has been mentioned in connection with the position of Third Auditor of the Treasury, that post being at this time vacant. It is though that Mr. T. would accept the position, if it were tendered to him.

Everybody who has been "down to the beach" remembers the Ocean House, and the proprietor, Job Jenness. Mr. Jenness has leased a hotel for a term of years in this city, and made extensive additions to the same. The Jenness House, as it is called, is one of the finest and best appointed hotels in the city, its location on Pennsylvania Avenue is central and convenient, and it is a model house in every respect.

The railroads in Spain have been blocked with snow for four days.

Ireland has experienced a fearful gale. Ten persons were killed in Limerick.

SPEER'S SAMBUCI WINE.

CATAWBA, PORT, GRAPE and P. J. Sherry.
The above Wines are made by Mr. Speer, whose reputation as a wine grower stands pre-eminent. They are well established, and long used by the Medical Profession as the most reliable and valuable wines to be had.
Every family at this season should use
SPEER'S SAMBUCI WINE,
celebrated in Spain and Portugal for its beneficial qualities, highly esteemed by eminent physicians, used in European and American Hospitals and by the first families in Europe and America.
Excellent for weak and debilitated persons, the aged and infirm, improving the appetite and benefitting the ladies and children.
AS A DIURETIC
it imparts a healthy action to the Kidneys, and Urinary Organs, very beneficial in Dropsy, Gout and Rheumatic affections. Also,
SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE
is pure juice of the Oporto Grape, recommended by Physicians as possessing medical properties superior to California or Imported Wines.

The Chronicle.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

THE AFRICAN REPUBLIC.—More than Two thousand Freedmen have spontaneously applied to the American Colonization Society, for aid to go, with their families, to a nationality of their own. These applicants are a superior class of their race,—many of them persons of established christian character, who hope, while improving their own condition, to aid in establishing schools and churches among the six hundred thousand natives within the bounds of that Republic, who are already so far civilized that they speak English imperfectly, and are anxious for schools and preachers to teach them the way of life.—Among these applicants are several young colored men and women, educated in the Schools of the Freedmen's Bureau, who are to become teachers;—also five hundred communicants in protestant churches, and more than twenty licensed preachers, who take with them a part at least of their churches, and so plant down an organized christianity in the native villages.

God has greatly blessed this method of doing the foreign missionary work. Every time the Society's ship sails, she carries out one or two churches. For example; In a late voyage, in addition to some seventy or eighty communicants in other churches, to be organized on their arrival, the Golconda carried out one complete Baptist church from Macon, Ga., an educated colored preacher, two deacons and about forty members.

This church has settled down in one of the native towns, in contact with several thousand English speaking natives. Every member of their church who lives a christian life, is practically a missionary,—a living illustrator of the benefits and blessings of a christian civilization. All the officers and members of that church are teachers.

They are of the same race, color and sympathies, as those whom they go to teach, and the work of christianization goes on successfully. It is easy to see that this mode of doing the foreign missionary work is far more efficient than the ordinary mode of sending one or two missionaries and their wives, who go to a people of different race and language, and who must labor five or ten years before they have converts enough to form a church.

With such a field of usefulness before them, shall not these people be aided to enter it? They are poor, but worthy. In their bondage, they had nothing but their living for their labor. The most they can now do is to provide themselves with a scanty outfit with which to begin life in their new home.

From those who think they ought to be aided, I will thankfully receive and foward such contributions as may be sent to me at the Franklin House in this city.

Some wag in order to get up a little excitement, in Great Falls on Christmas day, painted and posted some notices around town announcing the appearance of two champion female skaters on the ice near the bridge at half-past two o'clock that afternoon. A great crowd gathered to witness the sport, but soon found they were "sold," and quietly dispersed.

The Great Falls Journal has been enlarged and improved. It is a good paper, and deserves all encouragement from the citizens of that vicinity.

BEST CABINET ORGANS,
AT LOWEST PRICES.
That the MASON & HAMLIN CABINET and METROPOLITAN ORGANS are the best in the world is proved by the almost unanimous opinion of professional musicians, by the award to them of SEVENTY-FIVE GOLD and SILVER MEDALS or other highest premiums, at principal industrial competitions within a few years, including the MEDAL at the PARIS EXPOSITION and by a sale very much greater than that of any similar instruments. This Company manufacture only FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENTS, and will not make "cheap organs" at any price, or suffer an inferior instrument to bear their name. Having greatly increased their facilities for manufacture by the introduction of new machinery and otherwise, they are now making BETTER ORGANS than EVER BEFORE, at increased economy in cost, which, in accordance with their fixed policy of selling always at least renumerative profit, they are now offering at prices inferior work. FOUR OCTAVE ORGANS, Plain, Walnut Case, $50. FIVE OCTAVE ORGANS Double Reed, Solid Walnut Case, carved and panneled, with FIVE STOPS (VIOLA, DIAPASON, MELODIA, FLUTE, TREMULANT), $125. Other styles in proportion.
Circulars with full particulars, including accurate drawings of the different styles of organs, and much information which will be of service to every purchaser of an organ, will be sent free and postage paid, to any one desiring them.

POLICE COURT, Monday, Jan. 3d. Before Judge Odell.—In the case State vs. the publishers of the Chronicle, continued from last week, for the alleged libel of Scammon vs. Hatch—Mr. W. H. Y. Hackett, counsel for the defence, said that there being no dispute about the publication charged—the only open question now is whether it was or not justifiable. If this were the real and final trial he would confidently expect to satisfy the Jury that in publishing the advertisement, complained of, the respondents had acted in the usual business manner, and had committed no offense and intended no wrong. But as this was but a preliminary examination, he saw no advantage to his clients in putting them to the expense, and the Court to the trouble, of an extended hearing. For this reason, the respondents waived further examination, and would now submit to the order of the court.

Mr. Hatch called the attention of the Court, to the fact that the alleged libel had been republished in the N. H. Gazette, by the defts., since that suit was commenced—and claimed this as new evidence of malice. But defts. stated that the outside of the Gazette, containing Scammon's advertisement, was printed before proceedings commenced; and the Court ruled that no publication since the trial was opened, could be put in evidence. Mr. Hatch was very earnest for heavy bail; but the Court held respondents in $500 each, for appearance at the S. J. Court in April. J. H. Bailey and C. H. Salter, sureties for Miller, Jona. Dearborn and Plumer D. Norton, for Marston. Mr. Hackett intimated that the animus of the prosecuting counsel himself, seemed to indicate something of that malice he charged upon defendents; and he could see no reason for excessive bail. Neither did the Judge seem to see any.

In the case of Hatch vs. Scammon, continued from last week, Mr. Jenness Brown of Stratham, son-in-law of Mr. Scammon swore to being in Mr. Hatch's office last year and to hearing Mr. Hatch state that he had no notes against Scammon. Mr. Hatch stated that the notes alleged to be forged were paid by Mr. Scammon nearly two years ago. Mr. Brown made considerable merriment by mistaking Mr. Hatch for Mr. Frink.

Mr. Hatch made a sworn statement that while he regarded Mr. Scammon sufficiently sane to transact ordinary business he considered him morally insane. Mr. Hackett, counsel for Mr. Scammon, stated that he had no doubt the notes alleged by Scammon to be forged were really signed by him, and he had no doubt that Mr. Scammon now firmly believes that he did not sign them. Judge Odell ordered the respondent to obtain sureties for his appearance at the S. J. Court on the second Tuesday of April, and Messrs. W. H. Y. Hackett and W. Locke recognized in that sum for his appearance.

THE STORM of Sunday was a drencher. The rain fell from Saturday to Sunday night copiously, and our streets were turned into small rivers. The wind increased to a gale, Sunday afternoon, and blew violently in the evening, veering at last from the southwest to southeast. At 9 o'clock the stars shone brightly and at early morn the wind had dried the sidewalks completely. We hear of no accidents of importance in this vicinity, but are of the opinion that had not the gale of last fall prostrated the shaky limbs and trees previously, the debris in our streets this time would have furnished more work for the Street Commisioner.

Three vessels went ashore in the lower harbor, but came off uninjured at high tide on Monday. A sentry box at the Navy Yard was blown into the river, but the marine on duty there escaped a like fate by emerging from the box a few minutes before, to walk his beat.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

THE MAYOR'S BANQUET. — Mayor Frank Jones bade the City Government a very handsome farewell, at the festive board of the National House Saturday evening,—on which occasion all the old City Council and some members of the new, the Police force, City Missionary, Treasurer, Clerk and others, responded to his invitation, to the number of about or forty plates. A capital supper was spread, entirely without liquors; which being duly discussed,—City Clerk Bufford was called upon, as the man who kept the records.

The Judge, always good after dinner, remarked that it had been hard work sometimes to keep correct reckoning for the Board of Aldermen; and that while the last Board could look with satisfaction on some things done, it was chiefly famous for what had not been done. The new Ward Room in State street was creditable; and the improved Police quarters in the basement of the City building — with which he hoped none of the gentlemen would be obliged to cultivate close acquaintance!

Mr. Clerk said he had a dream the other night, and in imagination saw the Common built at the South Pond, extending from Pleasant St. to Richards Avenue, with Lincoln Hill in the distance, and a fountain in shape of a silver teapot. [Laughter.] Fleet St. was opened wide, and covered with brick blocks, and was the chief avenue to the depot,—Vaughan St. discontinued and made a bowling alley. The Dover St. Bridge too, all completed, in his mind's eye, gave all the tax-payers an opportunity for a shorter cut across the North Pond to the Almshouse! while the Noble's Island Bridge to Freeman's Point, was seen covered by a string of the Mayor's cows. [Laughter.]

Being afterwards inquired of by Ald. Miller, in which category he would place Summer Street,—whether an accomplished fact or otherwise, the City Clerk responded, oh, yes, Summer St. was finished too, and, led by Ald. Miller and Squire Hackett, the inhabitants on Rye road were proceeding in procession, to jail! [Applause.] Ald. Miller replied, "Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious Summer."

After some good advice to the newspaper reporters, (in which the Chronicle folks will hardly thank him for comparing them or "naming them in the same day" with the Opposition organ,)—having as usual contributed his full share to the fun of the evening, the Clerical Judge of many matters sat down and resumed his occasional cigar. [His dream ought to have included the improvement of Market St., and a new roof to the City Rooms.] His advice to the knights of the quill was, that one should learn to spell the Aldermen's names with capital letters, and both take care not to report actions and occurrences before they happened.

Ald. Miller was next called upon, but having gone there for deeds, not words, said but little. He was at first inclined to plead not guilty, and waive further examination of the turkey, &c., but he recollected that this was not the Police Court, notwithstanding the presence of the Assistant Judge. He was pleased to bear testimony to the efficiency and courtesy of the City Clerk, the Mayor, and all members of the City Government whom he had met; was glad of the pleasant experience he had had as Alderman, and had no act to regret in that or any other capacity. He might have said, but didn't,—that this meeting of the Committee of the Whole, was the most pleasant if not most important of all—even if it should not succeed, more than temporarily, in filling up the hole in the head of each spouting member. Without referring to injunctions, Ald. Miller subsided.

The City Treasurer was too full for utterance; and could only say that he could pay all the bills and have a balance of $27,000 or $28,000 to begin the new year with.

Ald. Marvin, of the new Board, Councilman of the old,—said that when he was sometimes told abroad, by persons who did not know what they were talking about, that Portsmouth was a one-horse town, he replied that our Mayor was a whole team in himself, and a very horse-pitable man, and always had plenty of business a-brewing. (Encore.) He said he had always found pleasure in the Councils of the City,—but did not especially refer to that last election of Speaker, that we heard. He was happy to be present on this occasion, when with a full board, nothing seemed to be laid on the table, but what could be taken up and unanimously agreed upon; (Ald. Miller; "and nobody laid under the table, either.")

The Mayor himself said he would speak of one matter, of interest to all. He regretted to witness the increasing bitterness of party feeling in City matters. He had now been here about 21 years, and partisan feeling had grown stronger and stronger, until now the members of one party seemed almost to hate the other. He very much deplored this, and thought it was foolish and injurious to the best interests of the City; and hoped to see the day when all sects and parties would unite on the best men for public duties, without reference to party ties.

Ald. Pendexter echoed the wish; and stated that he had done his best as an Alderman, and had ever received the aid and counsel of the Mayor when needed. He was no dreamer, and did not tell them if he had them; but left that business to his wife, who could beat him all hollow.

Ald. Cotton, the youngest of the Board, and a well known man of few words, was very properly heard last; but as he had been endeavoring to eat as much as his full-grown brother Nowell alongside, it was no wonder he should plead to be like the City Treasurer, too full for utterance, and soon sit down or fall down.

The City Missionary responded briefly to a call, as did Chief of Police Johnson,—each thanking the other branches of the City Government for their courtesy and co-operation. And thus ended the reign of Mayor Jones, for the present, at least; and a very pleasant ending it was. And we don't know who can say he has not made a good Mayor, —and he is certainly a very generous and hospitable man.

WHITMORE & CLARK'S combination company appears this evening at the Temple in a new and varied programme. They introduce among other things the popular "Shoo Fly" song, which has tickled Boston, crazed New York and inundated the provincial towns. Clark, the orator, will have a few remarks to make, the vocal quartet will sing some of their finest selections, Morrissey, the eccentric dancer, will put his foot in it, and Martini Chriski will perform wonderful Chinese feats.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,
Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual systems, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by W.M. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be accquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.
☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—No matter what may have been the cause, place yourself under any one of the notorious QUACKS—native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. You will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life.
Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

In Remote Settlements of Untold Value.
Food makes blood; blood makes the body. If the blood be pure, the body is healthy. So if we are not in health, we know some impurities are lurking about, which must be removed, and the sooner the better.
BRANDRETH'S PILLS remove all from the system which natnre needs no longer.
The wonderful cures effected by Brandreth's Pills have attested the attention of enlightened physicians. Upwards of five thousand now use them in their daily practice, and two hundred have given their written testimony as to their innocence and value, as cleansers of the bowels and blood. Their untold value is to those living in settlements where doctors can only be had at great expense. For if you are sick, you have only to take one or more doses of Brandreth's Pills to get cured. Full Directions are with each box.
Sold by all Druggists.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.
This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world; the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautifuly black or brown. Sold by all Druggists and Perfumers, and properly applied at the Wig Factory 2 Bond Street, New York.

AN EPISODE.—When the death of Senator Foote of Vermont was announced in the United States Senate, the late Senator Fessenden delivered a speech of great beauty and pathos, and on taking his seat overcome with emotion, he turned tearfully to his most intimate friend, ex-Senator Clarke of New Hampshire, and said, "Do this for me, Dan, when I'm gone!" The ill-feeling which formerly existed between Senators Clarke and Sumner was broken down by Mr. Fessenden. Using an opportune moment, "Pitt," as he was familiarly called, brought them together and introduced them. "Clarke, this is Mr. Sumner!" They heartily shook each other's hand, and never forgot the incident.

EVERYBODY who has a home or a place of business, will be interested in the new Window Fast just introduced by the Boston and Meriden Manufacturing Company; its name indicating just what it is, viz, "Never-failing and Self-locking." They not only supersede the use of weights and pullies, but in many respects are positively superior; and yet are sold so cheap that everybody who has a window can afford to take off the old worthless springs, which are such a source of trouble, and, putting on these, enjoy the luxury of knowing their windows are always locked, wherever and however left, from being forced either up or down.—[Boston Journal.] For full description of the above see our advertising columns.

CONSUMPTION.
The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.
"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion.
"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.
To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, o Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ a healthy tone, and cure Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.
Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. ddlm.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Let Common Sense Decide.
What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary invigorating power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.
Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principle, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the conditions of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense, then, be brought into a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY
In Medication.
The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any cathartic preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of lozenges.
DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S
LIVER AND STOMACH LOZENGE
is the most important medicinal novelty that modern chemistry has produced. It contains two botanical extracts, perfectly harmless in themselves, but embodying all the remedial properties of mercury, and destined in this pleasant form to supersede and banish from general use, the nauseous pills and portions of which that dangerous excitant is the main ingredient. More than
One thousand experiments
were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and unobtrusive: the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.
In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the female is subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equals either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopeia.
☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.
NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.
If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

MERIT SOON NOISED ABROAD.
It is but six years since ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, was first offered for sale. Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near: now it is sold in nearly every Drug Store in the United States—NORTH, EAST, SOUTH and WEST. No similar medicine stands higher with the people. It is well known on the Pacific coast, and liberal demands for it from San Francisco, Sacramento in California, and Portland, Oregon; even from Australia, large orders are received for it. And throughout Canada, it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.
Read what Captain Foster writes:
PORT BURWELL, March 23d, 1869.
Messrs. PERRY DAVIS & SON,
Sirs:—I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM; having been troubled with a cough for several years past, the Balsam was recommended to me. I immediately procured it, and found it to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results.
Yours Very Truly,
Capt. D. FOSTER.
Capt. FOSTER is a ship owner and builder, residing at Port Burwell, Canada.
Sold by PERRY DAVIS & SON,

Comfort and Bliss or Pain and Agony.
DR. TOBIAS' CELEBRATED VENETIAN LINIMENT, whose wonderful cures, sure and instaneous action, in cases of Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Croup, Sore Throat, Burns, Colic, Cramps, Dysentery, etc., have astonished the civilized world, in no new catch-penny; but an article that has stood the test of twenty-two years. The enormous sale and rapidly increasing demand is at once the surest evidence of its usefulness and popularity. No family should be without a bottle in the house. Hundreds of dollars and many hours of suffering may be saved by its timely use.
Cholera, Cramp, and Dysentery yield at once to its paincurative properties. It is perfectly innocent, and can be given to the oldest person or youngest child. Now if you think you have tried Patent Medicines—try this, and you will be sure to buy again, and recommend to your friends. Hundreds of Physicians recommend it in their practice.
Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers. Price 25 cents and One Dollar. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. n1

FRIGHTFUL DEVELOPMENTS!
At last the people have got the fact "through their hair," that hair dyes impregnated with acetate of lead and other metallic salts are
MURDEROUS PREPARATIONS.
When they see the metallic sediment at the bottom of the bottles, they know that the disguising stuff is literally thickened with Poison. They ask therefore, for a Harmless Vegetable Dye,
and find it, pure and efficacious, in Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye
offered under the sanction of Professor Chilton's guarantee that it contains "nothing deleterious." CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE, as a Dressing, acts like a charm on the Hair after Dyeing. Try it. 1md&wo4

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—PILES.—Do not suppose that every form of this complaint is incurable. The worst hemorrhoidal cases are not beyond the remedial reach of HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT. It gives tone to the relaxed integuments and acts as a safe styptic in the bleeding type of the disorder. Nor unfrequently constipation is an accompaniment of this disease and when this happens, it should be relieved with mild doses of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. Sold by all Druggists.

ACROSTIC.
Pain Killer is sovereign that it weighs, in gold,
All around the world are its praises told;
It will Cholera cure—scourge of southern climes,
Now cures, when taken at bedtime.
Keep Pain Killer—a true friend, by your side,
It will cure Cough or Cold, or Colic beside;
Look out to apply it for Bruise or for Sprain,
Let it once be tried—twill be used again.
Every word I am telling you, Reader, is true,
Remember that Pain Killer is good for you.
The Pain Killer is sold by all Druggists and dealers in Family Medicines.

THE NEW CITY GOVERNMENT is to be inaugurated this morning at 10 o'clock, at the Court House The next point of public interest will be, the election of City Officers. The new City Council is composed as follows:

Mayor—Joseph E. Adams,

Aldermen. — Geo. W. Pendexter, John Pender, Alben A. Fernald, Ward One; Frank W. Miller, Thos. S. Nowell, Thos. E. O. Marvin, Ward Two; Samuel Clark, Wm. W. Cotton, Ward Three.

Councilmen.—John G. Tibbetts, Israel P. Miller, James A. Waterhouse, James H. Thompson Ward One; Chas. E. Plaisted, John T. French, Cooledge Perry, Robert C. Sides, Jr., Ward Two; John F. Marden, Alpha Senter, Samuel R. Gardner, Ward Three.

ANOTHER CHANGE.—Business before friends, is the world's motto—one of the mottoes; but business and friends seems a better, or friends with business. More than 17 years ago, we rented rooms for our Chronicle Office, of Mr. J. J. Pickering; and with the close of the old year, his agency for Exchange Buildings ceased — Mr. F. Jones, the new proprietor of the block, taking possession. In parting with Mr. Pickering, we take pleasure in saying, that never was better landlord than he, for us at least; and in all this time, we have never had the least cause for complaint. So fair and gentlemanly did we find him, that after taking a lease for one or two terms of three years, we never again cared to take the trouble of signing another.—And we hope he has considered us good tenants—for no two quarters' rent have ever been paid together, and not one cent has he ever been asked to spend for repairs except when our fire occurred.

Mr. Pickering's good management as agent, and the kind of tenants he has had in the five stores of three stories, usually with more than one tenant in each, is shown in the fact that during more than twenty years in which he has had charge of the property, not one dollar of rent has he lost, nor has he been obliged to employ legal process to collect the same. We hope the new landlord will prove as agreeable, and his new purchase and tenants do as well for him; and we have little doubt of it, —for in long business dealings with Mr. Jones, we have ever found him reasonable and liberal.

POST OFFICE ROBBERY.—On Sunday evening about 8 o'clock, the outside receptacle of letters in our P. O. was rifled of all the letters it contained,—probably from 75 to 100. When the building was erected, no provision was made for depositing letters when the office was closed, and for this purpose, a thin board was put in the place of a pane of glass in a window, and a hole cut through to admit letters in a box inside. This board was cut out Sunday evening, and the mail stolen. A Sunday mail would not be likely to contain much money, being of course largely the letters of women and others not business men. The storm prevailing at the time afforded good cover for the operation.

Postmaster Peirce had previously asked for an iron box to be placed there, which would have soon been done.

A COUP D' ETAT BOTH INSTRUCTIVE AND SURPRISING. — Orders were received at the Navy Yard on Monday to discharge Messrs. Gardner M. Goodrich, (Clerk in the Navigation office,) Freeman L. Sanborn, (Time Clerk,) and Amos S. Foster, (Writer,) in Steam Engineering Department, (all of Portsmouth,) and to appoint in their places Chas. R. Littlefield, S. F. Shaw and G. A. Shapleigh of Maine.

☞ Mr. Jonathan Tibbetts of Exeter, father of Mr. John G. Tibbetts of this city, fell down stairs and broke his back at the News Letter office, on Saturday. He died a few hours after.

☞ Meeting of Piscataqua Agricultural Society, (and proprietors of Fair Grounds) at National Hotel, Wednesday evening, Jan. 5th, at 7 o'clock.

LAUNCH.—A barque of 500 tons will be launched from the shipyard of Tobey & Littlefield, this (Tuesday) afternoon, at 2 1-2 o'clock.

Rochester has twenty-five stores, four shoe factories, four cotton mills, four markets, five saloons, three hotels, a printing office, &c., while in the professions, it can boast of six lawyers, six doctors, two ministers and two dentists.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

Morning Chronicle.

RICHARDSON, SICKLES AND GEN. JACKSON.—It has been amusing if not instructive, says Uncle Toby, to see how the copperhead presses generally, (and some others,) have boiled over with what purported to be virtuous indignation at the murdered A. D. Richardson for having the marriage ceremony with Mrs. Sage (or McFarland), when he was dying,—and at the clergymen who officiated at the Wedding and Funeral.

We would not too hastily disparage their judgement, but suggest, that when more facts in the case are known, it may be considerably modified.

This case has been sometimes compared with that of Sickles and Key.—The chief resemblance between them is hat Sickles killed Key,—as McFarland killed Richardson — but there was no marriage—and Key's adultery was open and shameless.

But there is a case on record, a few years older, where the marriage, and jealousy, and divorce, were very much like these items, in the Richardson case We refer to the case of Gen. Andrew Jackson, and Mrs. Robards, who became his wife, and who was, we doubt not, an excellent woman.

In the autumn of 1788, Gen. J. being appointed to the good office of public prosecutor, came to Nashville, and went to board in a house where a jealous husband, (Robards,) and his attractive wife were also boarders.

Gen. Jackson married the lady in 1791,—and the court granted Robards a divorce from her in 1793, two years afterwards,—and then Gen. J. married her anew. This was all very irregular, and raised a scandal in political contests years afterwards. Yet it appeared, when the facts became known, that Robards was jealous without cause,—and that however illegal Gen. Jackson's first marriage was, there was nothing immoral about it—and he was not killed on that account,—but lived happily with his wife many years:—and he and all who knew her mourned their loss when she died.

There appears to have been no "affinity" between her and her first husband, but a very strong affinity with Gen. J.—He, the law officer of the State, we might say knew or ought to have known he was acting unlawfully—yet it appears he did not know it—and in spite of the bad look of the transaction, his friends and even those of Robards, believed him innocent of any evil intent.

To show that we do not draw on memory or fancy merely for these statements, we copy the following extracts from a memoir of Gen. Jackson, written by a friendly hand, in the American Cyclopædis. They will interest many readers.

In the summer of 1791 he married Mrs. Rachael Robards. This lady was a daughter of Col. John Donelson of Virginia, one of the founders of Tennessee, and her first husband was Mr. Lewis Robards of Kentucky. Mr. and Mrs. Robards were boarding with Mrs. Donelson, then a widow, when Jackson arrived at Nashville, and took up his residence in the same family.

In 1790—'91 Mr. Robards applied to the legislature of Virginia for an act preliminary to a divorce, stating that his wife was living in adultery with Andrew Jackson. His request was complied with, and under the act passed a jury was summoned late in 1793, and the court of Mercer co., Kentucky, declared the marriage between Lewis Robards and Rachael Robards dissolved. Both Jackson and Mrs. Robards believed that the act passed by the Virginia legislature was itself a divorce, and they were married at Natchez, 2 years before the action of the Mercer co. court. Judge Overton, an intimate friend of the Jacksons, in his account of their friendship and marriage says: "About the month of December, 1793, after Gen. Jackson and myself had started to Jonesborough, where we practised law, I learned for the first time that Capt. Robards had applied to the Mercer court, in Kentucky, for a divorce, which had then recently been granted and that the legislature had not absolutely granted a divorce, but left it for the court to do. I need not express my surprise on learning that the act of the Virginia legislature had not divorced Capt. Robards.

I informed Gen. Jackson of it, who was equally surprised; and during our conversation, I suggested the propriety of his procuring a license on his return home, and having his marriage ceremony again performed, so as to prevent all future cavilling on the subject. To this suggestion he replied, that he had long since been married, on the belief that a divorce had been obtained, which was the understanding of every person in the country; nor was it without difficulty he could be induced to believe otherwise. On our return home from Jonesborough, in Jan., 1794, to Nashville, a license was obtained, and the marriage ceremony performed. The slowness and inaccuracy with which information was received in W. Tennessee at that time will not be surprising, when we consider its insulated and dangerous situation, surrounded on every side by the wilderness and by hostile Indians, and there was no mail establishment till about 1797, as well as I recollect." The circumstances of this marriage led in after days to very serious misrepresentations, when Gen. Jackson had become the chief of a great party, and caused the husband much sorrow, more on his wife's account than on his own.

—An Ohio clergyman several years ago received a bright new cent as a wedding fee. The other day he met the bridegroom, who mentioned the circumstances and said, "My wife was a comparative stranger to me at the time we were united in wedlock; I had not learned her value, and paid accordingly. I find her a jewel—so here is an additional fee," at the same time handing the astonished minister a twenty-dollar gold piece.

—A young married man in Fall River died a terrible death on Wednesday last. Excessive drinking had brought on delirium tremens, and for several days his life was a continued agony. On Tuesday he was tormented with the suspicion that he was pursued by a man with dogs, and even flew to the roof of a high building, and ran around at the peril of his life, to avoid his fancied pursuers.

—At Wabashaw, Minnesota, an enterprising corporation had a poor man working for them by the year. While working on their mill dam he fell into the river and was drowned. When his widow came to settle up his affairs, she found the dead man was docked four dollars a month on the time he had worked, because he did not finish his year out.

LORILLARD'S "EUREKA"

SMOKING TOBACCO is an excellent article of granulated Virginia; and forever introduced it is universally admired. It is put up in handsome muslin bags, in which orders for Meerschaum Pipes are daily packed.

LORILLARD'S YACHT CLUB

SMOKING TOBACCO is made of the Choicest leaf grown; it is anti-nervous in its effects, as the Nicotine has been extracted; it leaves no disagreeable taste after smoking; it is very mild, light in color and in weight, but one pound will last as long as 3 of ordinary tobacco. In this manner we have orders every day for first quality Merschaum Pipes. Try it and convince yourself it is all it claims to be, THE FINEST OF ALL.

LORILLARD'S CENTURY CHEWING TOBACCO.—This brand of Fine Cut chewing tobacco has no equal or superior anywhere. It is without doubt the best chewing tobacco in the country.

LORILLARD'S SNUFFS

HAVE BEEN IN GENERAL USE in the United States over 110 years, and still acknowledged "the best" wherever used.

If your country storekeeper does not have these articles for sale, ask him to get them; they are sold by respectable jobbers almost everywhere.

SPEER'S SAMBUCI WINE.

CATAWBA, PORT, GRAPE and P. J. Sherry.

The above Wines are made by Mr. Speer, whose reputation as a wine grower stands pre-eminent. They are well established, and long known by the Medical Profession as the most reliable and valuable wines to be had.

Every family at this season should use

celebrated in Spain and Portugal for its beneficial qualities, highly esteemed by eminent physicians, used in European and American Hospitals and by the first families in Europe and America.

Excellent for weak and debilitated persons, the aged and infirm, improving the appetite and benefitting the ladies and children.

AS A DIURETIC

It imparts a healthy action to the Kidneys, and Urinary Organs, very beneficial in Dropsy, Gout and Rheumatic affections. Also, is pure juice of the Opomto Grape, recommended by Physicians as possessing medical properties superior to California or Imported Wines.

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

THE LATE C. W. BREWSTER.—We add an incident or two to our rambling notes on the Rambler himself:

Among those who since their first appearance with their pens in the Journal, have won more or less of fame, may be named Laighton, Aldrich, Fields, Moses, Nowell, and many others; some or all of whom, no doubt, owe much to the encouragement of the discriminating editor. And to this day, both the Journal and Chronicle receive more original poetical and prose compositions of merit, than most similar papers elsewhere—owing no doubt to the influence so long exerted in this direction by Mr. Brewster.

It is well known that Mr. B. was a man of simple tastes,—economical, and having little regard for display. So that the following generous act was all the more liberal, from the end designed not being congenial to his habits, even if it did not meet his condemnation. One of his apprentices, (our most intimate companion to this day—who even now enjoys spending or investing money far more than hoarding or hiding it away,) had opportunity to buy a gold watch which cost nearly $100, for half the amount, and asked Mr. B. to loan the $50—the boy to leave $1 weekly from his wages until the debt should be paid. He at once assented, and when one-half had been paid, Mr. B. generously gave in the other $25—and by this kind act, the lad was enabled to possess a watch more costly if not extravagant than ever the master himself owned through life. This is what we call true generosity—that bestows and blesses in secret, as well as in public subscriptions and donations; and which will stand the severer test yet, of promoting an object not approved or admired by the giver — like the temperance man, for instance, who bestows charity on a sot, the economist who gives to the needy spend-thrift, or an opponent in politics or religion, aiding his enemies as well as friends. This is indeed charity. F.

THE EXETER DELEGATES to the several Conventions are supposed to be very reliable men. We don't know about their being in favor of Hon. A. H. Cragin's return to the U. S. Senate. We shouldn't wonder if they were not, but we don't care about forestalling such events. One thing we can assert with the full confidence of its truth, i. e., they are in favor of the development of our agricultural and manufacturing resources, and for the enforcement of the laws—relating to intermarriage—especially when their Portsmouth neighbors are at fault. They "go in" for specie payments and women's rights, particularly the latter, and for a liberal and just distribution of the public patronage throughout the country, particularly in the 1st Congressional district and at the Navy Yard. The Chronicle, the clerks at the said Yard and the "ring" masters on the coast will please bear these facts in mind, and not attempt to make any proselytes to their views in this section.—News Letter.

BEST CABINET ORGANS,
AT LOWEST PRICES.
That the MASON & HAMLIN CABINET and METROPOLITAN ORGANS are the best in the world is proved by the almost unanimous opinion of professional musicians, by the award to them of SEVENTY-FIVE GOLD and SILVER MEDALS or other highest premiums, at principal industrial competitions within a few years, including the MEDAL at the PARIS EXPOSITION and by a sale very much greater than that of any similar instruments. This Company manufacture only FIRST-CLASS INSTRUMENTS, and will not make "cheap organs" at any price, or suffer an inferior instrument to bear their name. Having greatly increased their facilities for manufacture by the introduction of new machinery and otherwise, they are now making BETTER ORGANS than EVER BEFORE, at increased economy in cost, which, in accordance with their fixed policy of selling always at least renumerative profit, they are now offering at prices inferior work. FOUR OCTAVE ORGANS, Plain Walnut Case, $50. FIVE OCTAVE ORGANS Double Reed, Solid Walnut Case, carved and panneled, with FIVE STOPS (VIOLA, DIAPASON, MELODIA, FLUTE, TREMULANT), $125. Other styles in proportion.
Circulars with full particulars, including accurate drawings of the different styles of organs, and much information which will be of service to every purchaser of an organ, will be sent free and postage paid, to any one desiring them.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 5, 1870.

Strainings.

The Ohio legislature met on Monday.

The mixed republican and democratic delegation from Cincinnati, elected on a reform ticket, had the balance of power, and gave the democrats the lion's share of honors.

The storm of Saturday night and Sunday did great damage to railroads and other property all the way from Washington to Maine. In Michigan there was a severe snow storm.

Hon. James G. Blaine has been chosen chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Maine for the current year, the twelfth of his service in that position.

Navigation is resumed on the Hudson river.

The western Union Telegraph operators threatens to strike because their pay is reduced.

The statement of the public debt shows a reduction of $4,812,781 92 during last month, and a total reduction since March 1869, of $76,716,306.70.

Forty-two persons were murdered in New York in 1869.

The Boston Post says Mayor Shurtleff's address was 12 or 14 columns long, and that "life is far too short for many such addresses." Portsmouth has a Mayor who might learn Doctor Shurtleff the value of economy and space, we venture to remark.

The American Odd Fellow for January is received. It is greatly enlarged and improved, and reflects credit upon the Order of which it is the official organ. Among its uniformly attractive contents we notice: Conscience Money. an original story; Odd Fellows Gems; Health and Physical Culture; Reminiscences of the Order; &c. Published by John W. Orr, 96 Nassau St. N. Y. $2.50 per year, or $1.25 per vol.

THE SECRET DIVORCE BUSINESS.—The New York Sun says a young lady of Boston was married two years ago to a Mr. Eugene A. Jue, who soon after deserted her, and went abroad. She then returned to her father's in Boston. Lately the recreant husband engaged a notorious divorce lawyer to secure a separation. Five scoundrels were engaged to perjure themselves before Sydney V. Lowell, ex-assistant corporation counsel, the referee appointed by the court, by testifying that Mrs. Jue had committed adultery. When she, who was all this time ignorant of the proceedings, was informed of them, she took measures to have the decree set aside, and the Supreme Court has granted an order requiring the plaintiff to appear and show cause why the decree should not be annulled. Mrs. Jue has made an affidavit that she has never in her life been twelve miles from Boston, excepting when accompanied by her husband to Portsmouth; that she had never visited New York; that she does not know any of the witnesses who testified before the referee against her, and never heard of the decree until recently, when a lawyer in Boston showed her a copy of it.—Boston Adv.

—The trustees of the Third Unitarian Church of New York sent to their pastor, Rev. O. B. Frothingham, on New Year's Day, a letter assuring him that his course in relation to the Richardson marriage, and during the excitement thereby caused, had commended itself to their judgement as in the highest sense manly and Christian, and that the attacks upon him by scandal-loving newspapers, so far from diminishing, had served to augment their esteem for and confidence in him as a religious teacher.

McFarland's trial is postponed till February. It is reported that Richardson's friends have collected important testimony, which will not only prove the utter falsity of much the published habeas corpus testimony, but occasion a re-action in public sentiment.

—Some people don't believe in advertising —says an exchange—because they say "nobody reads the papers." But let them get involved in some scandal, and you will find them flying around to the newspaper offices with the request, "please don't mention that little affair, it's a mistake; I don't want my name published all over the country."

—The County of Rockingham having been indicted for keeping a nuisance, in the shape of a filthy jail, in Portsmouth, the County Commissioners have been summoned into court to hear what they have to say on the subject. It is said to be the first instance where these officers have declined to expend the county's money.—Cor. Boston Adv.

—An "African Blondin" in England has tumbled from his rope into the middle of a crowded pit, and broken the nose of one spectator with his balancing pole, besides severely injuring several others. The performer fortunately fell on a soft gentleman and was not himself hurt.

—A Chicago husband, for spite, cut off the beautiful blonde hair of his wife, as she slept, and can't see her now without ringing his mother-in-law's door-bell.

—Silver is slowly getting into circulation in the western cities.

New Hampshire Items.

The Frenchman named Lanson Higley, quite an aged man, lying upon the track of the Boston and Maine Railroad, who was run over and horribly mutilated by the 3 train from Portland, between Rollinsford and Dover, it appears was intoxicated. He has a brother in Raymond, and his remains were sent there for interment.

The Republican Club of Hampton Falls, chose delegates to the several conventions:—State, Dr. Chas. H. Sanborn, Jno. W. Dodge; Councillor, H. A. Godfrey, E. J. Tilton; Senatorial, Geo. B. Sanborn, E. Janvrin; County, Enoch J. Tilton, H. A. Godfrey.

The Republican Club of Sandown is officered as follows — President Geo. Sanborn; Vice Pres. Smith A. Rowell; Secretary, Frank Hunt; Executive Com., Harrison Sanborn Chairman, Fredk W. Brown, Wesley Flanders, Robt. H. Sanborn, Frank Hunt.—Delegates to the Conventions: — State: George Marston, Wm. B. Sanborn; Substitutes, Robert Sanborn, Frank Hunt. Councillor: Harrison Sanborn, Albert F. Cotton. Senatorial: Fred W. Brown, William J. Moore. County: George Sanborn, Wesley Flanders.

Gilman Farr, of Littleton, died very suddenly on Christmas evening. He ate his supper as usual, pushed back his chair, and soon becoming unconscious, died in less than an hour.

A Mrs. Goodwin, a lady over 90 years of age, was so badly burned in Londonderry, on Saturday, as to cause her death.

Mr. A. S. Brown, the brakeman who was injured at Nashua a short time since, died on the afternoon of Dec. 31st, erysipelas having broken out in the leg which was not fractured.

Mr. Aaron Carr, of Lempster, had his thigh bone broken on Dec. 24th. He was driving a load of hay down hill, when the load was tipped over and he was thrown violently upon some ice.

The engineers on the Concord and Claremont Railroad have finished surveying between Bradford and Claremont.

Mr. Josephus Baldwin, Superintendent of Eaton & Ayer's bobbin works, in Nashua, and Mr. John Merrill, foreman of the blacksmith shop connected therewith, received a cold bath on the 29th, through the giving way of a platform over the river, on which they were standing. They had a narrow escape drowning, but were rescued by one of the workmen.

We learn from the Nashua Telegraph that a platform at the Francestown quarry broke down on the 29th, and two of the workmen, O. Davis and S. Jero, were thereby precipitated to the bottom of the pit, a distance of forty feet, into a pool of water nearly twenty feet deep. They escaped without serious injury, a piece of good fortune attributable to the depth of the water into which they fell. Mr. T. H. Wheelock, the Superintendent, fell part way, but saved himself by clutching projections of rock.

Measures are being taken to form into an association the surviving members of the First Battalion and the First Regiment of New Hampshire Cavalry for the purpose of an annual reunion. Members of either organization are requested to send their views of the matter to Capt. George W. Estabrook, Concord, N. H. The old Battalion and Regiment contained some of the best soldiers and "best fellows" in the cavalry service during the late war, and there is no reason why a good association should not be formed.

Mr. Whitney, landlord of the Cardigan House, at East Canaan, disappeared on noon of Dec. 27th, and was not seen till the following day, when he was discovered in the outskirts of a wood, evidently in a deranged state of mind. He has now partially recovered, though still much indisposed.

A family in Manchester were poisoned on Thursday last by eating some boiled squash at dinner. Some of them were sick for hours, and one through the night. It is thought the squash was poisoned in the field before being gathered.

Mr. John Andrews, of Bradford, a highly esteemed citizen of that town, was found dead about 4 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, near a pile of logs by the side of the pond, three-fourths of a mile above the village. He was engaged in drawing logs from the woods about half a mile from the pond. It is supposed the skids or binding pole struck him when he unloaded the last log, which was in position on the pile of logs. He was 66 years of age, and leaves a wife and six children.

The storm was violent in all sections of the State, and the ice broke upon the Connecticut as far North as Lancaster. It was thought next morning that the ice in the Lake would break up in consequence of the flood of water.

—Four prominent English magazines are edited by women.

New Hampshire Items.

A gravel train on the Suncook Valley Railroad got off the track near Buck St., Monday morning, and the fireman, named John Nolan, was fatally injured, and the conductor, engineer, and two other persons were more or less injured. The accident was occasioned by a wash-out under the frozen surface of the ground. The engine went down six feet.

On Sunday, at the State House in Concord, the large circular window in the west end was blown out and smashed into a myriad of pieces, on the pavement below, window sash and glass. It must have been blown at least fifty feet in a tangent line. It is supposed that it was forced out by a current of air conveyed in the air boxes used for ventilating the building. We hear of no other damage of consequence.

N. H. STATE MUSICAL FESTIVAL.—The Seventh Annual Session will be held in Eagle Hall, Concord, and continue four days, commencing Monday evening, Jan. 10th. Conductor L. O. Emerson. Soloists, Mrs. Weston, Miss Barton, Mrs. Shepard, Mr. Barnabee, — and others with the Listemann Quartette Club,—a new organization of German artists, reputed to be the finest in the country. Works to be used, the "Choral Tribute," and the "Sabbath Guest," a new collection of brilliant Anthems and Choruses, by L. O. Emerson and J. H. Morey. Three grand concerts will be given on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, members tickets admitting to all Exercises and Concerts, $1. The customary reduction of fare will be made on Railroads and at the Hotels to persons attending the Festival. A cordial invitation is extended to all lovers and patrons of music, by the managers, B. B. Davis, John Jackman, J. H. Morey, Concord AGENTS WANTED —FOR— THE PHYSICAL LIFE OF WOMEN. (Fifth Edition. Tenth Thousand now Ready.) BY GEO. H. NAPHEYS, M. D.

The most remarkable success of the day. Is selling with unprecedented rapidity. It contains what every Man and Woman ought to know, and few do. It will save much suffering. It required a brave and pure Man to write upon "The Right Time to marry," "The Wedding Night," "The Limitation of Offspring," and yet receive the decided approval of our best Divines and Physicians. Being eagerly sought for, the Agent's work is easy. Send stamp for pamphlet, etc., to GEO. MACLEAN, Publisher, 3 School St., Boston, Mass. 4wja5 Or 719 Sansom Street, Phila. Penn.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.

Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principles, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case with a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S LIVER AND STOMACH LOZENGE

is the most important medicinal novelty that modern chemistry has produced. It contains two botanical extracts, perfectly harmless in themselves, but embodying all the remedial properties of mercury, and destined in this pleasant form to supersede and banish from general use, the nauseous pills and portions of which that dangerous excitant is the main ingredient. More than One thousand experiments were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative constituents has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feeble sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitely more effective than any of the hideous and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

MERIT SOON NOISED ABROAD.

It is but six years since ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, was first offered for sale. Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near; now it is sold in nearly every Drug Store in the United States—NORTH, EAST, SOUTH AND WEST. No similar medicine stands higher with the people. It is well known on the Pacific coast, and liberal demands for it from San Francisco, Sacramento in California, and Portland, Oregon, and in Australia, large orders are received for it. And throughout Canada, it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.

Read what Captain Foster writes:

PORT BURWELL, March 23d, 1869.

Messrs. PERRY DAVIS & SON,

Sirs:—I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM; having been troubled with a cough for several years past, the Balsam was recommended to me. I immediately procured it, and found it to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results.

Yours Very Truly,

Capt. D. FOSTER.

Capt. FOSTER is a ship owner and builder, residing at Port Burwell, Canada.

Sold by PERRY DAVIS & SON, n2 GENERAL AGENTS.

Comfort and Bliss or Pain and Agony.

DR. TOBIAS' CELEBRATED VENETIAN LINIMENT, whose wonderful cures, sure and instaneous action, in cases of Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Croup, Cuts, Burns, Colic, Cramps, Dysentery, etc., have astonished the civilized world, is no new catch-penny; but an article that has stood the test of twenty-two years. The enormous sale and rapidly increasing demand is at once the surest evidence of its usefulness and popularity. No family should be without a bottle in the house. Hundreds of dollars and many hours of suffering may be saved by its timely use.

Colic, Cramp, and Dysentery yield at once to its paincutting properties. It is perfectly innocent, and can be given to the oldest person or youngest child. No matter if you have no confidence in Patent Medicines—try this, and you will be sure to buy again, and recommend to your friends. Hundreds of Physicians recommend it in their practice.

Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers. Price Fifty Cents and One Dollar. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. o1

FRIGHTFUL DEVELOPMENTS!

At last the people have got the fact "through their hair," that hair dyes impregnated with acetate of lead and other metallic salts are MURDEROUS PREPARATIONS.

When they see the metallic sediment at the bottom of the bottles, they know that the disgusting stuff is literally thickened with Poison. They ask therefore, for a Harmless Vegetable Dye, and find it, pure and efficacious, in Grisinder's Excelsior Hair Dye offered under the sanction of Professor Chilton's guarantee that it contains "nothing deleterious." CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE, as a Dressing, acts like a charm on the Hair after Dyeing. Try it. 1md&wo4

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—PILES.—Do not suppose that every form of this complaint is incurable. The worst hemorrhoidal cases are not beyond the remedial reach of HOLLOWAY'SOINTMENT. It gives tone to the relaxed integuments and acts as a sale styptic in the bleeding type of the disorder. Not unfrequently constipation is an accompaniment of the disease and when this happens, it should be relieved with small doses of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. Sold by all Druggists.

ACROSTIC.

Pain Killer is worth what it weighs, in gold,
All around the world are its praises told;
It will Cholera cure—scourge of southern climes,
No victim dies, who takes it betimes.
Keep Pain Killer—a true friend by your side,
It will cure Cough or Cold, or Colic beside;
Look out to apply it for Bruise or for Sprain,
Let it once be tried—twill be used again;
Every word I am telling you, dear reader, is true,
Remember that Pain Killer is good for you.

The Pain Killer is sold by all Druggists and dealers in Family Medicines.

CONSUMPTION.

The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.

"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion.

"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, o Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ an healthy tone, and cure Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as here explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.

Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. d3d1m.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 25 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—No matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under any medical care, notorious QUACKS—native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life.

Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

In Remote Settlements of Untold Value.

Food makes blood; blood makes the body. If the blood be pure, the body is healthy. So if we are not in health, we know some impurities are lurking about, which must be removed, and the sooner the better.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS remove all from the system which nature needs no longer.

The wonderful cures effected by Brandreth's Pills have arrested the attention of enlightened physicians. Upwards of five thousand now use them in their daily practice, and two hundred have given their written testimony as to their innocence and value, as cleansers of the bowels and blood. Their untold value is to those living in settlements where doctors can only be had at great expense. For if you are sick, you have only to take one or more doses of Brandreth's Pills to get cured. Full Directions are with each box. Sold by all Druggists.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.

This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world; the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautifully black or brown. ☞ We learn that P. G. R. John L. Spring, I. O. of O. F., of Milford, N. H., will on Monday evening next, deliver at the Temple, a Lecture on his trip to and in California, as Representative to the Grand Lodge. It is said to be of great interest to the Order.

KATE REIGNOLDS' FAREWELL.—Our citizens have a rare opportunity of seeing a performance, this evening, at the Temple, of a first-class Comedy Company. Miss Reignolds makes her parting bow to her many patrons here in her specialty of Richelieu at Sixteen, which is universally commended by the press, elsewhere, as her finest impersonation. Miss Reignolds is well supported by the Boston Comedy Company.

Miss Emma Reignolds, the piquant Comedienne, whose first appearance here was so acceptable to all who witnessed her representations, is advertised as "Kathleen" in "Rory O'Moore" —and that's enough to draw a large audience without our urging. Curtain rises at 7:30.

☞ The Sunset of New Year's Eve was beautiful as September—a happy presage; the soft, warm tinting of the western sky being lovely in the dying year, as the shades of the death-struck dolphin.

And students of the heavens, at midnight last Sunday or early on the morning of Monday, saw another sight, of still greater beauty and more rarity, —when the whole face of the sky was illumined with the most gorgeous display of the Aurora Borealis that we have ever witnessed. From three o'clock or earlier, until daylight, the whole heavens were lighted up with the electric flashes—the corruscations extending almost the entire circuit of the horizon—while from the zenith, apparently, emanated the most brilliant scintillations of red, blue and yellow flame—in rainbow tints magnificent beyond description. At times there was the exact appearance of red coral mountains or crags, and many citizens were alarmed, thinking there was fire, before looking out upon the never-to-beforgotten spectacle.

Every tenth year, the astronomers state, the magnetic fires and magnetic storms are unusually powerful; and this is the periodical year.

ORGANIZATION OF THE CITY GOVERNMENT. — The Board of Aldermen adopted the rules of 1867, and a resolution to ascertain if Fleet Street had been legally widened.

The Common Council was called to order by the Clerk. Israel P. Miller of Ward One was chosen President pro tem. On motion of Mr. Plaisted, the Board of Mayor and Aldermen were notified that the Council had temporarily organized and were ready to be qualified.

Both Boards met in convention, and the City Clerk read the record of votes for Mayor in November. Joseph B. Adams had 965; Frank Jones, 596; Edward S. Ryder, 1. The City Clerk then administered the oath of office to Mayor Adams; who in turn administered the oath to the members of both Boards, all being present except Alderman Clark of Ward Three. The convention then rose.

The Council proceeded to the choice of a President for the ensuing year, on motion of Mr. Marden, and Chas. E. Plaisted of Ward Two was elected, receiving 10 votes to 1 for John T. French. Maj. Plaisted acknowledged the honor in a brief speech. Henry A. Yeaton was unanimously re-elected Clerk, receiving 11 votes; and took the oath of office.

In Convention again, — Marcellus Bufford received 17 votes for City Clerk; and Henry A. Yeaton 1. Mr Bufford took the required oath of office. Prayer was offered by Rev. L. L. Harmon, after which Mayor Adams delivered his inaugural address, which we publish on the fourth page; it is a document worthy of perusal by all our tax-payers.

The convention then rose. The Council voted to adopt the rules of last year, and adjourned to Thursday evening.

THE MAINE RAID ON THE NAVY YARD CLERKS.—Who prepared the New Year bombshell which created such havoc, we do not know, but as the gentlemen who are discharged vote the Republican ticket regularly, and their only offense is that they live in the State of New Hampshire, it is to be supposed that the Maine politicians, who are so eager to absorb all the appointments possible, from Master Mechanics to Writers, have made a grand onward movement regardless of consequences.

The thing is done. The valiant men of the east have captured emoluments amounting to $3300 per year. Their victims are Republicans from a foreign shore, and one of them chances to be a soldier whose war record is a good one —a young man whose faithful service deserves better treatment. But the momentous question "has Maine sufficient patronage," must be satisfactorily settled, and the soldier must give way, for he has no rights that Maine politicians are bound to respect.

☞ For the second time, the publishers of this paper are arraigned for libel, though this time in criminal, and not civil suit for damages,—as before reported. It is not our custom to attempt to prejudge cases pending in Court, or to bias public opinion as to the same; but we assure our friends that we have no fears in the matter, but that the result will show we have not acted unadvisably or culpably. We believe it is not now improper for us to say, that in publishing Mr. Scammon's advertisement, we had no unkind feelings towards Mr. Hatch. We never believed or intimated that he had committed a forgery, nor did nor do we understand that the advertisement charged him with forgery, or doing anything wrong, except obtaining judgment without notice to Scammon, upon a disputed claim. — and even that Mr. H. now shows to be false.

☞ Mr. John Senter, while passing between his store and house on Austin St. Tuesday evening, was seized by a man unknown, who succeeded in getting his pocket-book containing $57 from his breast pocket.

☞ Mr. Albee not appearing with his Farm lecture for the Lyceum Tuesday evening—being absent in Mass.; Rev. Mr. DeNormandie proved an excellent substitute, with an essay on the American Idea in Education.

☞ A barque of 500 tons was successfully launched from the yard of Tobey & Littlefield on Tuesday.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

MAYOR ADAMS' ADDRESS.

Gentlemen of the City Council:—We have to-day taken upon ourselves the responsibility of managing the Municipal affairs of our city for the ensuing year, and our fellow citizens who have invested us with the authority, reasonably expect us to watch carefully over the interest of the city, and to devote our time and energies to its prosperity.

Most of you have had experience in conducting the Municipal business, the past year, and are well aware of the responsibility of the trust committed to you. To those who now for the first time occupy places in the City Government, it would say, that the duties of your positions will necessarily employ much of your time; but in accepting our several stations we all engage to use our best endeavors to promote the public welfare, and to shrink from no sacrifice that the public service may require of us.

One of our earliest duties will be to consider the financial condition of the city and to make arrangements for raising the means to defray the current expenses of the year. In doing this we should strive to reduce the public taxes, so far as it can be done without injury to the public interest.

Our city debt on the first day of January, 1870, amounted to $156,000, being a reduction of about $50,000 in the past three years. $15,000 of the debt became due last year, for which no appropriation was made, and that amount will have to be provided for in addition to $5100 becoming due this year.

The greater part of this debt was incurred in doing our proportion of the work of putting down a gigantic rebellion against the government and laws of our country, and if the amount bears heavily, and will for years bear heavily upon the shoulders of the tax-payers, we must attribute to those who planned and perpetrated the crime and those who encouraged them in it, the burdens which it brought upon us.

You will hardly expect me, upon first entering upon the office of Mayor, to be prepared to make many special recommendations in any Department of the municipal administration. In general, I desire to record my earnest determination to have the affairs of the city conducted honestly, and with the strictest economy.

In the police department, upon the efficiency of which our comfort and security so largely depend, I would advise that none but honest and capable persons be employed. It is well understood that it is in the power of these officers, if disposed to be corrupt, to wink at many violations of the laws and city ordinances, to gratify their friends or to put money in their pockets. Such conduct tends directly to diminish the respect for the laws and to encourage crime. No man should be allowed in a position to exercise such power, who is not known to be reliable and strictly trustworthy.

Your Fire Department, I understand, is in excellent order, well organized and well conducted. It is upon a competent and well organized Fire Department that the citizens depend for protection from the devouring element, and it will be your duty to see that its efficiency is not injured through any lack of a proper appropriation for this purpose. You are well aware that our facilities for obtaining a supply of water in case of fire are very limited. I would recommend that one or more Reservoirs be built the present year.

I have been informed that our public schools are in excellent condition, and will compare favorably with the same grade of schools anywhere in New England. I trust they will continue to have that support which they are entitled to at your hands. No purpose for which money is expended so well repays the outlay as that expended in the education of our young, and we cannot too highly estimate the benefits and blessings of our public schools.

You will, I am sure, agree with me that the unfortunate persons who are dependent upon the public for their support, should be in all respects suitably and comfortably provided for. And it is well known that the prices of most of the necessaries of life have largely increased within the past ten years, yet I cannot but believe that the increased expense of maintaining the poor at our City Almshouse has far exceeded the amount which the advance in such prices would warrant.

If I am correctly informed, the average cost per week of supporting each pauper at the Almshouse, is in addition to the produce of the farm, has been as follows:

For 5 years, from 1860 to 1864, inclusive, 84cts.

For 4 3-4 years, ending Sept. 30th, 1869, $2.01

It seems very clear that this very great increase of expense cannot be accounted for by enhancement of prices, for within the past four years it is well known that the cost of many staple articles of food has decreased.

It is apparent there must be either some unfaithfulness in the management or same fault in the system, to bring the expenses so far above those of similar institutions elsewhere. I invite your attention to this matter in order that it may be fully examined, and such remedy applied to the existing evil as may be found necessary.

The County Almshouse has relieved us of a large portion of those who have heretofore been supported at the city farm, but twenty-three now remaining. It is thought by many that it would be for the interest of the city to dispose of the farm, and that the income of the money would support our poor. I am not prepared to make any recommendations on this subject at this time, but hope you will give the matter your serious consideration.

You will have before you the various reports of the City affairs, which I recommend you carefully to examine; and such matters as occur to myself which concern the public interest and require your attention, I will, from time to time, present to your notice.

I beg to receive suggestions from all quarters, of any mistakes to be rectified or any improvements to be made, that will tend to promote the welfare of our people or the prosperity of the city.

In point of natural advantages, of substantial wealth, and the character and intelligence of its population, Portsmouth will compare favorably with cities of its size the country over. Nature has given us a commodious harbor and a healthful location, we have artificial means of communication along the seaboard and with the interior, and a long course of industry and economy has rendered our people wealthy and prosperous. Our Schools and public institutions are well supported and ample; our streets and sidewalks are generally well built, lighted and drained; our taxes though high, are not oppressively burdensome, and are being gradually lightened. No great public expenditure, so far as we can foresee, is likely to come upon us, at an early day.

With these advantages, and with a municipal government economically conducted, there seems no reason why our city should not make rapid advancement in the future, if our people are not blind to their true interest. Let us take a lesson from a neighboring city, whose natural advantages are little if at all superior to our own, which twenty years ago was only abreast of us, but which of late has outstripped most of her eastern competitors in the race of progress. What is the secret of the advancement of Portland?

It is to found, I believe, mainly in the enterprise of her business and wealthy citizens. Instead of sitting down contented with what they have acquired, they are willing to risk their gains in projects for the improvement of the business and commerce of the city, to develop its manufactures, its trade, its shipping interest, its system of railway communication. The capital of Portland is mainly invested at home, in everything that contributes to her prosperity and improvement.

In order to make our own city what it ought to be, to add to its trade, manufactures and commerce, it only needs that our men of means should adopt the same measures. Let the surplus wealth of our people be employed in developing our own resources, in adding to our communications with other parts of the country, in introducing new manufactures, and we should soon experience the benefits of the change, in the increase of population, business and wealth. A general spirit of enterprise in our people is alone wanting to restore Portsmouth to the place which she so long held, at the head of the towns of New Hampshire.

LORILLARD'S "EUREKA"

SMOKING TOBACCO is an excellent article of granulated Virginia; wherever introduced it is universally admired. It is put up in hands-ome packages, and in which orders for Meerschaum Pipes are daily packed.

LORILLARD'S YACHT CLUB

SMOKING TOBACCO is made of the Choicest leaf grown; it is anti-nervous in its effects, as the Nicotine has been extracted; it leaves no disagreeable taste after smoking; it is very mild, light in color and in weight, hence one pound will last as long as 2 lbs. of ordinary tobacco. In this brand we also pack orders every day for first quality Meerschaum Pipes. Try it and convince yourself it is all it claims to be, THE FINEST OF ALL.

LORILLARD'S CENTURY

CHEWING TOBACCO.—This brand of Fine Cut chewing tobacco has no equal or superior anywhere. It is without doubt the best chewing tobacco in the country.

LORILLARD'S SNUFFS

HAVE BEEN IN GENERAL USE in the United States over 110 years, and still acknowledged "the best" wherever used.

If your storekeeper does not have these articles for sale, ask him to get them; they are sold by respectable jobbers almost everywhere.

ESTHER HOSMER.

More than ten times the white snow-falls
Have shrouded her low bed,
More than ten times our brown autumns
Their dying leaves have shed
O'er the spot where she is sleeping,
All peacefully at rest,
With her pale hands meekly folded
Upon her marble breast.

More than ten times the bright summers
Have come and passed away,
They have brought us griefs and changes
And many a fevered day.
We have missed her, O how sadly,
The truest and the best!
Whom our Father called so early
To the mansions of his rest.

More than ten times the bright summers
Have come and trod their round;
What has she missed whose presence
With us they never found?
What does she do in heaven?
We ask in vain in tears,
Death is the voiceless warder
Who keeps the hidden years!

Shall I see her as I saw her,
With her dark blue loving eyes?
Will she wear her maiden presence
Midst the glories of the skies?
Will she learn me from her wisdom,
She whose life was holy here?—
Questions Death alone will answer
In the new and hidden sphere.
MARTHA REMICK.

ABOUT GRAPES.—The present season was quite a favorable one for grapes in Eastern Massachusetts, and we trust it has been generally favorable throughout the grape-growing region of the country. We have fruited this year about thirty varieties, embracing all those which have had any special claims to attention among grape growers, in this cold latitude. The growth, quality, and time of maturity and ripening of each have been carefully noted, not only this year, but for several years, and we are now ready to declare our preferences and also give reason for entertaining those we have.

Out of the thirty varieties, there are but ten which are worthy of special attention from growers in this locality. They are the Concord, Delaware, Hartford, Prolific, Adirondack, Diana, Rebecca, Allen's Hybrid, Iona, Israella. All but one of these have been perfectly ripened in our vineyard at Lakeside the present autumn, and that is the Iona. This grape will not do for Massachusetts. It is too tender and too late, and besides, it does not ripen evenly. Upon each bunch a few berries have ripened quite well, while the remainder were entirely unfit for eating. It is evidently an excellent grape, beautiful in form, color, and in the grouping of the berries upon the stem. It appears to be a good bearer, and the vine is nearly as hardy as the Rebecca. The fruit when ripe resembles the best foreign varieties. We think this grape, when grown in the Middle and Southern States, will prove to be a great favorite.

The best, the most delicious grape that can be grown in the open air is the Delaware. We do not believe that by any process of hybridising, or by growth from seed, a better grape will ever be produced suited to northern climates. Indeed, do we need or want a better grape? If we can grow this splendid fruit in all its perfection here, let us accept the boon in thankfulness, and not complain that we are unable to do better. The Delaware is a first-class grape; it is sufficiently hardy, it is a generous and constant bearer, it is not liable to mildew, it ripens well eight years out of ten, it is a small grape, and the berries cling firmly to the stem. These are certainly strong recommendations, and before we consign such fruit to neglect or forgetfulness, let us be sure we have a better one.

The Concord must long remain a standard fruit for vineyard culture. It is not as good as the Delaware, but it is perfectly hardy, a good bearer, thrives on weak silicious soils, and does not fall from the stem. We are thankful for the Concord. Bushel after bushel of the fruit has disappeared in our family during the present autumn, while surrounded by an abundance of other and more highly vaunted varieties.

The Adirondacks and Israellas are good and early grapes. They are worthy the attention of cultivators, if the vines are sold at prices no higher than Delawares or Concords. It is high time the deceptions practised by vine-raisers and nurserymen ceased. The new varieties recommended and sold at enormously high prices, have not, in most cases, proved as good as old varieties. We advise our readers to cling to our long-tried good grapes, and pay no attention to the statements of interested parties regarding new kinds, which they offer at high prices. Fortunes are made by speculators in vines, plants, seeds, etc., while there is no improvement found in the growth or quality of the plants or grains.—Jour. Chemistry.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

Scarlet fever has been raging for several weeks in Ossipee Centre and vicinity. On "the Mountain" it has been very malignant, and in several cases fatal. In other localities there have been some severe cases, but usually the disease has been of a mild type. In the single school district at the Centre, there have been nearly twenty cases and one death.

Wagons were rattling along the highways in Wolfeborough, Dec. 29th, the same as in October. It is the opinion of farmers that grass roots must suffer.

Frank J. Green of Wolfeborough has raised six hogs, whose aggregate weight, it is estimated, will reach 4000 pounds, averaging nearly 700 pounds each. They are of the Chester breed.

The Wolfeborough News says the Claremont N. H. Register is not accurate as to that vicinity.

Correspondence Chronicle and Gazette.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.

The old year died gracefully,—not a struggle, not a blister, only a slight wail of the night wind through the leafless branches of the old trees on the Common over whose heads the suns of so many winters and summers have risen and set. With the temperature of a fine October day, the old year passed away, and the new year has already begun in the mildest manner. The sleighing carnival which enlivened the Brighton Road nearly a month since seems among the things that were long ago; not a particle of snow in the principal streets, fine walking at every point in the city, and a temperature wonderfully mild for this season in New England.

The business changes are unusually numerous in Boston just now, but the predicted failures are even less in number than in average seasons. The policy of anticipating a financial crash by cautious dealing has been aptly proved by the success of Boston merchants in avoiding commercial disaster during the late unsettled state of the money market.

Unthinking persons have given credence and circulation to rumors as to failures of certain well-known houses, much to their embarrassment in many cases. The report of the failure of one of our largest retail dealers a few days since, brought a rush of creditors with their demands, one of whom was so much frightened as to readily accede to a proposal to settle for fifty cents on the dollar, but was very much surprised when a check for every cent due him was filled out.

The Eastern Railroad Co. seem to be ever busy improving their road and stock. Our city papers, in noticing the completion of a new engine at South Boston, say: "The Eastern Railroad Co. have more first-class locomotives on their road, than can be found on any other of the same length. And this is owing to the fact that their works are not only admirably arranged, but are superintended by one of the most experienced and ingenious machinists in the country.

The 'Hamlet' is a model of beauty and strength,—the embodiment of all the valuable modern improvements, and works as smoothly and uniformly as a chronometer. It is 30 tons weight with an iron tender, which contains a water-tank of 1900 gallons capacity and ample space for fuel. The driving wheels are 5 feet in diameter and the trucks in proportion; the cylinders are 14 inches in diameter with 22 inches stroke, cased in brass, polished smooth as a mirror. The boiler is cased in sheet iron hooped with brass; the steam dome and sand box are also finished with burnished brass. The slides, crank-pins and tires are steel, and these as well as all the working metal are smooth and bright.

It has Mr. John Thompson's patent extension of the smoke arch, Mr. Adam's patent frictionless valve, a Giffard's injector on the right side, placed about two-thirds up the boiler and one foot in advance of the cab. It is designed to supply the boiler with water when the engine is at rest. The cab has plate glass windows, and is splendidly painted, grained, enamelled, bronzed and gilded, and is conveniently arranged inside. The name in ornamental letters is conspicuous on both engine and tender, and the name of the talented builder, John Thompson, is engraved on a circular enclosure between the wheels. Every detail is as nearly perfect as possible, and the whole reflects the highest credit on all who have been employed in its production.

Mr. Thompson has another new locomotive of the same size in hand, which will soon be completed; and add to his fame as a first-class master mechanic.

I wish to demolish "Pakeha's" articles on "Popular Delusions," or rather that portion of it relating to the ventilation of sleeping rooms, but fear that it is hardly long enough since he wrote it for him to have forgotten what he then indited, and don't wish to be prosecuted for libel. In one place he says:

"Pure air, if warm, is doubtless better than impure, for breathing, but that frigid rooms with open windows are more healthy to sleep in than warm ones,—even if the air in the latter is not quite so pure,—is not yet satisfactorily demonstrated; and while any doubt exists on the subject, many people will follow the example of all animals, and try to keep warm even at the expense of ventilation."

Why doesn't he follow out his parallel? Most animals sleep without artificial covering,—no blankets, sheets, or coverlids; the nearest approach of which I am personally cognizant to this human habit of sleeping under a mass of borrowed covering is shown by the hairless Mexican dogs which on the occurence of a "norther" scramble into a fire-place and scratch upon themselves a quantity of the warm ashes, their leaden color being admirably calculated to permit them to indulge in this cleanly habit.

That a well-ventilated room must of necessity be cold is the sheerest assumption of those unacquainted with the matter, as every person who has ever given any attention to the subject knows that heat and the draft consequent thereon are the most efficient aids to promoting a proper circulation of air. The air in a room of the same low temperature as that out-of-doors is changed very slowly, even though the window be open; but light a fire in the same room, and the rarefied air will be rapidly displaced by the pure and more dense air from outside. By all means let us be comfortable, but at the same time give us air.

It is reported here that the building of a first-class hotel, with elegant brownstone or marble front will this season be commenced in Portsmouth. M.

☞ The funeral train that is to convey the remains of the late George Peabody from Portland to Peabody, Mass., is now being prepared at the car shop of the Eastern Railroad in Salem. It will consist of three of the fines cars of the road and a baggage car. The cars have been elegantly fitted up and adorned with the English and American flags. The fine locomotive "George Peabody" will be used to draw this train from Portsmouth, and for this purpose it will be draped as far as consistent with safety, as the danger from sparks is considerable. The employes of the rain will be dressed in keeping with the occasion.

HORSE AT AUCTION.

WILL BE SOLD on Saturday, Jan. 8, at 11 o'clock A. M. at M. T. BETTON'S & Co., one Large Black WORK HORSE—

M. T. BETTON & CO., Auctioneers.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE is beyond question the Oldest Newspaper in America; having been started in 1756, in Portsmouth, by DANIEL FOWLE, who was the first Printer in the State,—and has been published here regularly and continuously ever since. The wooden building now standing on Pleasant street in this city, at the junction with Washington and Howard streets, is the same structure which was the first printing office in New Hampshire.

Before reading the Gazette, subscribers will find it greatly to their convenience to cut the leaves and stitch or pin the back—especially those who wish to preserve the paper. Then, instead of being at all troublesome, the quarto form will be found the most convenient and satisfactory, as it has proved wherever tried.

We wish to make arrangements for an Agent and Correspondent in every town in Rockingham County; also in the nearer portions of Strafford and York Counties, and elsewhere,—and Postmasters, Town Clerks and others who will serve us in this way, will find their pains duly appreciated and liberally repaid. Among other things, we wish a complete list of Marriages, Births, and Deaths, Fires, Accidents, &c., with other matters of local interest in each town.

☞ We invite our friends throughout the City, County and State, to communicate to us any matters of local or general interest which may transpire in their vicinity. No notice will be taken of anonymous communications.

CONSUMPTION.

The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.

"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion.

"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ an healthy tone, and cure Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.

Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. d3dlm.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—No matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under any one of the notorious QUACKS—native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life.

Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

In Remote Settlements of Untold Value.

Food makes blood; blood makes the body. If the blood be pure, the body is healthy. So if we are not in health, we know some impurities are lurking about, which must be removed, and the sooner the better.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS remove all from the system which nature needs no longer.

The wonderful cures effected by Brandreth's Pills have arrested the attention of enlightened physicians. Upwards of five thousand now use them in their daily practice, and two hundred have given their written testimony as to their innocence and value, as cleansers of the bowels and blood. Their untold value is to those living in settlements where doctors can only be had at great expense. For if you are sick, you have only to take one or more doses of Brandreth's Pills to get cured. Full Directions are with each box.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that injudicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a fever patient. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with a extraordinary tonic property. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.

Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principle, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this medicinal corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a nauseating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative properties has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the female sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopoeia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE.—CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

MERIT SOON NOISED ABROAD.

It is but six years since ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, was first offered for sale. Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near; now it is sold in nearly every Drug Store in the United States—NORTH, EAST, SOUTH and WEST. No similar medicine stands higher with the people. It is well known on the Pacific coast, and liberal demands for it from San Francisco, Sacramento in California, and Portland, Oregon; even from Australia, large orders are received for it. And throughout Canada, it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.

Read what Captain Foster writes:

PORT BURWELL, March 23d, 1869.

Messrs. PERRY DAVIS & SON,

Sirs:—I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM; having been troubled with a cough for several years past, the Balsam was recommended to me. I immediately procured it, and found it to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results.

Yours Very Truly,

Capt. D. FOSTER.

Comfort and Bliss or Pain and Agony.

DR. TOBIAS' CELEBRATED VENETIAN LINIMENT, whose wonderful cures, sure and instaneous action, in cases of Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Croup, Cuts, Burns, Colic, Cramps, Dysentery, etc., have astonished the civilized world, is no new catch-penny; but an article that has stood the test of twenty-two years, and the increasing and unprecedently increasing demand is at once the surest evidence of its usefulness and popularity. No family should be without a bottle in the house. Hundreds of dollars and many hours of suffering may be saved by its timely use.

Colic, Cramp, and Dysentery yield at once to its paincurative properties. It is perfectly innocent, and can be given to the oldest person or youngest child. No matter if you have no confidence in Patent Medicines, go, try this, and then be sure to buy again, and recommend to your friends. Hundreds of Physicians recommend it in their practice.

Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers. Price Fifty Cents and One Dollar. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. o1

FRIGHTFUL DEVELOPMENTS!

At last the people have got the fact "through their hair," that hair dyes impregnated with acetate of lead and other metallic salts are

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

THRICE ROBBED.—Mr. John Senter, who keeps a small grocery and variety store on Summer Street, near Austin, is well known as a quiet and inoffensive old gentleman,—a man small in stature and quite deaf. His little shop is located in the same enclosure with his house, but fronts and is entered on another street. Three times within about as many years, has he been robbed. The first, his store was broken into, and candy, groceries and other contents carried off. Then a year or two since, a fellow went in one evening, and called for a glass of beer; and while Mr. Senter was stooping down behind the counter to draw it, his customer turned off the gas, reached over the counter, cleared the till of $10 or $15 in bills, and ran off before the astonished dealer could collect himself.

Now on Tuesday evening, Mr. S. fastened his street door, put out his lights, and had just passed out of the rear door of his shop into his yard, to go to his house, when suddenly somebody's arms were flung about him from behind,—which at first he thought to be his wife, until presently a man's whiskers touched his face; and directly his assailant was gone, after fumbling about his breast—and presently he found his pocket-book was gone too, and the contents, about $57.

☞ The P. S. & P. R. R. transported 226,000 passengers in and out of this city last year, an increase of 20,000 over year previous.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

THE WRITHING OF THE SERPENT.—Messrs. Editors:—That the shaft aimed by your correspondent at "a public nuisance," fairly hit the mark, could in no manner be more conclusively proved, than by the contortions which the copperhead editor cannot hide from the public gaze. In the column through which he wriggles, emitting slime and venom along his trail, there is not even a pretence to disprove or deny any of my statements; but, on the contrary, he verifies the justice of my remarks on the character of his sheet, by a tirade of ribald slang and personal invective, such as it would be supposed only habitues of the lowest stews could use so glibly.

His remarks about cowardice and bush-fighting are simply ridiculous, as it is well known that many of the leading political and literary newspapers, magazines and reviews are filled almost exclusively by anonymous writers. The signing of a name to my communication, would neither have increased or lessened the force of its statements; and from the manner in which the editor treats the imaginary author, some idea may be formed of what might have been my fate had he been sure of his mark. He must excuse me for declining to come out and fight like a man with the weapons he wields: we don't know the trick of them.

The chief reliance of the paper for support, as all know, is upon its advertisers, and a glance at its columns will satisfy any one that at least half of this support is derived from Republicans. It was this patronage the withdrawal which I intended to recommend; the conclusion of the sentence, about not reading it, being an interpolation of the printer, as my manuscript will show.* My communication proves me to be at least an occasional reader of the sheet, and I was not guilty of the apparent inconsistency which makes his only point. I must be excused from pleading to the charge of stealing the thing, until I am placed on trial.

Pardon me, Messrs. Editors, for occupying so much of your space with so obnoxious a subject, which I here dismiss. "Shoo, fly! don't bother me."

MENTOR.

[*Note.—Our correspondent is right,—the sentence was marked in by us, but should have been added as a * note below, like this, only for lack of time. If no Republican ever looked at the paper—as many never have nor will do, (and we very rarely see it ourself,)—the thing would lose much of its zest, at any rate, and fail of the chief object for which it was started, viz., to blackguard this Chronicle and all prominent Republicans. But the direct contributions of rich members of the Opposition party, have done more for their organ here for many a year, than the little advertising of all sorts it ever had or ever will gather. For instance, ten leading men of that party whom we can name, furnished a $1000 press for the new concern; and one of them is a certain lawyer, who while (we are sometimes told) this concern reeks with ribald lies about us, is very tender of having his corns trod on in the Chronicle.— Ed. Chronicle.] F.

NAVAL.—U. S. S. Plymouth has been ordered to this Naval Station for repairs. The Plymouth is now convoying the British steamer Monarch to this country with the remains of the late George Peabody.

☞ Mr. M. H. Wentworth of this city, with his sister and daughter, and Mr. Geo. Wentworth, (who has partially recovered from his recent severe illness in Paris,) are spending the winter in Italy.

Dr. Richter and wife we hear are soon to journey in Europe.

☞ The young ladies of the Girls' High School made glad their teachers' hearts at the close of the old year, by presenting a beautiful set of silver knives to Mr. Aurin M. Payson, and an elegant copy of Burns' poems to Miss Arabella C. Morgan. At the Boys' School Mr. Smith was presented with a gold pen and pencil and Mr. Clark was remembered with a breakfast castor.

These annually recurring memorials speak well for the good feeling existing between the scholars and their teachers.

☞ An advocate of the City Farm, thinks Mayor Adams' estimate, of the cost of paupers' board, is not correct; or at any rate that the whole condition of things is not shown in his statement. He says the expenses of the insane poor at the Farm and elsewhere, and of the poor relieved out of the House, are all included in the Overseers' Report; and that the cost per week for the last year is certainly not so high as the average cost given.

☞ It is a little singular that both the new Summer and Fleet Street extension, which were ordered by the Board of Aldermen last year, and the year previous, should be decided by the Mayor's signature,—four Aldermen only, one-half the Board, voting for each, and his casting vote deciding the matter in both cases. And more strange still, that the Mayor and the two Democratic Aldermen, (all the "Retrenchment" members of the Board) should record their votes in favor of Fleet Street.

Now we are in favor of this Street being made passable, and only allude to the matter to show the folly of that cry of retrenchment on the side of the Opposition and the absurdity of their charge of extravagance on the Republicans. We don't know who has better right than ex-Mayor Jones to vote for new roads, seeing he pays about the largest tax in the city, and always goes in for improvements; and all the Aldermen who voted for the new street pay a dretty pecent tax.

As to spending the public funds, we doubt if ever much was wasted or stolen from this good city of Portsmouth, by either party; nor is it so easy to reduce expenses, public or private, as it is to go in over or under them.

☞ The new landlord of the Franklin House is Dr. David G. Fuller, from Concord.—It was Mr. Jos. C. Perkins, landlord of the National, who furnished the Mayor's Suppar the other night.

THE NEW PATENT

NEVER-FAILING, SELF-LOCKING

WINDOW FAST.

The only substitute for weight and pulleys, and a complete and perfect SELF-LOCKING spring, at less cost than the old, unreliable and unsafe ones heretofore introduced. No Catching, Hitching, Breaking, Slipping, or Dropping, but ALWAYS SAFE,—Self-Locking and NEVER-FAILING. No cogs, cams, wheels, bands or rollers to get out of order, or tempered steels springs to break. It never fails to hold and lock the window just where you leave it, from being raised or dropped down. It can be raised or lowered the merest trifle, for ventilation and then and there locks itself. No other fixture pretends does, or can, lock the window securely in every place or position. It works equally well on top or bottom sash, is simple, stronger, more effective, durable, and cheaper than any spring ever introduced. Critics are challenged to find a single fault. It is cheaply and easily applied by any mechanic to old or new windows. Every lock is made in the most thorough manner, and warranted perfect. Descriptive Circulars, with Card list of Prices, sent promptly on application.

NOTICE.—About the year 1845 the wife of an officer in the U. S. Navy by the name of BURNS or BARNES, residing at Portsmouth, N. H., came to Boston, Mass., and adopted as her child a young girl by the name of GEORGIANA HALL, then about 4 years of age. Soon after, they went South, supposed to Norfolk, Va., since then nothing has been known of them. Any information concerning this young lady will be thankfully received by the subscriber, who is in possession of information which will be of great value to her.

Morning Chronicle.

THE RED RIVER TROUBLES.—It is said that the United States government has been notified in a matter and from a source that it will be bound to take notice of, that Canadian adherents in the Red River Settlement and at Portage La Prairie have incited the Sioux Indians to a raid on Pembina and St. Joseph; in retaliation, as it is claimed, for alleged aid and countenance given to the Red River rebellion by American citizens on this side of the international line. There will be no civil war on Red River, as the people are almost a unit in the purpose of keeping Canada out, and they will go for annexation to the United States before they will submit to Canada. Governor McDougall has started for home, and it is well for him and for the country.

—George Wilkes saw Queen Victoria and her Scotch gillie, John Brown, at the opening of the New Blackfriar's Bridge in London, and tells how the favorite servant of Her Majesty looked. He sat in the coupe of the royal barouche on the side towards me, and I noticed him as the finest looking man in the whole procession. He was dressed in full Highland costume, the chief garmect of which was a rich black velvet tunic, with a tartan sash of exquisite colors falling obliquely over the breast and back. He wore a bonnet with a cock feather, which set jaunttily upon the head, and his arms were folded with an easy air, as if he felt he had no superior in the surrounding audience. He sat directly over the back of the Queen, and was the nearest to her person. I had no idea who this conspicuous figure was, and set him down at once as some Scotch nobleman of great regard; but as the carriage passed I heard a lady near me say, 'She had much better have left him at home!' 'Yes,' said the lady who was thus addressed, 'I think so too. It would have shown much more respect for public opinion!'

CRUSOE'S ISLAND.—The island of Juan Fernandez, the home of Robinson Crusoe, has been settled by a colony of Germans. Robert Wehrdau, a Saxon engineer, who served in the Federal army as a Major during the late rebellion, bought the island in 1868, has induced a company of Germans, sixty or seventy in number, to migrate thither. They are delighted with their new home. They find it a lovely and fertile spot, stocked already with herds of wild goats, and with a few wild horses and donkeys. They have brought with them cattle, swine and fowls, agricultural and fishing implements, and all needful equipments for a strong colony. The grotto, so famous as Robinson's house, still remains. It is situated in a large valley, covered with an exuberant growth of wild turnips. The island is a regular resort for whalers in want of wood and water, and the colonists will therefore be frequently heard from.

KING CORN.—The Southern people begin to see that corn, not cotton, is king. The Mobile Register tells the Southern planters "corn is independence—it is life," and urges them to plant corn as well as cotton. It hears of immense preparations for cotton and very slim ones for corn. The Register tells the planters this will not do. They must raise, and not buy their food. With heavier grain crops the present year, the South could have held back cotton, if needful, and kept the price at any figure it pleased. With heavy grain crops, a small cotton crop can be held and made as valuable as a large one.

CORN FODDER.—Lyman Call, East Durham P. O., writes the Canada Farmer that he keeps a dairy of 26 cows, the milk of which is disposed of at a cheese factory, that last June he sowed an acre of corn in drills, and commenced cutting and feeding to the cows the first of July. When the September rains came on he omitted the corn feeding four days, and the result was a diminution of fifty-two pounds of milk per day. The corn feeding was again resumed, and in four days the cows gave their customary quantity of milk. The increased flow of milk doubly paid the cost of the food given.

—Mr. William W. Oliver of Salem, Mass., who died on Tuesday evening at the age of 91 years and 19 days, for many years was Deputy Collector of Customs at that port. He was a man of marked peculiarities, one of his crotchets being that thin clothing and exposure were favorable to health, and he continued to very nearly the close of his life the habit of going out in all weathers clad in a dressing grown, and with only thin slippers on his feet, and many of the citizens have frequently met him at the Salem depot in that costume. Either as a consequence or in spite of this habit, his long life was with few exceptions, remarkably free from disease and infirmity.

—Susan B. Anthony says ladies are afraid to sing when asked, afraid of taking cold, afraid of snails, spiders, rats and snakes, but she never knew one afraid to marry, the worst of them all, and most to be dreaded.

—A new shell fish more delicious than the oyster has been discovered by the French. It is smaller than the oyster, more elliptical in form, and is christened the 'palourde.'

—A Western steamboat captain got rid of a life insurance solicitor with this final answer:—'Look here, my friend, I never bet on any game where I've got to die to beat it.'

—Somebody advertises "If the fellow who stole my hat from the barber shop, and left an old one in its place, don't return it, I will send his wife a letter which was found in the lining of the old one, directed to a certain female not related to the family."

—No young man can be considered educated until he knows how to raise potatoes, shoe horses, make baskets, or in some other honorable way t earn the bread he eats. No, nor women either.

—Boston last year employed nearly $8,000,000 capital in the wool business, and the receipts there were over 550,000,000 pounds; nearly as much as the whole clip of the United States.

—A good part of the Louisiana cotton crop is still unpicked.

LORILLARD'S "EUREKA"

SMOKING TOBACCO is an excellent article of granulated Virginia; recently introduced it is universally admired. It is put up in handsome muslin bags, in which orders for Meerschaum Pipes are daily packed.

LORILLARD'S YACHT CLUB

SMOKING TOBACCO is made of the Choicest leaf grown; it is anti-nervous in its effects, as the Nicotine has been extracted; it has no acrid taste when after smoking; it is very mild, light in color and in weight, hence one pound will last as long as 3 of ordinary tobacco. In this brand we have put up a new ordinary for first quality Merschaum Pipes. Try it and convince yourself it is all it claims to be, THE FINEST OF ALL.

LORILLARD'S CENTURY

CHEWING TOBACCO.—This brand of Fine Cut chewing tobacco has no equal or superior anywhere. It is without doubt the best chewing tobacco in the country.

LORILLARD'S SNUFFS

HAVE BEEN IN GENERAL USE in the United States over 110 years, and still acknowledged "the best" wherever used.

If your storekeeper does not have these articles for sale, ask him to get them; they are sold by respectable jobbers almost everywhere.

BUTTER-MAKING — HOW TO GET A HIGH PRICE.—A very brief and correct solution may be given to the problem, "How to get a high price." It is, to make very superior butter, and to consign it to very good parties in New York, or other equally good market. Everybody who makes butter wants to get high prices. The highest prices, like high prizes in a lottery, fall to very few people; but unlike them, are attainable by many. Were the quantity of the best quality of butter to be ten times as great as it is, the price would hardly be affected. Great care, discrimination, and the neatest and most skilful manipulation, the best salt, the best packing, and lastly, the best cows, all combined, will not always produce the best butter, or that which will bring a high price.

There are natural butter regions in this country, and others in which the best butter is neither an artificial nor a natural product. The best dairy women of the favored districts utterly fail upon the others, and it has been repeatedly proved that the conditions for making good butter are beyond the control of the farmers, with the knowledge we now have. Prevailing habits of dairy folks, in some parts of the country capable of producing most excellent butter, damage this product. Overworking, alluded to in the April number, is a not uncommon fault. Poor salt spoils much butter.

Butter ought never to be made in a hurry. Deliberation enough to have everything just right is the salvation of many a churning. Taking the temperature of the cream with a thermometer is poohed at by many good butter makers, but it is best for most people to have no guess work, and to see that the cream has a temperature of sixty-two degrees, or a little higher, but not sixty-five degrees. The heat increases during the churning, and by the time the butter comes is usually high enough (between sixty-five degrees and seventy degrees) to promote the gathering of the butter; otherwise,—that is, if the butter is hard and granular,—the addition of a little warm water dashed in while churning will effect the object.

Risk attends the common practice of half-working butter, oversalting, and setting it aside to be thoroughly worked the next day. Parts of the butter are likely to whiten, and no amount of working will then prevent a streaky, marbled look, before the butter is spoiled by being overworked. The buttermilk ought to be almost all worked out, the butter salted, and, after standing a short time, worked again. This secures a uniform salting, and though the butter will need working the next day, it will never be found streaked. Buttermilk contains some cream and casein in solution. Simple working causes the removal of the buttermilk. Washing removes all, very completely, but also abstracts a notable part of the flavor.

Salt aids greatly in the removal of the buttermilk, that is, water: but the important part of the buttermilk, the casein, is chiefly left behind. Therefore to make butter which will be of fine flavor, and will keep, it is usually necessary to wash it after working out most of the buttermilk,—the butter-maker realizing that the use of water is an undesirable necessity. After this, it may be salted, and after standing, worked. Most of the water being removed, it is re-salted if necessary, and left with only salt enough to make a strong brine with the little water that remains. There is always room for the exercise of great discretion in working just enough, in washing, and salting, and stopping. Fine butter is truly a work of consummate art.—American Agriculturist.

A TRUE FISH STORY.—The captain of a coaster, who trades between Cape Ann and New York, on a recent voyage spread some codfish on deck to dry, and then went below to give some directions to the men who were at work there. The vessel was lying at one of the piers in New York at the time. When he came on deck he saw a man just leaving with a large codfish in each hand, and a policeman looking on. The captain appealed to the policeman, who asked if he desired to have the thief arrested, to which the captain emphatically responded that he did, and without delay.

"My friend," said the policeman, "you know not what you ask. I am the only American connected with the police in this vicinity, and if I were to arrest that man, probably both you and I would be half murdered and the thief rescued before we had proceded a hundred yards. That fellow is a great man at the polls, a pet with judges and lawyers, and though known to be a notorious thief, has never been convicted, though frequently arrested by mistake with the booty in his possession. Those who had him arrested always came to grief, and so would you and I. Therefore, I advise you to let him go, and think yourself fortunate in getting off so easily." The policeman said much more to the same effect, which induced the captain to let the thief go.—Gloucester Telegraph.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
My Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

FRIDAY, JAN. 7, 1870.

Microscopic Views.

The Harvard crew, who were beaten by the Oxford lads, are again going into he-row-ics about the matter—which is all well enough, in a sentimental sort of way, though it won't avail for spilled milk.

A Hartford sheriff jumped from a train of cars and landed on his nose instead of his feet. He nearly broke his neck—but didn't quite.

One hundred and forty-seven Chinamen have arrived in Texas.

A New Jersey railroad conductor put an old man off a train because he was slow in finding his ticket. The old man fell under the cars and had both legs crushed.

A Cincinnati reveller celebrated New one foot sticking out of the water so as to inform his friends that he was ready for a funeral.

New Orleans allows small pox corpses to lie unburied three days.

Four hundred and ninety six couples were divorced in Chicago last year.

Crime is on the increase in New York city.

At a meeting of workingmen in London, Tuesday evening, resolutions were passed encouraging emigration.

The English yacht Deerhound was not lost.

The Cubans have three vessels at sea, the third having sailed from New York on Wednesday.

It costs $1,000,000 per annum to clean the streets of New York.

The New York legislature has passed a resolution rescinding the vote by which the proposed fifteenth amendment to the United States Constitution was ratified.

The strike of the Western Union telegraph operators still continues.

Governor McDougall has arrived in Chicago and reports that the rebellion in the Red River country is insignificant in numbers, and that it is in the interest of annexation to the United States.

Joseph Rametta has played the flute at the Boston Museum for the past twenty-six years, without being absent from a performance.

The provisional government of Paraguay has abolished slavery.

An expedition is preparing to sail from France to recover 500,000,000 francs in treasure, which was lost some years ago in Spanish vessels on the coast of Spain.

A girl was lately fined $13 20 in Toledo for wearing male apparel. She was young and by no means immodest looking, and stated that she had worn the forbidden garments for seven years. She drove a street car in Cleveland two years, and was also employed for some time as a driver on a canal boat, during all which time her sex was never suspected.

One of Mark Twain's farmers bought some Bartlett pear trees, and the next season he took some of the fruit to the tree-dealer; "What kind of pears do you call these?" "Well, I don't know; Button pears, perhaps." But they grew on one of the trees you sold me for a Bartlett!" "Are you such a fool," was the dealer's convincing rejoiner, "as to suppose that a tree is going to bear Bartlett pears the first year?"

The republicans of the Maine legislature have nominated Hon. Lot M. Morrill to serve the unexpired portion of the late Senator Fessenden's term.

—Two brothers living in Arlington, Van Buren county, Michigan, were married a short time since by their stepfather, who is a justice of the peace the youngest one marrying his cousin, while the elder married his niece, a girl of fourteen, he being nearly as old again.

—Lands sell for a song in South Carolina. "Gundelos," on the Pe Dee, comprising 675 acres of prime rice land, with 600 acres of upland, has been sold for $9000. Ten years ago, Governor Allston gave $75,000 for it.

—The story of a city car driver who has lived for forty years on one meal a day, is disproved by the fact that every car driver makes his break-fast a score of times each day.

—An untutored Western paper say's that S. B. Anthony in a Turkish bath, and E. C. Stanton making a daily Revolution would be two subjects for a Titian.

—Later developments show that Buckhout, who committed the terrible murders at Tarrytown, N. Y., on New Year's Day, is not the quiet, inoffensive person at first represented, but a dissolute and quarrelsome fellow, who could not get along peaceably with his wife. It is still a mystery, however, why he killed the Randalls.

—There are hints of a revival of the heart shaped waists of our great-grandmothers—which will be the only thing in which the girl of the period will resemble our great-grandmothers.

WILD SPORTS OF THE FAR EAST.—On New Year's Day, having nothing to do, I borrowed a gun and started for the howling wilderness around Agamenticus, determined to bag some of the ferocious animals with which that region abounds. I easily found my way to Kittery, (having been there before, on other business,) where I met my particular friend Mr. Wye Tasche. "Hallo, Tasche," said I, "you're just the man I wanted to see—am going out hunting, and want some company." "All right—I'm your man," said T., "but we must get my friend Lord James Zephyr, an English nobleman, who is in the hotel here; let's go for him at once."

We found My Lord reclining gracefully in a chair which was tilted back against the wall, his feet resting on the table, and his classic chin supported by his manly breast, slumbering peacefully. As we approached, an engaging smile flitted across his benign countenance, and Wye Tasche observed to me, "Perchance His Lordship dreameth of the happy days, when, an innocent little fellow, (Wye may have been correct in this supposition — fancy does sometimes carry people back an immense distance, in dreams,) he studied the unknown languages and made faces at the master, at school. But list — he speaketh!"

His Lordship's coral lips parted slightly, and Wye Tasche and I listened admiringly to the following oration:—"Clubs trumps, and the Jack turned—I pass that, by jingo!" "I knew it!" said my friend Tasche triumphantly; "I was sure he was dreaming of his guileless boyhood's happy hours. That's Latin he was talking just now—he'd never study anything but that when he went to school.—and now he studies it o'er again in dreams. But we must disturb his slumbers,"—and smiting the act to the word, he kicked the chair from beneath the dreamer, who descended into a spittoon evidently formed by nature to receive him,—and his boot, as it flew into the air, sent on high the Japanned tray which had been sitting on the edge of the table, containing eight empty glass tumblers,—empty save for a bit of lemon-peel and a spoon in each. How the tumblers came there, or what they were there for, was (and is) a mystery.

Lord Zephyr awoke, and greeted us graciously; accepted our invitation to join us in a hunting expedition to the wilds of Kittery and York; and having discarded all the useless trappings of an effeminate civilization, retaining only such articles as are indispensable to the hardy hunter, we set out for the virgin forests of Agamenticus. Wye Tasche, an old naval man, and thoroughly conversant with fire-arms, led off, carrying the gun; I, having planned the expedition, occupied the post of honor and safety, in the middle; and Lord Zephyr dashingly covered the rear, with his open jack-knife in his right hand.

The aborigines gazed at us in awe and wonder as we marched silently and sternly on,—only one irreverent rag-a-muffin of the juvenile gender scoffed when Wye Tasche suddenly stopped, (thinking he saw a sparrow on the wall,) thereby bringing the muzzle of the gun (which he carried over his shoulder breech foremost, after the manner of hunters,) in contact with my forehead, chipping out a circular bit of skin about an inch in diameter, and causing me to spring back upon Lord Z.'s jack-knife, which might have done some injury had not the point fortunately entered my spinal column and broken off. As the noble Newfoundlander deigns not to notice the yelping cur,—even so did we move solemnly and majestically on, regardless of the miserable urchin's hooting.

I shall have to defer laying the record of the thrilling adventures which followed, before the public, until a more convenient season. PAKEHA.

LIVING ON A FARM.

How brightly, through the mist of years,
My quiet country home appears!
My father, busy all the day
In plowing corn or raking hay;
My mother, moving with delight
Among her milk pans, silver bright;
We children, just from school set free,
Filling the garden with our glee;
The blood of life was flowing warm
When I was living on a farm.

I hear the sweet church-going bell,
As o'er the fields its music fell;
I see the country neighbors round
Gathering beneath the pleasant sound.
They stop a while beside the door,
To talk their homely matters o'er,—
The springing corn, the ripening grain,
And "how we need a little rain,"—
"A little sun would do no harm,
We want good weather for the farm."

When autumn came, what joy to see
The gathering of the husking-bee,
To hear the voices keeping tune,
Of girls and boys beneath the moon;
To mark the golden corn-ears bright,
More golden in the yellow light!
Since I have learned the ways of men,
I often turn to these again,
And feel life wore its highest charm
When I was living on a farm.

THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION met at Concord on Wednesday. John S. H. Frink, Esq., of Greenland, was temporary Chairman and made a speech described as able and eloquent by those present. Harry Bingham was permanent chairman. Albert R. Hatch was Chairman of committee on resolutions. Gen. John Bedel was re-nominated as candidate for Governor by acclamation, and Gen. Michael Donahoe for R. R. Commissioner. The resolutions adopted declare opposition to the centralization of power in Congress, denounce the manner of Georgia's reconstruction, demand a reformation in the manner of taxing the people, oppose monopolies, favor the taxation of Government bonds and securities, (while declaring that existing contracts should be kept in letter and spirit,) declare that all debts, except duties and interest on the public debt, should be paid in currency,—and mourn the loss of Ex-President Franklin Pierce. Samuel B. Page of Concord was chosen Chairman of the State Committee.

LIBEL SUITS.—George Wilkes of the New York Spirit of the Times, has had the publishers of the Turf, Field & Farm arrested for publishing an article reflecting on a correspondent of the Spirit of the Times.

Judge Dykeman of the Cass Co. Circuit Court, Indiana, has sued Bringhurst & Dague, editors of the Logansport Journal, for publishing an alleged libel charging the Judge with bribing by the payment of money, certain other judges, in a suit still pending in the Supreme Court, to make their decisions conformable to his interest. The editors answer that the charges are true, and they are ready to prove it.

A DOG'S DOGGISHNESS.—Two young Englishmen, named Bellis and Jones, and a favorite dog owned by Bellis, were upset in the Mersey, recently. Bellis was a poor swimmer and Jones endeavored to save him. The dog however mounted on his master's shoulders and savagely bit Jones whenever he took hold of the drowning man. Finally, Bellis sank under the dog's weight, and was drowned;—the over-affectionate animal then swam ashore followed by Jones. The doggity of that dog-oned dog was remarkably true to dog nature.

—Texas cattle can now be driven into Kansas until March 1. Already a large army of bovines is in motion, and the plains are alive with long-horned "critters."

Written for the Chronicle and Gazette.

Outside my window, summer birds were singing,
And the long dawn had whitened into day;
While trembling whispers summer birds were bringing
Of cities far away.

O'er the skies' perfect color and completeness,
There hung the faintest shadowing of mist,
Until the morning, blushing with its sweetness,
The rising sun had kissed.

Down in the valley, with its fields of clover,
Dropped the long sunshine on the quivering dew,
Till every leaf, with rapture bending over,
Glistened with light anew.

All night my weary heart the hours had counted,
Until its moan and darkness were as one;
The steep ascent of pain my soul had mounted,
Gethsemane begun.

Oh heart, I prayed, grown still to resignation,
For death God's crowning act of love may be,
And grief may teach us the divine translation
Of Immortality.

So when the morning brought its revelation
Of dawning light and summer beauty given,
A hush of peace, almost of exultation,
Fell on me as from Heaven.

I thought, some blissful morning I may waken,
And see the dawn that fades to night no more;
When from my aching heart what death has taken
God shall again restore.

CONSUMPTION.

The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.

"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion.

"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, o Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ an healthy tone, and cure liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.

Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. d3d1m.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not left about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—No matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under any one of the notorious QUACKS—native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life.

Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

In Remote Settlements of Untold Value.

Food makes blood; blood makes the body. If the blood be pure, the body is healthy. So if we are not in health, we know some impurities are lurking about, which must be removed, and the sooner the better.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS remove all from the system which nature needs no longer.

The Medicines prepared and sold by Brandreth's Pills have arrested the attention of enlightened physicians. Upwards of five thousand now use them in their daily practice, and two hundred have given their written testimony as to their innocence and value, as cleansers of the bowels and blood. Their antidote is to those living in settlements where doctors can only be had at great expense. For if you are sick, you have only to take one or more doses of Brandreth's Pills to get cured. Full Directions are with each box.

SPECIAL NOTICES,

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this absurd and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.

Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every subsidiary function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principles, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and sickly invalid by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome in their practice has been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Constipation or Nervous Ills, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found the most valuable medicine ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free by return mail.

MERIT SOON NOISED ABROAD.

It is but six years since ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, was first offered for sale. Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near; now it is sold in nearly every Drug Store in the United States—NORTH, EAST, SOUTH and WEST. No similar medicine stands higher with the people. It is well known on the Pacific coast, and liberal demands for it from San Francisco, Sacramento in California, and Portland, Oregon, and from Australia, large orders are received for it. And throughout Canada, it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.

Read what Captain Foster writes:

PORT BURWELL, March 23d, 1869.

Messrs. PERRY DAVIS & SON,

Sirs:—I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM; having been troubled with a cough for several years past, the Balsam was recommended to me. I immediately procured it, and found it to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results.

Yours Very Truly, Capt. D. FOSTER.

Comfort and Bliss or Pain and Agony.

DR. TOBIAS' CELEBRATED VENETIAN LINIMENT, whose wonderful cures, sure and instaneous action, in cases of Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Croup, Cuts, Burns, Colic, Cramps, Dysentery, etc., has astonished the civilized world, is no new catch-penny; but an article that has stood the test of twenty-two years. The enormous sale and rapidly increasing demand is at once the surest evidence of its usefulness and popularity. No family should be without a bottle in the house. Hundreds of dollars and many hours of suffering may be saved by its timely use.

Colic, Cramp, and Dysentery yield at once to its penetrative properties. It is perfectly innocent and can be given to the oldest person or youngest child. No matter if you have no confidence in Patent Medicines—try this, and you will be sure to buy again, and recommend to your friends. Hundreds of Physicians recommend it in their practice.

WOODEN WEDDING.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Adams of this city were surprised on Wednesday evening by the appearance of a long procession of their friends at their residence on Gates Street, armed with wooden presents, in honor of the fifth anniversary of their wedding. The invoice included knuckle washers, clothes pins, reels, sifters, brooms, buckets, tubs, toys, baskets, and a score of other kinds of articles, useful and ornamental. The visitors took possession of the entire establishment, and had a merry time of it until the hours of another day gave hint that the anniversary day was over.

CITY COUNCIL, Jan. 6th.—In Board of Aldermen, on Thursday evening, all the members except Ald. Cotton were present. The Mayor announced the Standing Committees as follows:

Bills on 2d Reading—Ald. Nowell and Cotton.

Enrolment—Ald. Miller and Clark.

Police—Ald. Pender and Fernald.

Gas Lights—Ald. Pendexter and Clark.

House of Correction—Ald. Miller and Marvin.

Joint Standing Committees:

Finance—The Mayor, Ald. Nowell and Marvin.

Engrossed Bills—Ald. Cotton and Pendexter.

City Lands and Buildings—Ald. Pendexter and Pender.

Streets—Ald. Miller and Fernald.

Fire Department—Ald. Pender and Nowell.

School Houses—Ald. Pendexter and Nowell.

Claims—Ald. Nowell and Clark.

Burying Grounds—Ald. Clark and Cotton.

Printing—Ald. Miller and Marvin.

The Mayor presented a written opinion of the City Solicitor, that Fleet Street was not legally widened, inasmuch as Ald. Miller was a petitioner two or three years ago, before his election to the Board, for the widening; also that said Miller was a member of the Mechanics' Association, to whom (and thus to himself as a member) he had voted to award damages. Also that the street did not receive the votes of a majority of the Board, leaving off said Miller—therefore he regards the action as voidable if not void, but recommends legal action to decide the matter. Referred to a special Com., (Ald. Pender and Nowell) to report what action is necessary.

The Mechanics' Association gave notice that they should contest the legality of the laying out, or appeal for higher damages. This was referred to the same Com.

C. H. Rollins and others petitioned for Gas Light corner of Water and State Sts., to light passers and assist navigation; and that it be kept burning all night. Referred to Com. on Gas Lights.

Adjourned early, for one week.

Common Council, members all present. On motion of Mr. Senter, the joint rules of last year were adopted in concurrence with the Board of Aldermen. The President announced the standing Committees, as below, and no further business coming before them, on motion of Mr. Marden, they adjourned for one week,—and per invitation of the President, to Freeman's oyster saloon, at once. The Committees are,

On Elections—Messrs. Thompson, Perry, and Gardner.

Bills on 2d Reading—Messrs. Marden, Sides, and Waterhouse.

Finance—Messrs. Miller, French, and Senter.

Engrossing Bills—Messrs. Tibbetts, Thompson and Gardner.

☞ A famous Paris correspondent of a Boston literary paper, for years wrote letters so full of French scandal and intrigues that it would not do to publish them in this latitude. So the editors were obliged to read all the manuscript, and expunge the smut. But as the author never read his letters in print, he remained in blissful ignorance of the clipping they got; and the editors of the paper fearing to offend him by any suggestion to amend his ways, the thing went on.

So with our correspondent Mentor; we rarely read the Opposition organ—never except for business purposes—and so did not know until his communication informed us, that our innocent addition of a few words to his second article, had laid him open to a charge of inconsistency and stealing the reading of that delectable sheet. Since we are on this point, however, we will merely say that it is passing strange to us how any Republican can have the least interest or curiosity in the thing—seeing that, so far as we recollect, it gives but one monotnous string of what is intended for abuse—the merest rhodomontade of slang, without any attempt at argument or proof. But good bye, Stars and Bars—Mentor has dropped the subject, and we should never have thought of it but for him. F.

SPLENDID ENTERTAINMENT.—The Universalist Sunday School of this city, having made arrangements with Mr. Charles G. Frost of Providence, will bring before our citizens his beautiful Allegory and Tableau of scenes in the life of Christ, at the Temple during the coming week. This entertainment is entirely different from anything ever given in this city. The Tableaux are formed before the audience, and are illuminated with brilliant colored lights, in such a manner that the Hall is entirely free from smoke. It has been given by all denominations; and is spoken of by the clergy and the press in the highest terms.

ODD FELLOWS' LECTURE.—Past Grand Representative John L. Spring, of Milford, N. H., will deliver a Lecture in the Temple, on Monday Evening, Jan. 10th. All brothers desiring tickets will please call upon the Committees of the different Lodges; and all the Fraternity wishing to take part, will please meet at Odd Fellows' Hall, in full regalia, at half past 6 o'clock precisely. Doors open at quarter to 7; Lecture to commence at quarter to 8. Per order of Committee. GEO. E. SIDES, Grand Marshal.

☞ The new Scenery of Mr. Stavers', at the Temple, painted by Mr. T. P. Moses, receives much commendation.

—Miss Braddon denies the London newspaper-story that she has gone crazy, and cities to the contrary the fact that she is now writing one of her usual novels, although that will be no proof at all to most people.

MARRIAGES.

In this city, on Thursday morning, Jan. 6th, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. R. W. Clark jr., CALVIN PAGE, Esq., and Miss ARABELLA J. MORAN, only daughter of Wm. and Sophia J. Moran. The publishers of the Chronicle have the best evidence of the issuing of both cake and cards; and wish the young couple the utmost happiness of the new leaf they have turned over.

"O sweet young love, that in all ages
Bears ever one eternal form!
With lasting youth your oldest Pages
Glow ever, ever fresh and warm."

H—O—F—F—'S
MALT EXTRACT—
Is already recommended by our leading physicians, as a tonic and a nutrient (ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO LADIES) with the most satisfactory results. This beverage is extensively used where all spirituous liquors and ales are discarded, as it differs from all other malt preparation, being ALMOST FREE FROM ALCOHOL, and therefore neither intoxicating nor irritating: as it contains MORE NUTRIMENT THAN PORTER, ALE, OR THE STRONGEST BEER. ja3

THE NEW PATENT
NEVER-FAILING, SELF-LOCKING
WINDOW FAST.
The only substitute for weight and pulleys, and a complete and perfect SELF-LOCKING spring, at less cost than the old, unreliable and unsafe ones heretofore introduced. No Catching, Hitching, Breaking, Slipping, or Dropping, but ALWAYS SAFE,—Self-Locking and NEVER-FAILING. No cogs, cams, wheels, bands or rollers to get out of order, or tempered steels springs to break. It never fails to hold and lock the window just where you leave it, from being raised or dropped down. It can be raised or lowered the merest trifle, for ventilation and then and there locks itself. No other fixture pretends, does, or can, lock the window securely in every place or position. It works equally well on top or bottom sash, is simple, stronger, more effective, durable, and cheaper than any spring ever introduced. Critics are challenged to find a single fault. It is cheaply and easily applied by any mechanic to old or new windows. Every lock is made in the most thorough manner, and warranted perfect. Descriptive Circulars, with Card list of Prices, sent promptly on application.

Morning Chronicle.

TOO SMART A SAILSMAN.

A REAL CHARACTER AND A REAL INCIDENT.

It was the one great object of life with Captain Ambrose Hiller, in the old Cassandra, to immortalize himself on canvas. Not in the ordinary sense, as an artist, but by keeping it spread on his spars long after his more prudent consorts had put it, by dint of reef-point and gasket, snug under control. He ought, in virtue of this weakness (or strength, as he considered it), to have been in command of the "Flying Cloud" or the "Sovereign of the Seas," instead of the Cassandra.

Not but that our veteran blubber-hunter was a good safe boat; indeed she could well carry all that her spars and cordage were fit to bear—these last being rather ancient and untrustworthy. But Captain Hiller never seemed to consider that it is much more convenient and becoming, even for the best sea-boat, to carry her sticks in an erect position, than to drag them at all sorts of oblique angles.

The storm-beaten rock, Diego Ramirez, a sort of outpost which guards the passage round the Horn, bore directly abeam of us, with a howling gale following us up from west-south-west. The Cassandra, deeply-laden, but with what seamen call a "lively cargo," oil and whalebone, reeled off before it under single-reefed fore and main-topsails and fore-course, while two of our best men had their hands full at the wheel. The captain was in his element—only one thing was wanting to crown his felicity—the sight of a consort bound on the same course, that he might "out carry" him.

"Pretty well done, old C'sandry!" said he, in a kind of monologue, addressed to no one in particular, as he swung his flexible sea-legs fore-and-aft the quarter deck. "She washes her own decks and rings her own bells, now! The Di-egos in sight, too—that's always welcome, especially if we haven't seen the sun for two or three days; because it tells where we are better than a whole slateful of figgers. We shall be in the Atlantic to-night, with plenty of room to slant her away to the north'ard. I think she'll bear a little more tappa, eh, Mr. Murray? The wind's steady."

"Steady enough," answered the mate; "and quite enough of it. I think she's carrin' all prudent canvas now. Them topmast backstays is none too good," he added, with a warning glance aloft.

"Well, I do'know; I guess they are good enough. If we don't try 'em well we shall never know whether they are good or not; and if they ain't good, we don't wan't 'em."

The mate was silenced, if not convinced, by this strange logic; but the cry of "Sail, oh!" from forward diverted both their minds from the subject for the present.

A bark, lying,to, directly in our track, not more than two miles off. But a few minutes would be required to pass her.

"He's a whaler, and homeward bound, too," said Mr. Murray, as soon as he brought the glass to bear.

"How do you know?" asked his superior.

"I know by the look of his boats; and more, by the copper, or rather the want of copper, on his bends."

"Yes, that's a sure mark," said Captain Hiller, taking the glass and satisfying himself. "A homeward-bounder and layin' under storm-stays'ls and a goose wing! What's he thinkin' on, to be hove to with this breeze?"

"Perhaps she isn't so good a ship to scud as the C'sandry," suggested the mate.

"No, there ain't many't is. We'll show him what we can do. Give her the main-to'ga'ns'l, Mr. Murray!" And the captain drove the joints of his telescope together with a bang.

It was useless to remonstrate now. The fiat had gone forth, and it was ours to obey. The captain had mounted his hobby, which was, especially, carrying topgallant-sails over single-reefs.

The sail was loosed, sheeted home, and hoisted without accident, and our craft seemed fairly to leap under the added strain, while the towering seas rolled on in her wake, impotent to overtake us.

"I know who she is now, Mr. Murray," said the delighted captain. She's the "Arab," that left Turkey warner (Talcahuano) a week ahead of us. He ought to'been down off the Falklands now, with the winds he has had. Mind your helm, there! and keep her straight! Right for that feller's mainmast!"

"You won't pass very near him, I suppose sir?" said Mr. Murray, inquiringly.

"I'm going to speak him!"

"It's ticklish work in such a sea-way as this, sir."

"Oh, I can shave right under his counter, if them fellers don't get to sleep there at the wheel."

There was little fear of it under the circumstances; though perhaps the captain meant to be understood figuratively

"My trumpet, steward!"

It was already forthcoming; and the captain, seeing it, mounted lightly into the head of the quarter-boat, and stood erect, with a majesty of bearing worthy of—Britannia, ruling the waves.

Meanwhile, the captain and officers of the Arab were to be seen grouped near the taffrail, involuntarily shrinking back as we dashed down in our mad career towards them; for it seemed as if we were bent on "giving them the stern," with no more compunction than we might have shown in attacking a Malay pirate.

"Port! port your helm!"

But our ship, as if determined to be contrary at the most critical moment, had taken a wayward sheer, and it was necessary to jam the helm hard over to counteract it. For a moment we watched the effect with suspended breath; even Captain Hiller jumped back from his perilous station in the quarter-boat. But she swung just in time, obedient to the power of her rudder.

We could look away in under the Arab's counter, as she pitched heavily forward at that moment, elevating her stern in mid air. We flew past her wake like a race-horse, Captain Hiller roaring through his brass tube, "How are you, Nichols! Give us your hawser, and I'll take you in tow!" They might almost have crossed trumpets as single-sticks, when the bark's stern came down again on the "send-aft." The quarter-boat barely escaped destruction; but at the last moment, the end of a spare spar, projecting from the bark's stern-hawse, caught the ship's spanker-vang. A single jerk, as we tore clear of each other, and the gaff came thundering down upon the house over our heads. The astonished Captain Nichols had found no words to reply to our hail; we had passed out of hearing before he could gather his scattered senses.

We shuddered to think of what might have been the result, had the two vessels come bodily in contact. No great harm had been done, as yet; but the helmsmen, thrown off their guard by the sudden fall of the gaff, had allowed the ship to make another broad yaw.

"Starboard! Starboard hard, and meet her!"

It was too late. The gale, blowing so strong on one quarter, proved too much for the strength of our back-stays. Crash came the maintop-gallant-mast and sail, with all the hamper, down about our ears, adding another element to the confusion and excitement.

"What she can't carry, she'll drag," muttered the mate. "Guess it'll be enough, without towing the Arab."

"Bear a hand there, and clear away the wreck!" said the captain, as soon as the ship had swung back to her course. "Get it all down on deck, as fast as you can!"

"You don't see the worst of it, sir," answered Mr. Murray, pointing aloft. "The head of the topmast is gaping at the sheave-hole!"

Here was a kettle of fish. Quite enough for us to do to get the ship under short sail and make all snug, though we succeeded in getting it done, without the topmast breaking entirely off. The wind began to moderate down while we were thus engaged; but we dared not attempt to run before the mountainous sea, when unable to carry a press of canvas. The only safety, in scudding, is to drive the vessel fast enough to keep ahead of the rollers—if her spars will bear it.

Night found us lying to, waiting for the sea to go down; and the next morning, while trying to cobble up our damages, we had the satisfaction of seeing the Arab pass us, at a safe distance, but not so far off as to hinder us from fancying that we could hear her skipper say to us through his speaking-trumpet: "How are you, Hiller? Give us your hawser, and I'll take you in tow!"

A large clipper ship, showing a cloud of studding-sails, passed us shortly after. It was the Bald Eagle.

"He's rigged for it," growled the mate, as he looked after the latter. "I suppose, if we hadn't got into this snarl, the old man would be for tryin' to out-carry him to-day. If he hadn't wanted to show off to Nichols, and got all hands up-in-heaps, and the ship away off'n her course, she would ha' gone through all right. I never see nothin' gained by tryin' to be too smart."

Nor did he in this case, for the Arab, though no great sailor, arrived home a fortnight ahead of us, while our sharp-shooting friend, the Bald Eagle, beat us thirty days!

SHEPHERD DOGS.—About one year ago I purchased a remarkably fine Shepherd Dog. Thinking it would be of some benefit to your readers to be made acquainted with the peculiar traits of these remarkable dogs, I send you a few short notes of the performance of mine. He will bring the cows, oxen or horses from the most distant fields by simply telling him what you want. Soon after we got him we sent him to watch the sheep that were in a field one half of which was in oats.

We visited him several times during the day and found the faithful dog, who was walking, with sentinel-like punctuality, up and down the boundary line of the two crops, close to which some of his trust were browsing. Upon the slightest attempt of any of them to infringe on the oats, he immediately drove them back; but the extent of his beat being very long, he was sometimes sorely put to it, and had to hurry backwards and forwards in rather a laughable manner. Collecting his energy, he finished by driving the whole flock to the extremity of the pasture. Then satisfied with the altered position of affairs, he returned to the boundary line, and lay down with the assurance that they must now feed up to him.

Not long since, he accompanied a friend to Chicago, where he purchased a lot of sheep—upwards of two hundred and fifty. At night, in bringing them home, they were turned into a field. The fences not being very good, they broke in with several other droves, and consequently, soon all became mixed together. The next morning, without making a single mistake, the dog picked out the whole of his master's sheep from amongst the others, almost unaided, and although he had been so short a time acquainted with them—after which he drove them to their destination single-handed.

I was greatly gratified at such an admirable display of canine sagacity, as it has seldom if ever been equaled, never surpassed, for brilliant intelligence and canine observation.

My wife says he is of incalculable value in caring for the younger children when they are running about the farm, as she always considers them safe when under the care of Jack. He will carry luncheon to the men in the most distant part of the farm, and never offer to touch a mouthful.

There are certain peculiarities of character belonging to the shepherd dog well worthy of note. He is a remarkably small eater, and is the least greedy of all the entire race; in fact it is quite astonishing how many hours he will remain true to his post without indulging his appetite; he apparently suffers but little from hunger or thirst.

He is of a pensive, melancholly disposition, and rarely condescends to join a romp, or enjoy that playful dalliance which belongs to other animals. At the same time his affections are true and unalterable to his master, and his faithfulness, under the most trying circumstances, is staunch even to death; and if we should seek in the canine family for talents and qualities especially human, our convictions unhesitatingly point towards the shepherd dog.—Dedi's Farm Journal.

—In Springfield on Tuesday, while Moses Brown, proprietor of a paper box factory, was swinging off a case of boxes to be lowered by an outside elevator to the yard below, the rope broke and Mr. Brown was precipitated from the fourth story to the ground. He survived the accident but a short time.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. THE STRIKE OF THE TELEGRAPH OPERATORS.—The two remaining female operators at the New York office have struck, so that all are now out. All the operators of the principal offices from New York to San Francisco, and from Buffalo to Texas, are on a strike. From all points men are being ordered to fill the places of the strikers, but on refusing to do so are at once discharged.

Several men on the Canada side who refused to take the places of the strikers, shared the same fate. The salaries paid to telegraph operators in New York ranges from $50 to $118 per month; only a few men are able to command the latter amount.

☞ Rev. Robt. B. Stubbs, of Lisbon, a well known Methodist preacher and ardent temperance man, has written and published a letter in the Concord Monitor, defining his position, and showing that he does not believe that the proposed new party is the path of wisdom or duty. Uncle Toby don't mean to publish such a letter, but he thinks some of the good men who "pitch in" on that matter, have got the Savior's injunction somewhat mixed up in their minds. He said, "Be ye wise as serpents and harmless as doves;"—but the measure they propose, looks as if they were wise as doves, and harmless as serpents.

From an Occasional Correspondent.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.

Christmas and New Year were kept as holidays by everybody except hotel folks, stable keepers and horse cars. It is a fact which perhaps everybody don't know, that the unlucky individuals connected with these institutions never have any holidays, or Sundays. It is work, — work, every day in the week for them,—and a good part of the night, too, in many cases. To be sure, they have opportunities of seeing human nature in all its manifold bearings, to a greater extent than almost any other class of people, and many an incident comes under their notice, which is lost to the world at large, but which nevertheless, if some of them could be written down, would make a story likely to produce a sensation.

How little does the world at large know of the actions and doings of persons prominently before the public, after they retire from the sight of the great majority of those who are interested or amused by them—while facing the foot-lights. Is it, for instance, to be supposed that any of the crowds who flock of an evening to a well known hall to listen to the singing and playing of some prominent female artiste, ever think that she, fixed up as she is in such stunning and bewildering attire,—does really come down to the plain matter of fact of eating and drinking like other common folks?

Now if the waiters at her hotel would only be communicative, goodness! what a story you would hear. Suppose it should be asserted, that before starting for the concert she partook of a slight dinner, of soup, boiled mutton (2 plates), roast beef (1 plate), fricassee of chicken, and fried liver and pork, (side dishes,) and all the vegetables; and then puddings and pies, fruit, &c. Then just before starting, a big bottle of champagne, and after the concert a hot supper of woodcock.

And to show that this didn't burt her any, the next morning for breakfast, (11 o'clock,) beef-steak, ham and eggs, hot rolls and coffee; which kept the blood circulating till dinner, (2 o'clock,) when the following bill of fare she managed to put herself outside of, to sustain herself until tea-time; mock-turtle soup, boiled cod-fish, egg sauce, boiled leg of mutton, caper sauce, scalloped oysters, chicken salad, roast chicken, fillet of beef, baked beans and pork, vegetables of all kinds. For dessert and pastry, minced and squash pies, baked Indian pudding, ice cream, nuts and raisins. And before she had got quite through with them, a boy came in and said some gentlemen were waiting to see her; so, taking two large apples, she got up from the table without any apparent extra effort, and went out.

Perhaps everybody won't believe the above to be a fact; but then it is folly to suppose that folks who amuse the public and take their dollars, can live without eating and drinking. Other like incidents are occurring continually, but perhaps this one will suffice for once.

The Legislature and City Government are both just organized, and something will probably be done in the former about the Prohibitory Law, which, as it now stands, don't prevent a great many folks from getting drunk, even if it does abolish open bars. R.

☞ The present season has been a hard one for showmen, especially the Minstrel Troupes, all over the country. Whitman's Theatrical Company collapsed at Lowell, after leaving here, a short time ago; and more recently, Yankee Locke's Company dissolved before it got here. Kelly & Leon did not put in an appearance, as announced; and both Charley Shay's and Sam Sharpley's fine Troupes are said to have "busted" under the financial pressure, since they were here a few weeks ago.

And another good Minstrel Troupe which has appeared here, was reported to be sailing very near the wind financially Down East, and to have expended almost the last shot in the locker in the hard battle with luck.

Now, not to mention the loss thus entailed on printers, bill-stickers and others, who are fools enough to trust all travelling exhibitors,—a question arises, what is the trouble, and where the remedy? Are the people tired of Minstrelsy? (as the breaking up of Morris Brothers' and the other burnt cork Opera Houses in Boston and New York would seem to indicate,) or are the tickets too high for patronage, or too low to meet expenses? or are there too many Troupes in the field, their pay too high, or what? Of one thing there can be but little doubt, among those who are acquainted with the habits of many travelling players — and that is, they usually waste in riotous living, the often large salaries they should lay by for a rainy day or dull nights.

BRIGHTON CATTLE MARKET.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, DEC. 28.

[Reported for the Boston Journal.]

At market for the current week—Cattle 791; Sheep and Lambs 6033; Swine 300; number of Western Cattle 315; Eastern Cattle 243; Northern Cattle and Working Oxen 175. Cattle left over 19.

Prices Beef Cattle—Extra $13 00 @ $13 50; first quality $12 25 @ $12 75; second quality $11 50 @ $12 00; third quality $10 00 @ $11 25; poorest grade of coarse Oxen, Bulls, &c., $8 00 @ $9 50 ₱ cwt, (the total weight of hides, tallow and dressed beef.)

Brighton Hides 8¼ @ 9c ₱ lb; Country Hides 7¼ @ 8c ₱ lb.

Brighton Tallow 7 @ 7½c per lb; Country Tallow 6¼ @ 7c ₱ lb.

Lamb Skins 75 @ $1 25 each; Sheep Skins 75 @ $1 25 each; Calf Skins 20c ₱ lb.

The supply of Cattle from all sections was light and the trade better than it has been for several weeks past. Prices were advanced from ¼ @ ½ ₱ from our last quotations. There were a few very nice extra Cattle from the West. A. N. Monroe sold 11 to J W Taylor, Esq, weight 1811 lbs, at 10½c ₱ lb live weight. Most of the Cattle from Maine were sold for Beef. The change in the weather has had the effect to make the markets at Boston better than they have been of late, and butchers bought freely.

Store Cattle—Yearlings $15 @ $28; two year olds $30 @ $45; three year olds 45 @ $65 ₱ head. Many of the small Cattle that are in a fair condition are sold for Beef.

Milch Cows—Most of the Cows in market are of a common grade. There are but few of the fancy breeds offered in market. Prices range from $85 to $115 ₱ head. Many of the Store Cows are bought for Beef.

Working Oxen—There was a good supply in market. We quote sales at $140, $130, $150, $160, $175, $205, $240, $260 ₱ pair.

Sheep and Lambs—The supply was light, but enough for the demand. Those from the West and East were owned by butchers or taken on drift. We quote extra lots at $4 50 @ 8 00 ₱ head, or from 3 @ 8c ₱ lb; ordinary lots $2 50 @ 4 00 ₱ head.

Swine—Store Pigs, wholesale 10¼ @ 13c ₱ lb; retail 11 @ 14c ₱ lb. Fat Hogs—None at market.

—A great barbecue was held at Syracuse, N. Y., Saturday, for the entertainment of the poor of the city. It was provided by John Greenway, a wealthy brewer. Thousands of persons from the surrounding country came to town, and the streets all day wore a holiday appearance. Clinton square was packed with spectators, estimated at from 20,000 to 30,000 in number. Two whole beeves were roasted and another cut up raw and distributed to the poor, together with 5,000 loaves of bread The butchers and bakers aided in the preparation. Several ex-Mayors and other prominent citizens, wearing white aprons, waited upon the crowds of applicants for food.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The Naval Constructor at the Academy, Annapolis Maryland, has been ordered to proceed to this Yard, to collect models of vessels, not required for purposes of construction, and transfer them to the Naval Academy for preservation, as well as to be used as studies for the students, who are required as part of their service education to become familiar with the various styles of naval architecture.

The Post Band of which we recently gave notice, are now in active rehersal, and progress well. It is presumed this organization will have permanent head quarters on board the New Hampshire when she arrives.

The Navy Department will urge the Committee on Appropriations to raise the pay of the clerks to Paymasters and Inspectors at the Portsmouth, Boston, and other Navy Yards from $1200 to $1500 per annum.

CONSUMPTION.

The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.

"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion.

"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, o Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ an healthy tone, and cure Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.

Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. d3dlm.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production of healthy offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—No matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under any one of the notorious QUACK-native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life.

Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

In Remote Settlements of Untold Value.

Food makes blood; blood makes the body. If the blood be pure, the body is healthy. So if we are not in health, we know some impurities are lurking about, which must be removed, and the sooner the better.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS remove all from the system which nature needs no longer.

The wonderful cures effected by Brandreth's Pills have arrested the attention of unbiased physicians. Upwards of five thousand now use them in their daily practice, and two hundred have given their written testimony as to their innocence and value as cleansers of the bowels and blood. Their untold value is to those living in settlements where doctors can only be had at great expense. For if you are sick, you have only to take one or more doses of Brandreth's Pills to get cured. Full Directions are with each box.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often bound with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.

Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principles, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but by a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at last been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Bilious ness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitely more effective than any of the horrible and abhorrent compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried Dr. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS containing testimonials free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

MERIT SOON NOISED ABROAD.

It is but six years since ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, was first offered for sale. Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near; now it is sold in nearly every Drug Store in the United States—NORTH, EAST, SOUTH and WEST. No similar medicine stands higher with the people. It is well known on the Pacific coast, and liberal demands for it from San Francisco, Sacramento in California, and Portland, Oregon; even from Australia, large orders are received for it. And throughout Canada, it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.

Read what Captain Foster writes:

PORT BURWELL, March 23d, 1869.

Messrs. PERRY DAVIS & SON:

Sirs:—I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from AYER'S LUNG BALSAM; having been troubled with a cough for several years past, the Balsam was recommended to me. I immediately procured it, and found it to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results.

Yours Very Truly,

Capt. D. FOSTER.

FROST'S ALLEGORY AND TABLEAUX. We copy the following from the Syracuse (N. Y.,) Courier and Union.

With a large and respectable audience, we last evening attended this chaste and semi-religious entertainment, and enjoyed our share of pleasure. The character of the exhibition is not understood till visited. The general idea of tableaux—as understood from those seen, falls far short of Mr. Frost's entertainment. Those we have witnessed and gotten up were crude and impromptu, or were introduced en passant at the theatre. Mr. Frost has by long study and æsthetic adaptation, brought his tableaux to such perfection that they not only delight our senses, but by their allegorical character, preach a sermon to our understanding.

REINSTATED.—A telegram from Washington, Friday, to the Commandant of the Navy Yard, countermanded the order for the removal of Mr. Gardner M. Goodrich, Clerk to Navigation Officer, which was made a few days since that Mr. Chas. R. Littlefield of Maine might be provided for. We hope that Messrs. Freeman F. Sanborn and Amos S. Foster of the Steam Engineering Department, may have justice done them in like manner. Their Republicanism was never doubted, and Mr. Sanborn had fought against the rebellion, rising from private to Captain in the 10th N. H. Regiment. If such a record is to be forgotten and the soldier is to be kicked about like a shuttle-cock, the Republican leaders will give their opponents a fine example of repudiation of the worst kind.

A more absurd claim than that Maine and New Hampshire must share equal Navy Yard honors, and that, to square matters, New Hampshire Republicans, whose abilities to fill their positions were never questioned, must be removed to make way for others from Maine, was never before urged. It is the finest of fine hair splitting, and the meanest of mean transactions ever heard of, even in political matters. The person who invented the system should be fully entitled to a brass medal—as small as his own mind—as a reward for his brilliant idea. We hear that the generous people over the river concede to New Hampshire two clerkships filled by gentleman from Maryland and Massachusetts, over which the trading politicians have no control. As Maine was originally a portion of Massachusetts, and Massachusetts and Maryland troops have met together and tried each other's steel, wouldn't it be appropriate to turn them over to Maine, if the State Rights' doctrine is to be strictly enforced in the distribution of offices?

The whole affair is a foolish farce, ridiculously small and liable to be thought of as particularly indicative of the breadth of brain and width of mind displayed by the Maine place givers—for by their fruits ye know them. If there is a Maine Republican who needs a clerkship at the Yard, we would respectfully submit that common decency should determine him not to eat of his kind, lest people not understanding the manœuvre might think him in league with his opponents, inasmuch is one representative of Maine copperheadism, at least, remains on duty at the Navy Yard.

THE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION met at Concord on Friday and was largely attended. The organization was perfected as follows;

President, Hon. Asa Fowler of Concord.

Vice Presidents,—Rockingham County—John W. Noyes; Strafford—Charles A. Tufts; Belknap—Harrison Beede; Carroll—John McMullen; Merrimack—Moses T. Willard; Hillsborough—John B. Clarke; Cheshire—S. W. Hale; Sullivan — Arnold Briggs; Grafton—Everts W. Farr; Coos—A. M. Chase.

Secretaries,—Wyman Pattee, James A. Place, Frank W. Miller.

Hon. Onslow Stearns of Concord was unanimously re-nominated for Governor, the Convention rising and cheering. On balloting for Railroad Commissioner, Charles P. Gage of Nashua was nominated, receiving 299 votes, to 143 for Charles Williams of Manchester.

The Committee appointed to inform the Governor of his re-nomination returned with a letter of declination, the reason assigned being his ill health. The members of the Convention were taken completely by surprise, and after considerable debate another Committee of ten was appointed to urge his acceptance which was finally successful, and Gov. Stearns accepted the honor.

Resolutions of considerable length were passed, and ex-Gov. Harriman addressed the convention in a rousing speech, saying he went for the resolutions entire, and Gov. Stearns, sick or well, just as he is.

Communication.

THE ROOT OF BITTERNESS. — Messrs. Editors:—In a late number of the Gazette, you made pleasant mention of a Mayor's Feast, given by the retiring Mayor, Hon. Frank Jones;—and gave a report of his speech on that occasion, in which he expressed his opinion that the bitterness of party spirit had greatly increased in the twenty-one years of his residence here, so that now political opponents seemed to hate each other; a state of things which he deplored.

Very probably there was a sort of lull in politics about twenty-one years ago; but if the gentleman knew much about Portsmouth politics at some periods further back, he would not suppose the "former days were better than these" in that respect.

There is, moreover, a reason for the present bitterness in the political waters here, that Mr. Jones does not think of, but which is quite obvious to other people, who look at it from a different standpoint.

It is a well known fact, that when the leading conspirators had fired the Southern heart, Secession was rampant, the Confederacy was forming, and Rebellion had broken out into war,—the printer and publisher of the Gazette, then the paper of the democratic party, employed a talented editor, who aimed to conduct a decent and loyal democratic paper,—but that was not agreeable to the party,—and the paper changed hands and politics.

After some delay, a contribution was made by a few wealthy leaders of the party, to start a new paper, and an editor was imported, full of the "gall of bitterness," which he has been pouring out ever since, month after month, and year after year, against the most loyal, patriotic and exemplary men in the land, and especially in this vicinity.

All this while, he has never uttered one word of rebuke against the rebellion or the rebels, or which could offend the bitterest copperhead.—But if any person, of whatever station, has been particularly faithful to the United States, and particularly influential in sustaining the Union and putting down the rebellion, such an one has been sure to be attacked by the editor and paper referred to, with vials of wrath and volleys of filth.

Yet, with the knowledge of these facts, two later contributions to sustain the concern, have been made by the wealthier members of the party,—and its influence on the ignorant and gullible souls who swallow its decoctions, is to make them as bitter as itself! All such actions, of course, produce some reaction or counter action among opponents; and so it comes to pass that those contributors, who have bolstered up a base and mischievous press, have been the real authors of the bitterness which Mr. Jones deplores.—It he is a contributor, let him behold his own work. X.

Rev. James DeNormandie, will, at the special request of many persons, recommence the series of sermons to the young next Sunday Evening. Youth Renewed by the religious use of Time.

THE GRIZZLY.

A CALIFORNIA TALE.

Sitting in the luxurious apartments of my noble mansion on Fifth Avenue, I often recall a scene in my life the very thought of which fills me still with terror.

I was not born to riches. I was well educated and extremely poor when I commenced life. At that time, just when I was seriously debating whether I should teach school or open a retail grocery store out West, the startling tidings came of the great gold discoveries in California, which set on fire the brain of the world. I yielded to the potent influence of the gold-fever at once, and was one of the very first who went out to the new "El Dorado." I sailed out in a vessel which, from the hold to the cradles, was literally crammd with human beings, and landed on the streets of the embryo city of San Francisco with scarcely a rag on my back.

I hurried off at once to a placer just then discovered, and whither a large crowd of human beings—the representatives of nearly every nation under heaven—had already assembled. Desperate characters they were, to be sure! Convicts recently escaped from prison, and broken-down lawyers; ticket-of-leave men from Botany Bay and Norfolk Island, with impoverished clergymen; retired organ-grinders, with graduates of European universities—all were there. I marvel now at the coolness with which I ventured into the midst of such a crowd of desperadoes. But I myself was a desperado.

I chose, after a long search, a place in a remote canon as the scene of my labors. Here I made my rude hut and proceeded to dig. There were neighbors around me. In fact it was difficult to avoid neighbors, even if it had been desirable. No matter where a man might go, some one would be sure to track him. So I made the best of it, and put up with the presence of others.

Take them all in all my neighbors were about as villainous-looking a set of men as I had seen out of jail. One was a negro of enormous proportions, black as a coal, with the expression of an unmanable savage in his brutal features. Another was a long, thin, cunning, treacherous miscreant, who (as I afterward learned) had been confined for twelve years in the Sing Sing prison, for an atrocious crime. Another was a short, thick-set man, with a heavy beard which almost concealed his features, but added to his ferocious expression. Among all the wild adventurers whom I had encountered, none were altogether so repulsive as these. They went respectively by the names of "Nigger," Sing Sing," and "Pirate."

I tried to get away from the neighborhood of these men, but a fatality seemed to attend my efforts. On three different occasions I removed to new places, and actually, each time, I encountered these men, who had moved on before me. It looked as though I was actually following them. So I tried to get rid of my aversion, and turned myself to work.

At the last place to which we came there was a very remarkable man who had been living there for some time. He was a Spaniard, was tall and well formed, with a wonderful expression of resolution and daring in his face. His face was pale, his eyes dark, and his general appearance commanded involuntary respect. He lived in a hut above a cavern on the side of a neighboring hill. This place he had selected for a residence some time previously.

He was never seen digging any where in particular, and it was generally surmised that he had some mysterious diggings in the immediate neighborhood of his cavern.

I dug on patiently for some months, and gained barely enough to supply myself with the necessaries of life. I began to be very greatly discouraged. One evening I sat moodily near the place where I had been working. I had lost all hope. For three days I had gained absolutely nothing.

"Buenos dias, Senor."

Looking up I saw the Spaniard. I bowed and was silent.

"You have a very deep hole there," he said.

"I should think so," I replied.

"Are you encouraged, Senor? Pardon me, but you look disheartened, I think."

"I have reason to be. I have gained nothing. I must leave this place."

The Spaniard's eye lightened up. "No, Senor, do not."

"Do not?—why should I waste my time longer?"

"One must be patient, Senor."

"Yes, but patience has its limits."

The Spaniard gave me a look of the deepest meaning.

"Senor," he said, "if you are wise you will wait and work yet longer."

I looked inquiringly at him, but he turned away, and before I could speak had gone. As I looked up I saw close beside me the trio before mentioned. They had heard our short conversation. They were exchanging glances. I turned away and began to whistle. In a few moments I was at my work again and they had gone.

I had scarcely given more than a dozen blows with my pick before I heard a loud cry. I recognized the Spaniard's voice. It was in the direction of his hut. To seize my two revolvers and to bound forward, in the direction in which I heard the voice, was but the work of a moment.

There stood the Spaniard with the three men around him. He held a keen knife in his hand and stood at bay. They were all armed with axes.

"Help, Senor!" shouted the Spaniard.

"Back, you infernal fool!" cried "Sing Sing," waving his oil.

"You murderous villains!" I exclaimed, leveling both revolvers." "If you don't make tracks double quick you'll never leave this place alive!"

The men fell back cowed completely by my terrible revolvers. The Spaniard smiled sarcastically, bowed to me, turned away, and disappeared among the trees. The men walked off scowling and muttering.—I, too, turned away.

A week passed. I worked on. At last the hour came. Great Heavens! can I ever forget that time—the moment when the hopes of years, the longings of a lifetime lay fulfilled before me!

It was sunset. The clouds were all aflame. The river rolled gloriously by.—The trees tossed up their branches in the evening wind as though bidding the day farewell; from the forest came a burst of melody.

There I stood, a rough, ragged miner, in the bottom of a deep, wet, muddy hole.—There I stood with thrills of rapture shooting through me. All my soul entranced, all my gaze riveted on one glittering mass at my feet.

I was master of wealth untold!

After the first burst of joy a revulsion came; I had found my treasure, but how could I secure it? How could I carry it away unseen? Where should I take it? Or, if I did not carry it away, where should I hide it?

These thoughts flashed with the rapidity of light through my mind. I stood now overcome with perplexity.

I heard a movement above me. Looking up suddenly I thought I saw a dusky figure glide among the trees. "Is that Nigger?" I thought.

It was a lonely place. There were the trio and the Spaniard—no other neighbors were near. The first was dangerous, the latter helpless. My strength lay in myself. My resolution was soon formed. I would bury as much of my treasure as I could carry in my tent, cover up the hole, and watch all night.

It was ten o'clock before I had buried all that I wanted in my hat, and covered up my hole to my satisfaction. The intense excitement of the occasion already began to have its effects. I fancied I heard footsteps. A moment after I reached forth to get my revolvers, which, in my hurry and agitation, I had left in my tent some hours before.

The weapons were gone.

A cold sweat burst out upon me. I rushed back to the hole, hoping to find them there. A tall figure stood there. He had my pistols in his hands, displaying them with a triumphant gesture to two others.

It was "Nigger," with "Sing Sing" and "Pirate."

"I am lost!" I groaned. "To stay here is death, to go back to my hut is destruction. I am unarmed. These men would think no more of killing me than of crushing a fly." These thoughts came and passed in a moment.

Where should I go?

I could only think of the Spaniard.—Without giving another moment's thought I turned and fled. My movements were seen. I was discovered. With a loud and savage shout they ran after me. Six bullets whistled past my head, but fortunately none touched me. If ever fear lent wings it was at that moment. I bounded along the path and down the hill and up on the other side toward where the Spaniard lived.

I heard them call on me to stop.

"Never mind," cried another voice, which I recognized as that of the "Pirate:" we'll get them both together this time.

On, on I ran. The clatter of footsteps was close behind.

With the frenzy of desperation, I rattled at the Spaniard's door. My pursuers were close upon me.

"Let me in! Save me!" I shouted.

Hurried footsteps sounded within. The bars rattled. I heard a sound, a heavy sound, I was pulled violently inside,—the door was banged to and secured just as the eager blows of my pursuers fell upon it.

Just in time!" he murmured, breathlessly. "Up stairs, quick!"

He held a lantern in his hand. By its light I saw a rude ladder which ascended to an opening above. I clambered up as I was directed. The Spaniard came up after me.

"All right," said he, as he gave me a meaning glance.

The men below had dealt some tremendous blows at the door, which yet held on, however. I heard them eagerly shouting to one another. They said not a word to us. "No quarter" was their motto.

A few minutes of silence elapsed. They had gone off. They soon returned, however. I heard their heavy steps.

"This'll fix 'em," said one.

A moment after a terrific blow, as if dealt by some huge beam, struck the door. The hinges yielded. But in a moment a tremendous growl sounded out and drowned every other sound. It was a wild, deep, terrific roar. My blood ran cold within me. I had heard the sound before, but never so near. Then arose to heaven shriek after shriek, and piteous calls for mercy.

The only answer was the terrific roar which had first sounded, and sounds as of breaking, crushing bones. In a few minutes all was still. The Spaniard descended,—He was not gone long.

"It's all over!" he said, returning.

I descended. There on the floor lay the mangled bodies of the three wretches, and in the corner was the gigantic form of the largest grizzly bear I ever saw.

I left the hut and never saw the Spaniard again. In a few weeks I had my gold all safe in San Francisco, and was preparing to return to the East.—Harper's Weekly.

A Cincinnati reveller celebrated New Year by falling into a cistern. He left one foot sticking out of the water so as to inform his friends that he was ready for a funeral.

New York trains leave the Old Colony and Newport Railway Depot, corner of South and Kneeland Streets, daily, (Sundays excepted,) as follows: at 4.30 P. M., arriving in Fall River 40 min. in advance of the regular Steamboat Train, which leaves Boston at 5.40 P. M., connecting at Fall River with the new and magnificent steamers PROVIDENCE, Capt. B. M. Simmons, and BRISTOL, Capt. W. H. Lewis. These steamers are the fastest and most reliable boats on the Sound, built expressly for speed, safety and comfort. This Line connects with all the Southern Boats and Railroad Lines from New York going West and South, and convenient to the California Steamers.

"To Shippers of Freight," this Line, with its new and extensive depot accommodations in Boston, and large pier in New York, (exclusively for the business of the Line,) is supplied with facilities for freight and passenger business which cannot be surpassed. Freight always taken at low rates, and forwarded with despatch.

New York Express Freight Train leaves Boston at 1.30 P. M.; goods arrive in New York next morning about 9 A. M. Freight leaving New York reaches Boston on the following day, at 9.45 A. M.

For tickets, berths and staterooms, apply at the Company's office at No. 3 Old State House, corner of Washington and State Streets, and at old Colony and Newport Railroad Depot, corner of South and Kneeland Streets, Boston.

Steamers leave New York daily, (Sundays excepted,) from Pier 30 North River, foot of Chambers Street, at 4 P. M.

THE FUTURE LIFE.

There is to all another life,
A life that knows no end;
Eternal as the Heaven itself,
T'wards which our spirits wend.

This mortal frame, borne to the tomb,
Will moulder 'neath the sod,
The ever living soul must pass
To its Creator, God:

With God, but not far, far away,
Within a distant sphere;
The infinite is everywhere,
He's ever present here.

Man, who by natures process changed,
Passes the second birth;
Now enters on a better life,—
His Heaven is still on earth:

With us, though free from earthly clogs,
From flesh and blood but shorn;
The natural body 's laid aside,
He's clothed in spirit form.

Thus liveth man in his new life,
An immortal spirit here;
No more let sorrow fill our hearts,
Grieve not,—our friends are near.

SALT.—Common salt is a manure, the use of which is not only side-spread, but very ancient. In large quantities it is injurious, destroying vegetation rather than increasing its growth. In moderate amounts, however, it has been found on some soils very valuable. Such are most likely to occur in places far distant from the ocean; as the sea-breeze carries small quantities of salt spray far inland, and deposits it upon the soil;—all who live in the vicinity of salt water know that its peculiar smell may often be perceived at a distance of many miles in the interior. For this reason salt is not usually found to be of much value as a manure near the salt water.

A small proportion mixed in with a compost-heap is likely to be useful. Another good way is to dissolve a little in water used for slacking quicklime. The compound thus formed is very energetic in its action upon vegetable substances, and has been found an admirable application to many soils, particularly on those where there is much inert vegetable matter that can only be descomposed with great difficulty. Common salt is, according to the popular definition composed of chlorine and soda. The refuse liquid from salt-works, after the salt has been crystallized out, contains some soluble compounds of lime, magnesia, &c., and might, applied carefully in small quantities, be useful. A large dose of this liquid also, would be total to vegetation. D.

Wednesday, at 144 Forty-second street, Mrs. Wm. H. Disbrow died. Only a few years ago she was the highest and most brilliant on the list of New York belles. Wednesday she died in the rear room of the fifth story of one of the most magnificently furnished and built houses in the city; and though she owned the furniture, many thousands of dollars' worth, those who by her death became its owners sent her at the expense of the city of New York to a home in the Potter's Field.

She was the wife, too, of the lately deceased Wm. H. Disbrow, once the well-known proprietor of Disbrow's riding academy. Her mother discarded her when she married against her will. So, deserted by her mother and robbed in her own home, her body was carried to Potter's Field. She was 29 years old, was beautiful, always respectable, and only eighteen months ago her fair form wore $15,000 worth of diamonds.

Last week, Mr. F. S. Cozzens of "Sparrow-Grass Papers" fame, died in Brooklyn. He was formerly a "Wine Merchant," which is to say, a rum-seller. He had a splendid residence on the Hudson at one time, and enjoyed prosperity. A year or two since he failed, and took to writing for the press to eke out a scanty substance, finally dying, obscurely, as above said. He had around him, at times, many of those creatures popularly known as "friends," who deserted him however, when the stock of whiskey failed, not being able to fill their stomachs, exclusively, with wit and humor in which he greatly abounded. He was a younger crony, and one of the warm eulogists of the late Fitz Greene Halleck. They both loved their worst enemy, and enjoyed many a "good time" together.

North Ferrisburg, Vt., is to have a "Hard Times Ball" on the 12th instant. No lady admitted except in calico dress, and gentlemen must appear in coarse, every-day clothes. Each one is expected to bring his own cold victuals. The invitations are printed on rough straw paper, and the order of dances is on straw box board.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

CHRONICLES OF OLD TIMES.

BY UNCLE TOBY.

The Portsmouth Privateers of 1812.

NUMBER I.

What privateers? asks a youngster. The Yankee privateers of 1812-15, says Uncle Toby:—and especially those which sailed from Portsmouth, or sent their prizes in here.

The first prize sent in here was the British brig Resolution, which was captured by the privateer schooner Nancy, Capt. Richard Smart. As War was declared by the United States June 18, and this prize was libelled July 31, this was quick work. The Nancy sailed from this port July 15.

We have no distinct remembrance of the Nancy, except her name; but Mr. Brewster, in Ramble 134, represents her as fitting out at the old wharf at Point of Graves, and says, "that man with two pistols in his belt, and his vest pockets filled with powder, is Captain Smart. There is a large company of spectators on the wharf, looking at the little craft. But off she goes to the mouth of the St. Lawrence, and like a small spider entangling a bumblebee, she soon returns with her prize."

This prize was the Resolution, as mentioned above, which was described by Deputy Marshal Libbey, who sold her, as the brigantine Resolution, 120 tons, Capt. Samuel McKinney; and her cargo was 728 bbls. flour, 270 tierces peas, 1 ton cordage; her armament 1 blunderbus and 7 muskets.

Two of the very early privateers we do remember, viz., the Squando and the Thomas. Most of our readers have heard of the latter, either as the Thomas or the Revenge, which last was a mere fancy name, borne in large letters on her Recruiting Flags, which went about town with bands of music, drums, fiddles, triangles, fifes, &c.

But probably very few remember the present day, ever heard of the Squando, or ever would hear, but for this chapter of trifles,—the remainder of which belongs to the Squando.

She was nothing more nor less than a pink-stern schooner, or, as she would then have been called, a Chebacco Boat, of not more than 30 tons, with only a short bowsprit, and her foremast very near the stem. She had only three sails, while a fisherman, and no topmasts or jib-boom; but now, as a cruiser, more canvas was desirable, and of course more spars to spread it on. But canvas was dear; and her owners were not very rich, but they were economical. Two poles went up for topmasts, and another was extemporized as a jib-boom. A flying-jib was set; also a foretopsail and a square-sail, all made of common tow cloth. This odd mixture of sail-cloths gave the vessel a grotesque appearance; but no matter for that,—she sailed well before, but now was very swift, with this cheap addition to her apparel.

Her armament also was cheap. Her cannon were two or three swivels, carrying a one pound ball; a dozen small arms; as many cutlasses, made of scythes; and plenty of boarding pikes, completed this part of her outfit.

After a short cruise, she returned to this port, Sept. 1, 1812, with her prize, the British schooner Ferebe & Phœbe, Gideon Vanenberg master, with a full cargo of green fish, i. e. fish salted but not dried. The crew were two boys, of 14 and 16 years, sons of the captain and part owner. The prize was anchored near the North Mill, and as she swung round toward the Bridge, we boys used to observe a good sized rat hole through her stern, which showed her, we thought, to be an old vessel, and pretty thickly settled.

She was not, of course, a rich prize; but her sale wound up the concern without loss. The Squando was no more a privateer; but her armament doubtless went to sea in some other cruiser.

Our next number will contain some notice of the Thomas, and her prize the Falmouth.

SMALL-POX.—A surgeon of the British army in China is reported to have discovered an effectual remedy for small-pox. The treatment is as follows: When the premonitory fever is at its height, and just before the eruption appears, the chest of the patient is rubbed with croton oil and tartar emetic ointment. This application it is asserted, causes the whole of the eruption to appear on the chest, to the relief of the rest of the body. It also secures a full and complete eruption, and thus prevents the disease from attacking the internal organs.

—It is claimed that rats may be prevented from gnawing a harness by mixing with the oil applied, a little cayenne pepper, say a teaspoonful to the quart. The rats get bite for bite, and clear out before doing any damage, feeling uncommon smart.

—Next year New Year's Day and Christmas both fall on Sunday. What shall we do about it?

WATER YOUR HORSES.—It has been proved by cruel experiments in France that a horse will live twice as long upon water without solid food, as he can upon solid food without water—showing the importance of water in the sustenance of the horse. A horse which had been deprived of water for three days, drank eleven gallons in the space of three minutes.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION LECTURE.—A large audience assembled at Mercantile Hall last Tuesday evening, to listen to the fifth lecture of this course. Mr. Albee of Newcastle had been announced to repeat his lecture on the Farm, but at a late hour in the afternoon it was found that he was unavoidably detained in Massachusetts. At the earnest request of the Association, Rev. James DeNormandie consented to deliver his lecture on the American Idea in Education. This announcement was received with applause by the audience. Mr. DeNormandie prefaced his lecture with several capital stories which created considerable amusement. In comparing our free system of education with the system of Prussia, England and other large countries, the lecturer placed the United States at the head and far in advance of any other country. He showed the importance of practical education in our schools and colleges—In alluding to the study of the science of government, citizenship and politics in its broadest sense, he said there was no country where these studies were so sadly neglected as in this. In closing, while referring to religion and the struggle which is going on in several of our large cities between the Catholics and Protestants his remarks that it was not of so great importance whether or not a few verses of scripture were read in the schools but that the voting of appropriations of money to certain sects should be related to the utmost, was greeted with the hearty approval of the audience. For three quarters of an hour the lecturer held the undivided attention of those present; we thought he spoke with more than his usual force and eloquence.

For the sixth entertainment, Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett will lecture on some of the causes that have led to success and failure in the plans of life. We fear the hall will hardly contain all who wish to hear Mr. Hackett. The lecture commences at 1-4 to 8 next Tuesday evening.

WARM SEASON.—Some of the farmers in this region were plowing on Monday last,—among them Dea. A. B. Hutchinson of Greenland, who is spending his first season there and makes for us a very favorable comparison between the winters of the Green Mountain and Granite State. Do you plow in January, Mr. St. Johnsbury Caledonian?

James F. Shores, Esq. informs us that on the first day of January, 1815, he rode faom Portsmouth to Exeter while the roads were not only dry but dusty. 1830 is said to be the latest instance of warm weather in the early part of the winter, but we see that shortly after the papers speak of the extreme cold weather and mention the fact that all the harbors on the coast except Portsmouth were frozen. The following mention of the warm weather is made in the Journal of Jan. 2 1830.

"The unusual mildness of the weather since the 23d of Dec. is worthy of record. Farmers in the vicinity improved the fine last days of the year in plowing! The weather continued warm till about the hour the year closed when it suddenly changed, and the New Year came in, 'In icy fetters bound.'

In the year 1794 the month of December was mild enough to admit of plowing, and we have understood that there had been but one year since, previous to the past when the month was so mild. In 1794, very cold weather immediately succeeded."

The above statement of the temperature of the last week of the year 1830 compares very closely with the last week of 1869, except that the "icy fetters" have not yet appeared. The thermometer was below the freezing point only four times at 7 o'clock in the morning between the 17th of Dec. 1869 and the 3d of Jan. 1870, and the average temperature at that hour in the morning for the three weeks was 32.6. In Boston, as we learn by the Traveller, Sunday last was the twelfth, and Monday the thirteenth day, in succession, on which the thermometer was at 40 or upwards; on Monday it rose to 57½, the highest since early on December 1st, when it was 61.

The last days of 1862 were also very warm. We find by the weather record in the Journal that at 7 o'clock in the morning the thermometer was only twice below the freezing point during the week ending Jan. 1, 1863, and on one morning was 40° above zero. On the 3d of January 1863 our streets were as bare of snow as in July, and the whole month of January unusually warm.

THE BYRON MYSTERY.—The war of words which ensued upon the publication of certain disclosures of Mrs. H. B. Stowe in the Atlantic Monthly, promises to be re-opened, by a recent publication by Mrs. Stowe, just issued. Mrs. Stowe's book of about 500 pages, is entitled "Lady Byron Vindicated: a History of the Byron Controversy from its beginning in 1816 to the present time." In this publication Mrs. Stowe adheres not only to the truth of all the material statements she has already made upon the subject, but to her judgement of the propriety of making them. We have not seen the work, and can only judge of its merit s by the reviews which have been published. It will undoubtedly find many readers but we question the propriety of making public the disclosure which was made to her in confidence by Lady Byron, and which she had no authority to reveal. It is unfortunate that Mrs. Stowe did not adhere to the determination expressed in the following words to Lady Byron when she had some thought of publishing the story herself:

"Considering the peculiar circumstances of the case, I could wish that the sacred veil of silence, so bravely thrown over the past, should never be withdrawn during the time that you remain with us. I would say, then, Leave all with some discreet friends, who, after both have passed from earth, shall say what was due to justice."

FALL RIVER LINE

FOR New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and all principal points West, South and South-west.

VIA TAUNTON, FALL RIVER AND NEWPORT.

Steamers leave Pier No. 38 Old Colony and Newport Railway Depot, corner of South and Kneeland Streets, daily, (Sundays excepted,) as follows: at 4.30 P. M., arriving in Fall River 40 min. in advance of the regular Steamboat Train, which leaves Boston at 5.30 P. M., connecting at Fall River with the new and magnificent steamers PROVIDENCE, Capt. B. M. Simmons, and BRISTOL, Capt. W. H. Lewis. These steamers are the fastest and most reliable boats on the Sound, built expressly for speed, safety and comfort. This Line connects with all the Southern Boats and Railroad Lines from New York going West and South, and convenient to the California Steamers.

"To Shippers of Freight," this Line, with its new and extensive depot accommodations in Boston, and large pier in New York, (exclusively for the business of the Line,) is supplied with facilities for freight and passenger business which cannot be surpassed. Freight always taken at low rates, and forwarded with despatch.

New York Express Freight Train leaves Boston at 1.30 P. M.; goods arrive in New York next morning about 6 A. M. Freight leaving New York reaches Boston on the following morning at 9.45 A. M.

For tickets, berths and staterooms, apply at the Company's office at No. 3 Old State House, corner of Washington and State Streets, and at old Colony and Newport Railroad Depot, corner of South and Kneeland Streets, Boston.

Steamers leave New York daily, (Sundays excepted,) from Pier 30 North River, foot of Chambers Street, at 4 P. M.

SNOW FLAKES.

Out of the bosom of the Air,
Out of the cloud-folds of her garments shaken,
Over the woodlands brown and bare,
Over the harvest-fields forsaken,
Silent and soft and slow
Descends the snow.

Even as our cloudy fancies take
Suddenly shape in some divine expression,
Even as the troubled heart doth make
In the white countenance confession,
The troubled sky reveals
The grief it feels.

This is the poem of the air,
Slowly in silent syllables recorded;
This is the secret of despair,
Long in its cloudy bosom hoarded,
Now whispered and revealed
To wood and field.

H. W. LONGFELLOW.

PLUCK AND PLOD.—Mayor Hall of New York, in a speech to the boys at Packard's Business College, says:

I don't believe the annals of the business world will ever show a truly business man asking employment without getting it. I know hundreds and hundreds of men out of employment, but they are drones—they are not business men. Now and then a business man may lack a little pluck; but there can be no business man, worthy the title, who has not pluck. And it is the business, as I am told it is the pleasure and success, of Mr. Packard, to teach you all pluck in life, as one of its chief requirements.

And I am glad, young gentlemen, that he teaches you the meaning of another word equally important, and equally effective—the old Anglo-Saxon word plod. There is no better word in the world than "plod," to embrace the idea it conveys. If you would really and truly succeed in life, young men, you must plod. "Oh!" says somebody, "John Brown—a snap of the finger for him, he is only a plodder!" Only a plodder! There never was a man, tho' he were the most brilliant genius in the world, who did not owe his great, his true success in life, to being a plodder as well. It is all very well for genius to corruscate, and light up the path of life, but it must be pluck and plod that carries a man successfully over the ruts, and mounds, and hill-tops in that pathway. It must be plodding and toiling, accompanying genius, which brings a man of genius up to the top round of the ladder of life. Genius is never so great as when, with plod as its staff and pluck as its watchword, it marches through the world to conquer.

I hope you will remember these two English words as being the keys to true success. Pluck and Plod. I would have them inscribed upon your walls. Remember ever the pluck of life, and never forget the plod of, life and success is certain. Remember Longfellow:

The heights by great men reached,
Were not attained and kept by sudden flight;
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upwards in the night.

Almost the last word that James T. Brady said at the Girard dinner last winter were these:—"I feel as if I was more a boy to-night than I ever was before." With the great weight of his business and his disease pressing upon the brain of advancing age, the heart of the boy was in the old place; and all who knew him, know that pluck and plod were twin companions of his early genius. Almost the last time I saw Mr. Raymond, he was standing against one of the Park posts, by the Times office, for a moment, watching the boys playing ball—he was always a boy in his feelings; and he, too, was a man who illustrated genius with pluck and plod.

The other maxim which I would leave with you is that which Shakespeare puts into the mouth of Polonious:

"To thine own self be true,
And it will follow as the day the night,
Thou canst not then be false to any man.

In vain will be your business education unless in business dealings you are true to yourselves and not false to others. We hear, and so do men in public life, a great deal of "what will the world say about me?" "What will the newspapers think about me?" Why, that (snapping his finger) for what men think or say about you! The great point for incentive or remorse, young gentlemen, is what you think about yourselves. A man knows what he is, morally as well as mentally, unless he has been utterly glamoured with the rainbow of egotism. If you are, in conduct, true to yourselves, as God intended you to be, you cannot be false to any other man, and if you think rightly about yourselves, then you may be certain that you are all right, unless your nature is perverted.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGE.—Among other changes in the postal laws it is proposed by some member of Congress to abolish the postage on newspapers,—giving them a free circulation to subscribers all over the Union in addition to the county in which it was published, as the law now is. This would be a capital thing for the "metropolitan press" as the great Journals are styled, and very convenient for those who take them; but it would be a tax upon the Post Office Department which even the abolition of the franking privilege would not balance, besides being death to the country press, many of which now find it hard work to "abide in the flesh" against the competition of city Journals whose weeklies are made up of their daily issues and sold for less than the cost of the paper on which they are printed.

Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents, and legal opinions and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unanimity of success is proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. For the Chronicle and Gazette.

THE REASON WHY.—Messrs. Editors: In my last week's paper I read an account of a farewell Supper given by Hon. Frank Jones, on the occasion of his leaving the Mayor's chair,—at which he referred to the bitter party spirit of Portsmouth politicians, and expressed his belief that it was injurious to the best interests of the city, and his regret that such feelings should exist.

That a bitter party spirit, injurious to the city, exists, I believe; nor do I doubt Mr. Jones' sincerity in deploring its existence.—for, though politically opposed to him, I honestly believe he has the real interests of the city at heart —and he has not been sparing of valuable time in attending to all the duties of his late office.

But either he is more short-sighted as to one—and I believe the principal—cause of this bitterness, or he is more inconsistent in his regrets than he is in anything else I have ever heard or read of him; for (if general rumor is correct,) Mr. Jones himself has paid liberally to bring about the very state of affairs he now sees to be prejudicial to the prosperity of the city.

Let Mr. Jones look over his files of the recognized organ of his party in this city, from the day it was first launched by the party leaders, and carefully observe the manner in which it has carried on the warfare of politics. If he can find one instance in which a controversy has therein been conducted without its opponent being overwhelmed with a mass of vile names, malicious innuendoes and vulgar slang, he will find what I have never been able to, yet, in that organ.

Has any republican had the temerity to dissent from the views of the democracy—no matter in how courteous and gentlemanly a manner such dissent has been expressed—the flood-gates of vilification and abuse have been instantly raised, and all the "bitterness of party spirit" poured upon his devoted head, in the form of savage denunciation, insulting epithets and infamous insinuations, and even the most obscene ribaldry,—such as I believe no other paper in New Hampshire, if even in New England, would publish under any circumstances,—till some prominent democrats, even, would not take it into their families.

Neither station, character, age, nor even sex, has been any protection from its bitter malice,—for more than one republican, whom its conductors despaired of touching personally by their abuse, they have endeavored to exasperate and injure by publishing the basest and most cowardly insinuations concerning those dearer to them than life itself.—Mr. J. can easily verify these charges for himself—if he needs to have them verified.

That the democratic leaders—many of them men of wealth, of high social position, of influence and standing in the churches, and courteous and honorable in their private intercourse with others and in their business dealings,—should support and encourage such a base, dishonorable and utterly unmanly style of warfare, is hardly more surprising than that Mr. Jones should regret or deplore that it has had its natural, inevitable effect.

Suppose he, at his festival, had denounced his republican guests as liars, thieves, scoundrels, dogs, devils, "niggers," pimps and assassins; and their mothers, wives, sisters and daughters, as being the most degraded and abandoned of their sex,—would he have been surprised if what was really an occasion of a pleasant interchange of good feeling had resulted very differently? I think not. Mr. Jones is a man of far more than the average of sound common sense—and would know that such conduct on his part would stir up the "bitter spirit" in his guests.

Yet he might have as reasonably expected a pleasant party after such abuse, as to suppose that an organ that constantly appealed to the basest and most ignoble passions of the most ignorant portion of one party, and as persistently traduced and vilified every prominent or active man in the other, would not create and foster the "party spirit" which makes the Portsmouth politicians seem to (and I will go further than Mr. Jones, for in many cases they really do) hate each other.

The democratic leaders are the men who are really responsible for the bitter party spirit which Mr. Jones deplores; for if they—husbands, fathers, sons, christians, gentlemen,—had discouraged the never-ceasing and wholly uncalled-for personal attacks of the organ which they have repeatedly contributed to sustain and encourage, upon all, men or women, who dared to differ from them in politics, the mud-spattering would have long ago ceased,—and the best interests of the city been studied by both parties, instead of how best to injure and annoy each other.

GAZETTEER.

CONGRESS.—Both Houses assembled on Monday with a very full attendance.

In the House, Mr. Bingham introduced a resolution declaring that the State of Virginia is entitled to immediate representation in Congress.

A good deal of excitement ensued, and by a vote of 67 to 58 the House ordered the previous question upon the passage of the bill.

Before the roll-call was commenced a motion was made to reconsider the vote just taken, which resulted in the vote of 77 ayes to 76 nays. Speaker Blaine voted in the negative. The House refused to reconsider their action.

A motion to adjourn was voted down, 38 to 99.

The Speaker having voted on reconsidering, thinking it was a tie vote, withdrew his vote, and the motion to reconsider was carried, 77 to 76.

REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE. — The Republican State Convention at Concord resolved itself into County Conventions, for the purpose of selecting a State Committee; and in due time the following committee was reported for Rockingham and Strafford Counties:

Rockingham — Samuel A. Haley, Newmarket; John Hodgdon, 2d, Portsmouth; Charles G. Connor, Exeter; Wm. Dow, Epping; W. H. Brickett, Hampstead; O. P. Patton, Kingston; Henry E. Eastman, Derry.

Strafford—Andrew H. Young, Daniel Hall, Dover; Wm. D. Knapp, Somersworth; Alonzo Tute, Farmington; E. G. Wallace, Rochester; J. M. Bunker, Durham; Charles Jones, Milton; James A. Place, Rollinsford.

For Rockingham, Mr. Aaron Young of Portsmouth moved that the same Committee as last year, be re-chosen by acclamation. This motion, Mr. Young, W. C. Patten of Kingston, and others, supported by remarks, as the usual and proper method, where a Committee has served but one year and is satisfactory. Mr. Young further stated that the old list gave but one member to a town, while a new one proposed gave two to Exeter and three to Portsmouth.

Mr. Hoyt of the Exeter News Letter, wished to vote by ballot, which he and one or two others cons idered the fairest way. More than one member was suggested in the larger towns, to make a more effective Committee, that was all. On taking a vote, it was almost unanimous in favor of Mr. Young's motion.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

YORK, ME., Jan. 10.

Mr. George Woodward of this town, died early on the morning of the 2nd inst. He was well and about his work the day before. His family had no notice of any trouble, except a groan at 4 o'clock in the morning, and when they got to his bedside, life was extinct. He was 60 years of age, and a worthy, upright citizen.

I send herewith a partial list of deaths in York during the year just closed—kindly furnished by Mr. Hiram Perkins, who has for many years been the faithful sexton of the first congregational church in this place, and thus been "gathering them in," as said the sexton of olden time. The list is not complete, but we tender him our thanks, and shall hope for a more perfect list at the close of the present year.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

We circulate this week a subscription paper for the republication of the First series of the Rambles, to which we have already about a hundred names. If we obtain five hundred names the book will be reprinted. Among the many applications we have had for the work we give the following to indicate the consideration in which the book is held by one of the literary gentlemen of Portsmouth:

Mr. Brewster:—Can you furnish me a copy of the first series of the Rambles at any price? I have been reading the second with a great deal of pleasure. The portion replacing the burnt district possesses great merit and power even. I took up the book expecting to find something pleasant, but not what I have found. The "Great Fire" is itself so vividly described as to make it seem a present reality; but it is the harder task of restoring the burnt district to which I particularly refer. The author brings back old scenes and leaves them clear and fresh before the mind. Had he described the burnt district before he did the fire, to me the effect would have been vastly less. As house after house slowly rises, phoenix like, from the ashes, the district appears before us in the vigor of its first days—the buildings, the life and bustle are all there. I know of no work that has left a clearer and stronger impression on my mind.

Yours very truly ——.

NEW ORCHESTRAL GRAND PIANOS. It is with pleasure that we publish the following unsolicited letter from Gov. Claflin of Massachusetts:

BOSTON, Dec. 17, 1869.

Gentlemen: I inclose a check for Orchestral Grand Piano purchased of you, and I am happy to say it is much admired, especially by those whose experience is such as to give them accurate knowledge of the essentials in a first-class instrument.

With great respect, I am yours truly,
WILLIAM CLAFLIN.

Messrs. Hallett, Davis & Co.

—A lady went into a dry goods store in a neighboring city, and inquired for "bleached cloth." Several pieces of sheeting were offered for inspection, but failed to suit. "Perhaps," said the lady, "if I should tell you what I want it for, you would know better, what to give me. It is to be used for reposing robes." The man threw down another piece, hastily summoned another clerk, and rapidly vanished in the distance.

CONSUMPTION.

The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.

"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion.

"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ an healthy tone, and cure Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.

Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. d3dlm.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relations of our sexual system, and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—Never despair that disease defies cure. Do not place yourself under any one of the notorious QUACKS—native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life.

Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

In Remote Settlements of Untold Value.

Food makes blood; blood makes the body. If the blood be pure, the body is healthy. So if we are to enjoy health, we must remove impurities are lurking about, which must be removed, and the sooner the better.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS remove all from the system which nature needs no longer.

The wonderful cures effected by Brandreth's Pills have arrested the attention of enlightened physicians. Upwards of five thousand now use them in their daily practice, and two hundred have given their written testimony as to their innocence and value, as cleansers of the bowels and blood. Their untold value is to those living in settlements where doctors can only be had at great expense. For if you are sick, you have only to take one or more doses of Brandreth's Pills to get cured. Full Directions are with each box.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.

Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principles, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the system roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY
In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been labouring for centuries to overcome, at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

is the most important medicinal novelty that modern chemistry has produced. It combines two botanical extracts, perfectly harmless in themselves, but embodying all the remedial properties of mercury, and designed in this pleasant form to supersede and banish from general use, the nauseous pills and portions of which that dangerous excitant is the main ingredient. More than One thousand experiments were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Piles or Nervous Headache, Fevers, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitely more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds now offered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among authorized preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE.—CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

MERIT SOON NOISED ABROAD.

It is but six years since ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, was first offered for sale. Its good qualities were soon made known at home, and very soon its fame was noised far and near; now it is sold in nearly every Drug Store in the United States—NORTH, EAST, SOUTH and WEST. No similar medicine has ever met with the people. It is well known on the Pacific coast, and liberal demands for it from San Francisco, Sacramento in California, and Portland, Oregon; even from Australia, large orders are received for it. And throughout Canada, it is well and favorably known, and sold everywhere.

Read what Captain Foster writes:

FORT BURWELL, March 23d, 1869.

Messrs. PERRY DAVIS & SON, Sirs:—I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM; having been troubled with a cough for several years past, the Balsam was recommended to me. I immediately procured it, and found it to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results.

Yours Very Truly,
Capt. D. FOSTER.

Capt. FOSTER is a ship owner and builder, residing at Port Burwell, Canada.

Comfort and Bliss or Pain and Agony.

DR. TOBIAS' CELEBRATED VENETIAN LINIMENT, whose wonderful cures, sure and instaneous action, in cases of Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Croup, Cuts, Burns, Colic, Cramps, Dysentery, etc., have astonished the civilized world, is no new claimant for popularity, an article that has stood the test of twenty-two years. The enormous sale and rapidly increasing demand is at once the surest evidence of its usefulness and popularity. No family should be without a bottle in the house. Hundreds of dollars and many hours of suffering may be saved by its timely use.

Colic, Cramp, and Dysentery yield at once to its paincurative properties. It is perfectly innocent, and can be given to the oldest person or youngest child. No matter if you have no confidence in Patent Medicines—try this, and you will be sure to buy again, and recommend to your friends. Hundreds of Physicians recommend it in their practice.

Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers. Price Fifty Cents and One Dollar. Depot, 10 Park Place, New York. ol

FRIGHTFUL DEVELOPMENTS!

At last the people have got the fact "through their hair," that hair dyes impregnated with acetate of lead and other metallic salts are

MURDEROUS PREPARATIONS.

When they see the metallic sediment at the bottom of the bottles, they know that the disgusting stuff is literally thickened with Poison. They ask therefore, for a

Harmless Vegetable Dye,

and find it, pure and efficacious, in

Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye

offered under the sanction of Professor Chilton's chemical analysis that contains "nothing deleterious." CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE, a Dressing, acts like a charm on the Hair after Dyeing. Try it. lmd&wo4

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—PILES.—Do not suppose that every form of this complaint is incurable. The worst hemorrhoidal cases are not beyond the remedial reach of HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT. It gives tone to the relaxed integuments and acts as a sale styptic in the bleeding type of the disorder. Not unfrequently constipation is an accompaniment of the diseases and when this happens, it should be relieved with small doses of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. Sold by all Druggists.

ACROSTIC.

Pain Killer is worth what it weighs, in gold,
All around the world are its praises told;
It will Cholera cure—scourge of southern climes,
No victim dies, who takes it betimes.
Keep Pain Killer—a true friend by your side,
It will cure Cough or Cold, or Colic beside;
Look out to apply it for Bruise or for Sprain,
Let it once be tried—'twill be used again;
Every word I am telling you, Reader, is true,
Remember that Pain Killer is good for you.

The Pain Killer is sold by all Druggists and dealers in Family Medicines.

To Let—Half Brick House, 58 State St.

☞ There is to be a Social Assembly and Dance at Congress Hall this (Tuesday) evening, under the management of the C. B. B. Club. Tickets $1.

LYCEUM.—The sixth lecture of the Mercantile Library Course will be delivered by Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, this (Tuesday) evening at quarter to 8 o'clock. Subject "Some of the Causes that have led to Success and Failure in the Plans of Life." The public are invited.

☞ The Temple was crowded to repletion, Monday evening, to hear John L. Spring, Esq., of Milford, deliver an interesting address descriptive of his trip to San Francisco to attend the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows. About 500 members of the order marched in procession to the Temple, headed by the Cornet Band.

☞ Mr. Frost's Allegorical Exhibition is warmly commended by Rev. N. T. Whitaker, Pastor of the Methodist E. Church in Hyde Park, Mass., (in a note at the close of the Exhibition there,) as beautiful, entertaining, and instructive, beyond any thing of the kind which he had seen; and its results as happy and beneficial to the school. He therefore cordially recommends its exhibition in other places.

☞ Mr. J. S. Montgomery has concluded his term as Instructor of Writing at New Hampton Institute; and has returned to this city and re-opened his Writing and Book-keeping Academy, in Bell Tavern Block. Mr. Montgomery has been engaged by our city School Committee, to teach Penmanship by the Spencerian system, in the various schools each week. He is a very gentlemanly person and thorough teacher.

☞ So it seems there may be snags in the way of Fleet as well as Summer Street. But we do not believe the argument that one of a long string of petitioners afterwards being elected an Alderman, invalidates the hearing, will have a feather's weight; nor any more do we, the other argument, that one of the awarding Board is also a member of the Mechanic's Association—for this is merely a charitable society, with vested funds, and not at all like a corporation with ownership of property for profit of members. We think Fleet Street is legally 40 feet wide.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

OUR CITY FARM EXPENSES.—Messrs. Editors:—I am sorry to notice in the Mayor's inaugural, so cutting an allusion to the management of our City Farm. Sorry, inasmuch as it seems to have been conceded by every tax-payer with whom I have conversed in relation to this matter during the past year, that we were peculiarly fortunate in the selection of our City Farm Superintendent. "Figures won't lie," says the adage; but they will, most egregiously deceive if improperly dealt with. And I think, our worthy Mayor Adams has, by listening to the statements of selfish men of office, and hearing from their lips, their version of the report of the City Farm, and afterwards embodying it in his message—dealt unfairly with figures; as by reference to the city accounts of the past year, it will be apparent to any one who can add two and two, that no such result as that reported by Mr. Adams as to the cost of paupers, can be deduced from the said accounts.

If any one who is sufficiently interested in the matter, will take the pains to look on the 22nd page of the City Report, he will find the footing of the expense of the City Farm to be in round numbers, $5137, which being divided among the sixty-six paupers, leaves $78; and divide this by fifty-two weeks, gives us the quotient of $1.50 per week for the support of each pauper. And it will readily be seen, by a little further examination, that even this is not a true conclusion; as the outdoor pensioners are herein included, besides nearly all (save two) of the insane. Now it will be found, if reckoned on the proper basis, that the cost of maintaining these unfortunates is comparatively nothing over the expense of the Farm; and the wide disparity between the former days and these, as set forth by Mayor Adams, is probably only the result of an envious suggestion made by some interested party.

It will no doubt surprise many who are interested in this matter, to learn that the author of this communication has no personal interest, further than that of a desire to have the truth bear its weight, and set Mr. Scott right in the eyes of the public; and further, this defence is wholly gratuitous, and Mr. Scott will never have an intimation of the appearance of such an article, until he sees it in print. * * *

SKATERS, ATTENTION.—It is earnestly requested, that all those able-bodied persons who are interested in skating, will meet to-day, at 2 o'clock P. M., on the South millpond, armed with shovels, brooms, pushers and such other implements as can be made available for the occasion, to clear the snow from the ice; a place large enough for all requirements can easily be cleared, in a short time, by little combined effort. The work was commenced yesterday afternoon and continued till darkness, It is hoped that a sufficient number will be on hand, at the hour named.

☞ Other engagements prevented our mentioning Rev. Mr. DeNormandie's lecture on the American Idea in Education, as it merited and we designed. It was an essay on the learning of all times and countries; and was full of thought and study. Mr. DeNormandie is eminently a student of public life and public policy, and not less strongly a thorough democrat in all his being. His presentation of Americanism in education was complete, except that he did not allude to that one small exception and excrescence, the pauper Naval School at Annapolis—which only proves the rule, however. The lecturer is one of our livest men, hardest workers and closest observers; and always ready for any good word or work. This essay, was written for a School Institute; but though unexpectedly called upon to fill a vacancy, it must be a great vacancy indeed which he cannot fill.

THE BASE BALL MATCH.

It had got too dark to see the ball, and the active and athletic "Olympics" of Cooperania reluctantly desisted from their practice game, the last but one before the great match which was to pit them with the renowned "Manhattans," the champions. The nine had been all present, and had worked together splendidly; and it was with a calm and deep seated confidence in their strength that the men withdrew for their clubhouse; and thence, after refreshing ablutions, strolled homeward in the late twilight of midsummer.

Ned Hope went home with Charley Somers, not because that was Ned's nearest way to his home, but because it was the nearest way to Nellie Somers. Charlie Somers was the Captain of the Nine. Ned was at the head of his class at Columbia, but at the foot of the nine. Still Ned Hope was a good trusty player, always reliable on a long catch, and not seldom brilliant at the bat. Charlie was full of the coming match, in which he hoped to lead the Olympics of Cooperania to victory and the championship, and detailed to his companions his views of the several members of the Nine, and his speculations on the chances of the contest. Ned Hope was abstracted, as was too common with him, and said but little, now and then assenting in monosyllables, to Charlie's rapid talk.

At last he broke in upon it with "Charlie, how did your sister Nellie get acquainted with that Patch family?"

"I didn't know she was. By the way, Ned, that fence of Patch's is going to bother us in the game. Every long hit to the right field is going to land right in that yard."

"Yes, hang it; I had to climb it a dozen times to-night. I dare say the Patches are respectable enough, in their way; but what Nellie can find congenial or improving in their society I don't understand."

"Oh, I guess they won't hurt her, Ned. Any how that fence is as fair for one side, as for the other. You must practice upon going over it, you know; it's on your pons. Look out for that, will you, Ned?"

By this time they had reached Charlie Somers' house, and Charlie held the gate open while Ned passed in. Three or four figures were seen grouping about the grass in the front yard, and Ned's heart beat quicker as he heard Nellie Somers' voice:

"Don't flinch, Maggie! Hit just a little bit hard. Here's the stake. Now, hat's splendid!"

And the rubber game of croquet was finished, won by Nellie's side of course.

The young men went up to the girls, and in almost no time Charlie and his sister were in high argument over the lost points of play. Charlie contending that she might have beat the game half an hour ago. It ended by her calling him a "great old goose," and conclusively proving it. Ned very politely greeted the young ladies, and went to work hunting up the balls and gathering the hoops.

In the parlor the conversation opened and dwelt on the one topic that had possessed the minds of all Cooperania for weeks—the match with the Champions. Charlie again passed his men in review, recounting the special qualities in each in reply to the interested questioning of old Mr. Somers. Mrs. Somers deprecated practicing so much in the hot sun of the afternoon, but admitted that the momentous issue involved, made it necessary. Nellie had her opinion about the disposition of the nine. She would rather see Teddy Snap on the first base than Boggs. Boggs would do better for third. It was too bad Ned had all that climbing over Mr. Patch's fence to do, but that was the point for him, she was sorry to say.

"I wish I could help, Ned," she added. She had began to notice that he was keeping strangely silent.

"I will tell you how you can," answered he, with a serious meaning, look and tone which she did not fail to observe.

Nellie now began to watch Ned with puzzled and uneasy glances, and he perceiving it, and thinking that she was getting into a graver mood and one suitable for receiving a lecture, was greatly relieved, as though the battle was already half won. So when he lingered in the front-yard walk in saying good-night, he was very glad to have her ask:

"Ned what is it?"

Ned scored the gravel walk with his cane. Suddenly looking straight into her face, he said:

"I have no right to concern myself about your doings."

Nellie could say nothing to this, and there was an embarrassing pause. Ned Hope ought to have said his good-night here and went off, and ten minutes latter he was vehemently upbraiding himself for not having done so. Indeed he found at once he must come down from his high horse; so, with a sickly smile and a feeble attempt at pleasantry he asked:

"How long is it, Nellie, that you have been intimate with the Patch girls?"

Nellie showed some surprise at this question, and Ned, thinking he had gained a point went on:

"I had thought you were in the habit of choosing altogether different sort of companions."

And then, worse and worse: "I have only to say that I am very much astonished to see you there this afternoon, and I hope I never shall again."

Nellie's head stiffened back and her eyes flashed.

"Really, Mr. Hope. I should think you did concern yourself with my doings! I think it very probable you may see me again at Mr. Patch's. Ned Hope you will be sorry for this. Good-night."

The day of the match had come at last, and all Cooperania, and a great portion of the rest of the world were gathered around the field of contest, "The weather was all that could be desired, and a large number of the fair sex were in attendance," as the newspapers said the next day. Yes, the fair sex were present in large numbers, filling all the regular benches for spectators, and all others that could be procured from houses in the neighborhood, and making the scene brilliant, joyous, and inspiring to the gallant young knights who were to display their powers before their bright eyes and approving smiles, and do battle for the glory of old Cooperania.

Yet the benches were hueless and lustreless for one knight in the tourney. Ned Hope scanned the throng anxiously—over and over again, but the 'ladye faire' whose favor he wore in his heart of hearts—was nowhere to be seen. He had not called at her house since that wretched night, and the justice of her reproach still weighed on him. Could it be that she determined even to forego the pleasure of witnessing the great match, in which he knew she had been deeply interested, in order to avoid meeting him?

Concluded to morrow.

LOVE UP A TREE.

There was a seat in the apple tree,
A most delightful and cosey nook;
And one afternoon about half-past three,
Kitty sat there reading a book.
Her fair head bare, with no hat to mar,
And her dress just allowed one dainty boot;—
And he saw her as he smoked his cigar,
And he came and stood at the ladder's foot.

Kitty half blushed, then smiled and said,—
"Won't you come up and sit here now?"
And Kitty's brother, a boy to dread,
Saw and determined to raise a row;
So he crept softly under the tree,
Listening to all that they had to say,
Did the impish brother, and sly as could be,
Seized the ladder and bore it away.

Then they saw him;—and she, with a frown,
Said, "What will that awful boy do next?"
And she called him the greatest scamp in town,
Yet I don't believe she was very much vexed,
For her lips half smiled though her eyes half cried,
As she saw the position of matters now,
And he came over and sat by her side,
Leaving his place on the opposite bough.

What could they do? They were captives there,
Held as if by an iron band;
Kitty tossed back her golden hair,
And reflectively leaned her chin on her hand.
"If," said she, "we for help should call,
They'd laugh to see us in such a plight,
So we'd best stay here till the shadows fall,
Or till some one or other comes in sight."

And some one did come. It was Kitty's papa,
Who past the tree his footsteps traced,
And saw through the leaves a lighted cigar,
And a masculine arm round a feminine waist.
Kitty looked down and blushed at one,
And then looked up and blushed at the other;
Said her father, "These are nice goings on!"
Said she, "It was all the fault of my brother."

What was the end? I'll tell you that.
Some months after, 'mid silks and lace
And ribbons and ruches, some ladies sat,
Who were discussing the time and place
As to when,—so ran their debate,—
And where, a certain wedding should be;
And that impish brother was heard to state,
"It had better come off in the apple tree."

NEW HAMPSHIRE IN THE MASSACUSETTS LEGISLATURE.—New Hampshire has long been famous for furnishing law-makers for other States, as well as for the nation, and she gives no sign of "going back" on her established reputation. This year, twenty-five of her sons are members of the Massachusetts State government—five more than last year. Hon. Charles Adams, Jr., a native of Antrim, is a member of the Council; and five members of the Senate; and nineteen Representatives, including Speaker Jewell, and C. L. Woodbury of this city. The wife of the President of the Senate is also the daughter of a Portsmouth gentleman; and Mr. Piper, chief clerk of the Sec. of State, is a native of this city.

—"Sedley," said Charles II, "look me out a man who can't be corrupted. I have sent three treasurers to the north, and they have all turned thieves." "Well, your Majesty, I will recommend Mivert." "Mivert! you dog," said Charles, "why Mivert is a thief already!" "Therefore he cannot be corrupted," said Sedley.

—A codfish caught on the northern coast was exhibited in Boston market last week, whose weight was 17 lbs. But the greatest peculiarity was in its being of a gold color. The dealer (who has been in the business some twenty years) never saw one of the kind in his experience.

—A newspaper thief in Salem recently paid ten dollars and ten cents for taking a paper from a door-step. He will find it much cheaper to subscribe for a paper, as it saves time, trouble and expense.

—The Traveller ascribes the beautiful weather of the season to the fact that the Gulf stream is many miles nearer the northern coast than it has been for several years.

—"If people knew beforehand all the misery it brings," says a Japanese poet, "there would be less going out with young ladies to look at the flowers at night."

—A prisoner was examined in court, and contradicted himself. "Why do you lie so?" asked the judge. "Haven't you a lawyer?"

—What is the latest and prettiest thing in dresses? A rosy young woman in a neat night gown.

—Noah was probably the only person who ever went to sea for fear of being drowned.

—Welcome lines to ladies—Masculines.

—The best board of health—A light diet.

—A harmless death—Drowning in tears.

—Played out—The water in a fire-engine.

—A hand-to-hand affair—Marriage.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Collections of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 12, 1870.

Whitlings.

The Georgia legislature met on Monday and had a turbulent session.

Gov. Hayes of Ohio was inaugurated on Monday.

The Utah Central Railroad has been completed.

It is said that Ohio will ratify the 15th Constitutional Amendment. Judge Chase urges it.

Rev. Mr. Cook, pastor of the West 7th St. M. E. Church, of New York city, has eloped with a wealthy heiress. He is about 30 years of of age, and has a wife and two daughters.

The Tennessee Constitutional Convention assembled at Nashville, on Monday.

The National Intelligencer has gone up again.

CONGRESS.—The Senate debated the Virginia bill without coming to a vote.

In the House, bills were introduced to change the time of the meeting of Congress, at its second and third sessions, to the first Monday in January; to provide a revisory board for the navy, and to regulate naval rank; also, to regular rank on the naval medical staff.

Mr. Paine introduced an apportionment bill allowing 300 members for the next House of Representatives.

On Tuesday, the House recommitted the bill amending the pension laws so as to change the present manner of paying pensions, to the Pension Committee, by a vote of 99 yeas to 52 nays. This is regarded as a virtual defeat.

COUNCILLOR CONVENTION.—The Republican Councillor Convention for the 1st District met at Newmarket on Tuesday, and organized by the choice of Bradbury L. Cilley of Exeter, President; Jos. P. Morse, Portsmouth, J. F. Larkin, Concord, and —— Cotton of Hampstead, Vice Presidents; J. F. Laurence and Israel P. Miller, Secretaries.

On motion of J. P. Morse of Portsmouth, Hon. Moses Humphrey of Concord was nominated as candidate for Councillor, by acclamation.

Question was raised as to appointing place and time of meeting of next Convention. On motion of Mr. Morse, the whole matter was left in the hands of the State Committee, as heretofore.

On motion of Col. Peter Sanborn of Concord, the Resolutions of the Republican State Central Committee, and the Republican candidates, were enthusiastically endorsed,—and the Convention adjourned sine die.

☞ "Gazetteer's" hard crack on the soft caput of the spleeny organ, worked the slime drippers into a fury, and they strike out at "Mentor," (who hasn't the slightest idea who "Gazetteer" is,) with aimless fury. The notorious desire of the copperheads that the Chronicle may advertise their dirty sheet and thus bring it into notice among decent people, has prevented us from discussing matters with these vipers, who froth at the mouth because we won't advertise them for nothing. We would as soon think of undertaking to argue with the editors of the "Police Gazette" or "Day's Doings," as to reason with such specimens of total depravity. What breeding the fellows must have had!

ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.—Rev. Horace Cook of New York, who eloped last week with the daughter of a wealthy citizen, wrote as follows to her father.

I love Mattie; I will care for her tenderly, kindly, lovingly. Inconsistent as it may appear with my present conduct, I ask for no mercy, but am ready to pay with my life for the possession of the woman I adore.

HORACE COOK.

☞ Mr. Doane, (of the firm of Harding & Doane,) has presented to the Christian Church at New Castle, an elegant and valuable Silver Communion Service. The society, through their minister, Rev. Samuel Hoyt, tender their thanks to the donor.

☞ All should remember the great Exhibition at the Temple to-night (Wednesday,) of Frost's Allegory and Tableaux,—the most beautiful tableaux ever witnessed by our citizens. Everybody ought to see them.

☞ Mr. Wilber I. Trafton's forth masquerade, is advertised for Thursday of next week at Congress Hall. Of course it will be a success.

☞ The sleighing about town was fair on Tuesday, and the fair about town were sleighing, too. Yes, they were.

☞ Stable keepers and owners of sleighs are anxious for "some more" snow.

New Hampshire Items.

A four story machine shop and contents at Concord, near the passenger depot, burned to the ground on Sunday morning about two o'clock, when the mercury was at zero. Loss about $20,000; insurance $15,000.

The Lee post office was robbed of about $30 on Saturday, while the Postmaster, Rev. A. G. Comings, was away.

Hon. Wm. Pickering Weeks of Canaan, formerly of Greenland, hung himself on Saturday. He was 67 years of age, had held various offices and was a noted democratic politician. He had expressed fears of coming to want. He was born in Greenland, Feb. 22, 1803, graduated from Dartmouth College in 1826, read law with Hays and Coggswell at South Berwick, and commenced his profession at Canaan in 1829, where he continued in practice till within a few years of his death. As a lawyer he occupied a good position, and was a successful business man, the estate which he leaves being estimated at $100,000 to $150,000. Twenty years ago he showed mental aberration, but for some time past nothing of the kind had been noticed, only that since quitting practice he had manifested the utmost aversion to all law matter, and did not care to converse about them at all, which was regarded very singular. He married a sister of Judge Doe, and she and five children survive him. It was remarked by his family Friday night, that he did not read his papers as usual; and Saturday morning he said he would make a fire and read them. He built the fire, then proceeded to the barn, took a rope halter from his horse, put it twice around his neck and over a beam and swung himself off. His wife and daughter hunted for and found him an hour after, dead.

The New Hampshire Veteran Union last week at Concord, elected the following officers:—President, Gen. Aaron F. Stevens of Nashua; Vice-President, Gen. M. T. Donohoe; Secretary, Capt. J. Ware Butterfield; Treasurer, Maj. Henry McFarland. Their literary exercises (address by Gen. Veazie, &c.) were satisfactory; and the Ball passed off well, but was not largely attended. It was voted, 23 to 11, to dispense with dancing next year, and substitute a dinner instead of a levee, so that visitors could return home the same day.

Rev. P. Barron, a Universalist minister of Newport, went to Satton Jan. 4, in the evening, to attend next day, the funeral of Mr. Lewis Richards. Mr. Barron spoke of being uncommonly well; but went out-of-doors in the evening, and not returning promptly, the family found him on the ground, helpless, and he died in a few minutes.

The Exeter News Letter comes out for the new year, with a sheet much enlarged and greatly improved, by discarding cuts and heavy job type.

A bright, smart boy, five years old, named George Taylor, son of Clark Taylor of Hampton, was drowned in the mill pond near the Bride Hill schoolhouse, in Hampton, on Wednesday.

Dr. Alphonzo Bickford, of Dover, died Dec. 31, at the age of 52 years. Dr. B. was an excellent Physician of extensive practice. He held various offices of importance in the City Government, including that of Mayor of the city for the years 1861 and '62, and Alderman for two terms of two years each.

Thomas Hadley of Bradord died last Friday evening, of paralysis of the brain. Mr. H. was taken with this disease about two weeks ago, and during his entire illness has taken neither food or water. His age was about seventy-three years.

Farmers in Exeter have been plowing in their fields since January came in, and sail boats were out in the river. Twenty-eight years ago the river was open.

A pure case of small pox and two cases of varioloid have existed for two or three weeks, in a family at East Concord, producing some anxiety and excitement in the neighborhood. Dr. Haynes, who has had the patients in charge, says that all have entirely recovered, the premises have been thoroughly cleansed, and no danger of contagion now exists.

By the storm of Sunday week, considerable damage was done to highways; in Rochester, a portion of the road was washed out, making it impassable. The water also caused an excavation 15 feet in depth and 10 feet wide in the road near Ela's brook bridge. The wind also blew violently, doing much damage to buildings and fences in various places. In Great Falls, the spire of the High St. M. E. Church was broken off by the wind, and was forced through the roof, and a portion of it projected into the audience room.

Rev. J. B. Richmond of Dover was by his parishioners provided with Appleton's New American Encyclopædia, as a Christmas gift.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.—The President, Hon. Asa Fowler, of Concord, on assuming the chair, said:

Gentleman of the Convention:—Completely surprised as I have been at your partiality in selecting me to preside over your deliberations, you will not, of course, expect from me any extended remarks before assuming the place assigned me. Still, I trust, you will pardon me for congratulating you upon the favorable circumstances under which you assemble as a party, compared with those under which you have met in former years.

Peace and general prosperity now prevail everywhere throughout the land and instead of a national administration hostile to your principles, and anxious in every way to thwart and defeat their triumph, you have one in full sympathy with your views, devoted to the cause in which you have so long labored, and exerting their utmost energies to strengthen and perpetuate the ascendency of those grand ideas of liberty, equality, impartial suffrage and national unity, which lie at the foundation of the Republican organization.

You have an administration pleged to the most rigid economy in all the public expenditures and the retrenchment of all unnecessary expenses, as well as to a faithful execution of the laws for the collection of the public revenues; and, as the strongest possible assurance that those pledges have been and will continue to be faithfully observed, you have the fact officially promulgated that, during the first ten months of their management of national affairs, more than seventy-six millions of the public debt have been paid and forever extinguished.

Then, too, the administration of our State government during the past year, under the management of an executive head as distinguished for ability as for honor and courtesy has been eminently successful, so that the burden of the State, as well as of the national, indebtedness, has been largely diminished, and our citizens can anticipate with confidence a speedy reduction of taxation.

Indeed, good omens meet you from every side, and urge you on to a renewal of the victories which have so often crowned your efforts in behalf of true democracy and popular rights.

Congregated under such auspices, your proceedings can hardly fail to be characterized by an amount of harmony and enthusiasm which must insure your certain success at the coming election.

Thanking you most cordially, gentlemen, for the confidence which has so unexpectedly elevated me to the position of your presiding officer, and soliciting your assistance and indulgence in the discharge of the duties devolving upon me, I will use my best exertions to make your session pleasant and successful.

Gov. Stearns, being informed of his re-nomination by the Convention, being confined to his house by illness, returned the following communication:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention: Your committee have informed me of your action in nominating me a second time for the office of Chief Magistrate of the State, I am fully sensible of the honor which this nomination confers, and am deeply grateful for this renewed evidence of your confidence and regard, as shown by the unanimity with which, on this as on a former occasion, you have expressed your preferences.

It has been my purpose to discharge with practical activity and industry the duties of life which devolve upon me. With this aim before me, I have endeavored, by all means in my power, to promote the best interests and welfare of the people of this Commonwealth, and especially by carrying into the administration of its affairs that rigid economy so necessary at the present time. Without prejudice or patian bitterness, it has been my constant desire to administer the State government with fairness and equal justice to all its citizens; and in this connection it may be proper to remark that I deem it the duty of the Executive, so far as power and authority are granted, to enforce the execution of all legislative enactments with strictness and impartiality, fearlessly and without favor.

By the blessing of God, the nation is emerging from the darkness and tempest of that fearful strife, such as we may hope will never again assail us, into the serene atmosphere of peace and harmony. With fairer and broader prospects before us, with a constant development of the material resources of our country and State—with labor and industry elevated, encouraged and rewarded—with the credit of the government sustained and respected at home and abroad—we cannot fail to yield the full devotion of patriotic hearts to the support and maintenance of the stability and honor of the nation.

While our national affairs are in this condition of growth and prosperity, let us, each in our sphere of duty, strive to promote, with energy, industry and economy, the interests of our beloved State, to elevate and ennoble its labor, to develop its resources and to promote its moral and material growth. I am particularly gratified to know that my administration of our State affairs has met your approval, and I assure you that I highly appreciate your kindness and partiality which would once more present me to the people of this State as a candidate for their suffrages.

But, gentlemen, I am warned that I cannot, without great sacrifice and hazard, take advantage of your good will. Such is the state of my physical health, and so imperative are the claims of my private business, that I doubt my ability to give to the service of the State the strength and personal attention which its interests demand. I would not undertake the duties of public affairs without being able to devote to them sufficient time for their faithful and thorough performance. I am, therefore, compelled, with great reluctance, to decline the nomination which your kindness has proffered me.

ONSLOW STEARNS.

The Convention was taken by surprise when the letter was read, and from all parts of the hall expressions of regret were heard. A committee was appointed to await upon His Excellency and urge him to withdraw his letter of declination; who, after a long consultation with Gov. Stearns, returned the following communications:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention: Your second committee has waited upon me, and in view of the reasons they urge, I am constrained to say that, though I cannot willingly believe that the convention cannot select some other member of the Republican party who can command a larger majority of the votes of the people of New Hampshire, at the March election, than I can, still, as it appears to be the deliberate judgment of your Convention, which is composed of highly intelligent and influential citizens, representing all parts of the State, that the best interests of the people demand that I should reconsider my decision and make the sacrifice, I will do so, and accept your nomination, and if elected, will perform the duties of the office in the future as in the past, to the best of my abilities.

ONSLOW STEARNS.

The letter was received with loud and prolonged applause.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

ALL THE NOVELTIES

CONSUMPTION.

The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcer in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails.

"SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion.

"SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to that mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, o Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonic Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organ a healthy tone, and cure Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Seaweed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination.

Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

MARRIAGE GUIDE,

Being a private instructor for married persons or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and hygiene of our sexual system and the production and prevention of offspring, including all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address, Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

☞ AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE.—No matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under any one of the notorious QUACKS—native and foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health and possibly your life.

Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications, at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

In Remote Settlements of Untold Value.

Food makes blood; blood makes the body. If the blood be pure, the body is healthy. So if we are not in health, we know some impurities are lurking about, which must be removed, and the sooner the better.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS remove all from the system which nature needs to purge.

The wonderful cures effected by Brandreth's Pills have arrested the attention of enlightened physicians. Upwards of five thousand now use them in their daily practice, and two hundred have given their written testimony as to their innocence and value, as cleansers of the bowels and blood. Their untold value is to those living in settlements where doctors can only be had at great expense. For if you are sick, you have only to take one or more doses of Brandreth's Pills to get cured. Full Directions are with each box.

SPECIAL NOTICES,

Let Common Sense Decide.

What is the rational mode of procedure in cases of general debility and nervous prostration? Does not reason tell us that judicious stimulation is required. To resort to violent purgation in such a case is as absurd as it would be to bleed a starving man. Yet it is done every day. Yes, this stupid and unphilosophical practice is continued in the teeth of the great fact that physical weakness, with all the nervous disturbances that accompany it, is more certainly and rapidly relieved by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS than by any other medicine at present known. It is true that general debility is often attended with torpidity or irregularity of the bowels, and that this symptom must not be overlooked. But while the discharge of the waste matter of the system is expedited or regulated, its vigor must be recruited. The Bitters do both. They combine aperient and antibilious properties, with extraordinary tonic power. Even while removing obstructions from the bowels, they tone and invigorate those organs.

Through the stomach, upon which the great vegetable specific acts directly, it gives a healthy and permanent impetus to every enfeebled function. Digestion is facilitated, the faltering circulation regulated, the blood reinforced with a new accession of the alimentary principles, the nerves braced, and all the dormant powers of the body roused into healthy action; not spasmodically, as would be the case if a mere stimulant were administered, but for a continuance. It is in this way that such extraordinary changes are wrought in the condition of the feeble, emaciated and nervous invalids by the use of this wonderful corrective, alterative and tonic. Let common sense decide between such a preparation and a prostrating cathartic supplemented by a poisonous astringent like strychnine or quinia.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

in Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been attained. A vegetable cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary jelly, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this valuable remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and so powerful in its medicinal virtues, that the components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy; and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

Every druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

"OUR CITY FARM EXPENSES."—Reply to * * .—Messrs. Editors: Your correspondent, though anxious to arrive at the truth,—I think misunderstands both the figures in the city accounts and the Mayor's statement. I am pleased to see him giving his serious attention to the subject. I reply only to explain both. In the first place I do not see how the Mayor's figures affect the present Superintendent. The following is from the Mayor's adddress:

"If I am correctly informed, the average cost per week of supporting each pauper at the almshouse, in addition to the produce of the farm, has been as follows:

For 5 years from 1860 to 1864 inclusive, 84 cents,
For 4¼ years ending Sept. 30, 1869, $2.01."

During the 4 3-4 years included in the last line, Mr. Scott has held the position of Superintendent five months and twenty-three days. At the time the Report closes a large part of his crop was in the ground and a much larger part unsold. The account of 1869 does not separately appear in the quotation, and there is nothing to show the particular cost or expenses for 1869 or any other year. It is only as a part of the four and three-quarter years that it is reckoned. The figures are made up from the city books; and in an average of several years they show a fair statement—though I am aware that in any single year extraordinary expenses, or the failure of crops or the failure to sell the produce, may give an unfair impression if such year is taken by itself. For instance, if one year no hay was sold and in the next year the crops of two years were sold, the apparent receipts from the farm would be too large in one year and too small in another. So the fuel used at the House in the four and three-quarter years was forty-five hundred dollars, being almost the entire expenditure for that article for five full years. Now if in any one year no wood was paid for, it is a plain that the cost of that year if taken alone would be unfairly diminished. Such being the case, no fair statement of actual cost during the less than six months of Mr. Scott's superintendency canbe made or has been attempted. And his part of the time was so small and his business so incomplete, that no application of the Mayor's statement should be made to him.

But your correspondent has not got the right idea of the Mayor's statement. The Mayor speaks of the cost of supporting the poor at the House, while * * * considers only the cost to the city of supporting them. By looking at the subject more closely, he will see that these figures may both be correct.

First look at 's figures; they show as he says that $5136.99 was drawn from the City Treasury during the first nine months of 1869 for the support of the poor. Look at the same list of receipts and will find the following.

Received from other towns	277.20
" for board and wood	80.25
" from County	3390.81
" " Superintendent	1070.25
" " City Treasury (as above)	5136.99

Making the total receipts by the Overseers 9955.50 which corresponds with their payment as found on Page 21. This sum then was the amount expended during the first nine months of 1869 by the City, the County the Farm and individuals for the support of the poor in the house and out of the house.

The expenditures at the farm and the Almshouse is but a part of this sum. The house and farm expenses include the following items found in the different accounts on the pages of the city book, indicated below:

Pd farm expenses Mr. Philbrick Page 11	174,74.
" " " by Mr. Scott Page 12 and 13	2068.43
" Provisions	3534 47
" Clothing	402.13
" Contingent expenses at Almshouse	628.04
" Physician and Hospital Stores	145.05
" Fuel for Almshouse	900.00
" Superintendent	300.00
Total expenditures at house and farm	$8152.80

From these expenditures should be deducted the receipts of the farm as follows:

Received by Mr. Philbrick,	166.22
" Mr. Scott,	3138.68	3304,90
Showing a balance of cost of		4847.90

The above are the figures as found by the City Books. For reasons previously given they do not represent the exact truth for the nine months included. The produce of the year was only partially disposed of; provisions furnished to out-door pensioners amounting to about eight hundred dollars, should be deducted; almost all the fuel needed for an entire year was paid for; and there are doubtless other deductions to be made. On the other hand probably some bills remained unpaid. But this manner of calculation when applied to a term of years is substantially correct, and is as follows: take the entire expenditures at the farm and almshouse for a number of years, and deduct from it the entire receipts from the farm during the same term, and you have the cost of supporting the inmates—no matter whether the burden of the cost is borne by the City, the County, or by individuals. EXTRA FINGERS. — A smart girl of eleven summers, in Nashua, went to the office of Drs. Currier and Wilbur, Dec. 15th, and had the fifth finger on each hand amputated, and is doing well. She has six toes on each foot. Her father has six toes on his right foot and five on the left, and five fingers on his right hand, and four on the left.

A family of children in Portsmouth, 60 years ago, had such extra toes and fingers Their name was Sprague, and their father was a barber. Some of them were our schoolmates. We could not see any evil growing out of the extra finger, — yet Miss Sarah Sprague had one of hers taken off,—perhaps because she could not find a glove with 5 fingers and thumb. U. T.

THE BASE BALL MATCH.

Concluded from Yesterday.

The game which was to decide the ambitious claims of the Olympics of Cooperania became wearisome and a burden to him, even in those first critical innings of the match which are always played in breathless silence, and in which each feels that the eyes of the little world of lookers-on are upon him, as indeed they are. He heeded not the game — "his heart was far away." What glory won here, could retrieve the disgrace in which he was held by the noblest and dearest of girls, Helen Somers?" What was the match—what was anything to him now?

A good knock coming straight for right-field, and the voice of Charlie Somers calling him "take care of it," roused Ned to his duty. The ball rose high and was evidently destined for Patch's yard. Ned made a dash for the fence, and in another moment would have been upon it, when the gate, which old Patch (who was an inveterate hater of the national game) had always malevolently locked against the Club, opened wide, and a domestic came out to empty a pail. Ned dashed in, secured the ball, and had it back to the pitcher with as little loss of time as if the fence had never existed. The servant went in again and locked the gate.

"That was a piece of good luck," thought Ned, "and saved a run, and my shins." And he had still further occasion to congratulate himself when he saw the right-field of the Manhattan struggling over the fence, while the Olympic men were flying round the bases; Nay, Ned had to thank his stars, or Patch's domestic, he did not knew which for the same good luck once, twice, thrice repeated. The gate readily seemed to open on its hinges immediately on the landing of the ball in the yard (whenever the Olympics were after it.) and the same woman with a pail came forth like their good angel. Ned's spirits were so much revived that he even whispered an improper joke to Charlie Somers, quoting the Scriptural "Knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

The game progressed with varying changes and amidst the most intense excitement. The Cooperania Nine left off with two "duck's eggs," while the Champions had scored a 5 and a 4. Then came the Champions term at the duck's eggs, and they put down one duck of the next three innings, while the Olympics had run up to 6, a 4 and two 4s; so that the end of the fifth inning the clubs stood 9 to 9. Then the game went as follows; Olympics, 3 0 3 0; total 15, Manhattan, 1 3 1, and the last inning to get 2 in to beat, or 1 to tie.

Cooperania must not let them have that 1.

Bad luck bad seized upon the Champions in the third innings, and would not loosen her grip in their extreme hour. Charley Somers, who was catcher, had taken the first two out on a "foul-tip" in one-two order, at the very beginning of the innings. The third striker had hit well and got away to his base. One good hit would bring that man home and beat Cooperania.

Ah! there is the hit! Away it flies (it is toward Patch's yard,) and away goes the Manhattaner for the home base and victory.

Away, too, dashes Ned Hope for Patch's fence. Will his good angel of a Biddy with a pail desert him now?

No, the gate opens and she bustles out just in time for Ned to rush in by her. Ned is in the yard, thanks to Biddy; but where is the ball! he brushes hastily among the weeds where it ought to be, but cannot find it. The Manhattaner must be nearing the third base. Oh, where is the ball.

As when in conflicts of classic story the protecting deity of the hero always appears above his head at the critical moment and gives him the victory; so now a gracious goddess who had hung in breathless anxiety over the doubtful contest, sent down her voice from above and directs Ned's trembling hand.

"Oh, there Ned, under the lilac!"

Ned grasped the ball and sent it flying in an unerring parabola to the home base, and victory descended with it into Charley Somers outstretched hands.

A great shout went up from the field. Cooperania had won the Championship; and the Cooperania spectators one and all, young and old, of both sexes, wanted to devour, almost, their gallant champions.

Ned Hope stood in Patch's garden in mute adoration of Nellie Somers, who was waving her handkerchief from Mrs. Patch's window above; for he now knew whose hand had given him the victory. He threw his cap on the ground, made the most frantic signs of gratitude and obeisance, and forgetting his usual propriety, threw her kisses with both hands. Nellie smiled—oh, how sweetly!—upon him, and shut the blind.

At the supper of the Club that evening, in honor of the Champions, Ned Hope, who sat beside Nellie Somers, being called upon to respond to the toast, "The Ladies," alluded with grateful mention to the "lady with the pail" (loud applause), who had never "muffed the gate a single time during the match." (Laughter and cheers) He wished, he continued, propriety would permit him to place the credit of this masterly strategy where it belonged (Nellie Somers' face went down and tell-tale blushes and smiles contended for the mastery of it); but he was confident the name of Somers would ever stand among the highest on the roll of honor of the Olympics. (Long continued cheering and waving of handkerchiefs, hats, and base ball bats.)

That night as Nellie and Ned walked homeward, she told him how she had contrived to win over Mr. Patch to leaving his back gate unlocked; how the "Patch girls" had ably seconded her efforts, although they were not exactly "the sort of companions she usually choose;" how she had pressed Biddy into her services and thoroughly drilled her; and how she had secured an upper window in the Patch house to watch the game and direct her part of it. "And now you see, Ned," said Nellie, "why I am so intimate with the Patch girls."

Ned hung his head in silence till they reached the shade of the front yard. Nellie had waited patiently, for she knew that he would confess that he was sorry, just as she had said he would. Ned would not go into the house, but drew Nellie aside and took both her hands, whispering:

"Forgive me, Nellie. I should not have spoken as I did had I not loved you. Can't I have the right to do so?"

Nellie's head was by this time on his shoulder, and he felt her nod assent. And then came their first kiss.

It was another "match," and Cooperania was almost as much pleased about this one as the other.

YORK COUNTY ITEMS.—Eighteen persons were baptized by Rev. Mr. Nason of North Berwick on Sunday week. A reformation is in progress in that village. Between sixty and seventy have been converted during the last seven weeks.

Uranus O. Brackett, of Berwick, has been elected Councillor for the York District.

The hearing in the cases of Geo. Bowden et al, vs Col. Luther Junkins of York, recently took place at Academy Hall, in Eliot, before E. C. Spinney and George A. Hammond, referees appointed by the Court, After a hearing of nearly an entire week, the cases were all settled by the parties, no doubt much to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The storm at Alfred on Sunday week was the most severe known there for many years, the wind at times blowing a perfect gale, and doing considerable damage to buildings, fences, &c.

Mr. Reuben Chadbourne of North Berwick, slaughtered a hog 18 months old, that weighed 778 lbs.

THE NEW PATENT
NEVER-FAILING, SELF-LOCKING
WINDOW FAST.

The only substitute for weight and pulleys, and a complete and perfect SELF-LOCKING spring, at less cost than the old, unreliable and unsafe ones heretofore introduced. No Catching, Hitching, Breaking, Slipping, or Dropping, but ALWAYS SAFE,—Self-Locking and NEVER-FAILING. No cogs, cams, wheels, bands or rollers to get out of order, or tempered steels springs to break. It never fails to hold and lock the window just where you leave it, from being raised or dropped down. It can be raised or lowered the merest trifle, for ventilation and then and there locks itself. No other fixture pretends, does, or can, lock the window securely in every place or position. It works equally well on top or bottom sash, is simple, stronger, more effective, durable, and cheaper than any spring ever introduced. Critics are challenged to find a single fault. It is cheaply and easily applied by any mechanic to old or new windows. Every lock is made in the most thorough manner, and warranted perfect. WHAT THREAD DO YOU USE?

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT:

The Dawn of a New Era in the History of Machine Threads.

It is with the greatest satisfaction that we are enabled to call the attention of the people of New England to the C. S. I. COTTON THREAD now being manufactured by the WILLISTON MILLS. This thread is made expressly for Family Use, AND SOLD BY WEIGHT, each spool containing one-half ounce, exclusive of weight of spool. It is made from the very best COMBED SEA ISLAND COTTON, manufactured on the most improved machinery, in mills built at a cost of $1,000,000. We do not hesitate to warrant it equal in strength, superior in smoothness and elasticity (quality and quantity considered) than any so-called 200 yard Spool Cotton in the market, whether Imported or American.

We confidently believe that its introduction is destined to create a revolution in the "COTTON WORLD," as a stern and impartial test of same by the most competent authority fully justified the highest anticipations of its most earnest advocates.

We invite for this thread a thorough trial by everybody interested in SPOOL COTTON.

The Chronicle.

New Publications Received.

The New Idea is a new quarto weekly "literary" or miscellan ouspaper' published in Boston, edited by Charles H. Davis, a young man who formerly resided in Newington, and was employed in this Chronicle office, and has won considerable popularity as a story writer. It is a well printed sheet, and contains considerable valuable reading matter, besides the usual vapory love stories and sensation romances.

The Exeter News Letter begins the new year considerably enlarged and much improved. It has got new type—and will not henceforth insert cuts or show-bill type—always an abomination in a newspaper. It is now a nice-looking sheet, and with characteristic Exeter modesty, claims to be the handsomest in the State. Success to it.

The Haverhill, Mass., Gazette, which has been a very good weekly newspaper, is now published semi-weekly, Tuesday and Friday, at $3 per annum.

Vick's Catalogue. The increasing attention paid to floriculture, and the large sales of seeds and plants by the houses prominent in the trade, finds a natural outgrowth in the handsomely illustrated Catalogues published and sent out annually by importers and raisers of seeds and plants. Among these Catalogues for each year, that of Mr. James Vick, of Rochester, New York, may well claim superiority in artistic and general excellence. It always makes a very handsome book, with an elegantly engraved colored plate, presenting this time a bouquet of seven varieties of phlox drummondi, and over two hundred wood engravings of favorite flowers and vegetables. Its contents include a careful description of flowers and seeds, and directions for preparation of the soil, planting, and attention, which make it of great value to the amateur florist and gardener. Mr. Vick is noted for the excellence of seeds put up at his establishment; some which we and many others of our citizens procured last spring, afforded great gratification throughout the summer and fall. His catalogue will be sent to any address on the receipt of ten cents, and is really worth, as it must have cost, much more than that sum.

Brown's Almanac, Pocket Memorandum and Account Book for 1870, published annually by D. B. Brooks & Brother, Boston—for sale by Batchelder & Co.

The Albany Country Gentleman and Cultivator has got a new heading, new type, and has been enlarged, so, as to give better accommodations for advertisements, and more room for reading matter, which will now be in larger type—always an advantage. The Country Gentleman is always full of good reading, and can hardly be improved in its specialty.

New Hampshire Items.

At the late State Fair the Judges on Town Teams awarded the first premium to Mr. Locke, of Barrington, although he had a team of only ten yoke of oxen. It was afterwards ascertained that two yokes of this small team were hired in Manchester. The injustice of the decision was so manifest that the Directors instituted a thorough examination. Mr. Locke finally withdrew his claim, and the Directors decided that the first premium of $100 should be given to Bedford, and the 2d of $50 to Goffstown, and the 3d, $25, to Manchester.

There are now in the city of Manchester, 3000 Canadians, although ten years ago there were only about a dozen. They are generally in good circumstances, 67 of them having sums in bank ranging from $5000 to $8000—the total reaching the sum of $130,000. A school in the city, taught by a Canadian, has 140 children of families from the Dominion. At Suncook there are 600 Canadians, whereas five years ago there were only 5. Fifty-eight of these have respectively sums in bank, ranging from $500 to $15,000, averaging over $2100 each.

J. Frank Lawrence of Epping, formerly of Lee, and well known as a stirring man in this county, has accepted the appointment of Assistant Superintendent of the Second Division of the Philadelphia, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, at a salary of $1000 per year.

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, JAN. 13, 1870.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION for the first Senatorial District met at the Town Hall at South Newmarket on Wednesday. Mr. John Hodgdon, 2d, of the State Central Committee, called the Convention to order and reported the names of William H. Hackett of Portsmouth for President and John W. F. Hobbs of North Hampton for Secretary.

The report was accepted and Maj. Hackett made a brief speech thanking the Convention for the honor conferred. He urged all to unite in the support of the nominee, whoever he might be. Even as the standard bearer of last year was warmly supported so should the coming candidate receive like treatment. The political campaign opens auspiciously, and it was generally conceded by the Opposition that the State would go largely Republican at the ensuing election. National politics demanded less notice now and the affairs of our State demand the attention of our financiers. Let no circumstance prevent a full vote of the Republican party of the District. Mr. Hackett's remarks were warmly applauded.

Dr. Wm. H. Smart of Newcastle moved that a Committee of three be appointed by the chair to examine the credentials of delegates,—Messrs. Smart, Hoyt of Newington and Kent of Gosport were designated as the Committee.

On motion of Hon. Darius Frink of Newington, Hon. John H. Bailey of Portsmouth, present incumbent, was unanimously nominated for re-election as Senator. Mr. Bailey was escorted to the platform and spoke as follows:—

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention:—For this renewed expression of your confidence, please accept my sincere acknowledgement. More than once already have I received at the hands of the Republican party, support far beyond my most sanguine expectations.

To personal and political friends in my own city especially, are due my warmest thanks for the generosity in elevating me to positions of honor and trust to which I could not reasonably have aspired. And when I had received the honor of your nomination for Senator a year ago, I owe it to the courage, and enthusiasm, and devotion of those friends who, notwithstanding the lukewarmness and thinly-disguised antipathy of a few in my own city, and a serious defection in another part of the District, the indomitable masses of the Republican party rallied to my support with such energy and determination, that I received a much larger majority in Portsmouth and in the District than was given to my predecessor, the preceding year. I repeat, gentlemen, that to all who participated in that struggle and triumph, I tender the assurance of my profound gratitude and respect.

This support and confidence I have responded to, and endeavored to deserve by a faithful discharge of duty, and unswerving fidelity to Republican principles, in every position to which I have been elected by the suffrage of the people. That I have so far succeeded as to be the recipient of this new compliment at your hands to-day, fills me with pride, and at the same time sorrow that I am unable to receive the honor which your votes in March would once more confer upon me. I regret that public duties of another character forbid me to accept your nomination, and constrain me to ask you to select another candidate.

But, gentlemen, my heart and hand will be with you in the campaign upon which you are about to enter; and I am consoled by the assurance which I feel, that in this contingency, your own hearts and the public sentiment of your entire constituency turn unmistakably to a man as my successor whose deserts are far beyond my own—and who, gentlemen, I am confident will be nominated here to-day, will be triumphantly elected in March, and will adorn and dignify the office of Senator. His ability is well known to every man in the District, his honor and integrity have been beyond question, and of his loyalty to the most advanced Republican principles there is not a shadow of doubt.

With him as our standard bearer, we shall enter upon the campaign under the most auspicious omens, and we shall elect him by a majority unprecedented in this District in these later years. Surely, gentlemen, you can be at no loss to understand to whom I refer, and I will take the liberty to move that Hon. William B. Small of Newmarket be nominated by acclamation as the Republican candidate for Senator in District Number One.

The declination was accepted by the Convention; Mr. Young of Portsmouth seconded the nomination of Hon. Wm. B. Small for Senator, and he was unanimously declared the nominee, by a rising vote.

Messrs. Young of Portsmouth, Mann of Greenland and Brown of Hampton were appointed a Committee to confer with Mr. Small by letter, and ask his acceptance of the nomination.

Mr. Kent from the Committee on credentials reported the following list of delegates present:—

South Newmarket—Saml. H. Tarlton, Ephraim G. Hill.

Newington—Darius Frink, James Hoyt.

Hampton—John J. Leavitt, Jacob T. Brown.

Newmarket—H. F. Savage, J. F. Garland, John F. Chapman, H. R. Tuttle.

Newcastle—J. M. Bickford, Rufus A. Yeaton.

Gosport—D. Webster Barber, J. Horace Kent.

North Hampton—John W. F. Hobbs, Nathl. Drake.

Rye—Levi Thos. Sanborn, John T. Marden.

Stratham—John Smart, Freeman Burleigh.

Greenland—Samuel A. Hatch, Moses Mann.

Portsmouth—John Hodgdon 2d, John Pender, James A. Waterhouse, William B. Colley, Wm. C. Ham, Danl. J. Vaughan, John M. Davis, W. H. Smart, John H. Bailey, William H. Hackett, Chas. H. Hayes, Geo. W. Marston, Elbridge G. Pierce, Jr., Aaron Young, A. B. Tetherly, E. G. Hill, Alfred M. Hoyt, Chas. W. Bailey, John H. Morrill, Chas. A. Shannon.

President Hackett congratulated the Convention on the unanimity and harmony of the proceedings, and called up Mr. Patrick Quinn of South Newmarket, who made an eloquent speech. He complimented the standard bearer of last year and hoped to have voted for him again; but, as he had declined a reëlection, he should heartily support Newmarket's honored citizen. Mr. Bailey's mantle could not have fallen on a more worthy man, or a better neighbor or Republican. The issues of past years have been settled, the hour of trial has passed and the hour of peace has come. We should now look more closely to our State finances. Mr. Small will honor himself and the District. He is a temperance man, and he hoped the wires would soon click the news of his nomination to the Temperance Convention in session at Concord. The Republicans of District No. 1 had nominated a thorough temperance man to represent them.

On motion of Mr. Kent, the resolutions passed by the Republican State Convention were adopted as the voice of this Convention.

An additional resolution pledging the warm support of the Republicans of this District to the nominee, was unanimously passed.

Mr. John F. Chapman of South Newmarket vouched for the acceptance of the nominee. He said that Mr. Small was unavoidably absent at Exeter on law business, and that he was commissioned to invite the delegates to dine at Charlie's Smith's establishment, the Shute House.

Mr. John M. Davis of Portsmouth thought the convention at Concord was a side show. The Republican Convention had already nominated a temperance man, Hon. Onslow Stearns, for Governor.

The President inquired how many votes Gosport would give the nominee and Mr. Kent arose to say that his end of the town would poll heavily. Rev. D. W. Barber vouched for the "seven saints" who voted for the Constabulary Law, as all right. They would not support any but regular Republican nominations. They would fight all outside influences. The Republican party were to be thanked for the country's life and all that had been accomplished in the temperance cause.

The people would sustain them. There was nothing small in the nominee except his name. The Republican party need never fear of success with such candidates, and no patriot or christian could ask for better men to represent them.

The President referred to the indomitable Republicans of Newcastle, who had redeemed the town. He called up Dr. Smart, who was said to be popular with the ladies.

Dr. Smart said the President had said enough. Newcastle was redeemed by the hardworking of all Republicans, and Mr. Bickford, a delegate present, was a fair sample of the kind. The Republicans of that town will push things, and do much better than of late years. Newcastle would endorse Mr. Small.

On motion of Hon. Darius Frink of Newington, it was voted that the proceedings of this Convention be published in the Portsmouth Chronicle and Gazette. The Convention then adjourned sine die.

At the Shute House Charlie Smith got up one of his A No. 1 dinners, which was liberally patronized. A delegate maliciously insinuated that the best looking and most respectable delegates waited for the second table, which was indignantly denied. His initials are L. T. S., and he belongs in Rye. Mrs. S. will please chastise him.—It is reported that C. W. B. of the Ward Three (Portsmouth) delegation remained until after supper.

The delegates passed resolutions thanking Mr. Chas. E. Smith for the entertainment he furnished and voted to call at the Shute House annually as long as he runs the establishment.

New Hampshire Items.

During the past year, Dover paid about $25,000 of its indebtedness; and a stone crusher and engine, with suitable building for their protection, have been bought at an expense of $3,500. The City Hall was placed under the control of the Mayor by the City Councils, and the net proceeds from its judicious letter and management amount the $1,174.88 for the year.

The students of Dover High School enjoyed a very pleasant visit, on Wednesday of last week, from the first class of the Great Falls High School. A short season was very agreeably spent in the "feast of reason and flow of soul," and the visitors returned to their homes, much pleased with their excursion and entertainment.

A Dramatic Club, called "Plantation Varieties," has been formed by a few young lads of Dover, for literary and general improvement.

Mr. Daniel Barnard, a hand in the Manchester Print Works, has become a raving maniac, from religious excitement. He attended the Pine street Church Sunday week, and in the evening he spoke several times. Monday morning he was wild, and a doctor advised to send him to the Asylum. This was not done,—and on Wednesday he flourished a knife, and cut at some of his friends, finishing the performance by jumping out of a chamber window which he had stove out, and broke his hip.

The Congregational church at South Seabrook, acknowledges the gift of seventy-two pews, from the house lately used by the Second Church at Keene; also sixty dollars from the First Church, forty from Milford, thirty from Amherst and twenty from Mont Vernon; also seventy-three dollars from the North Church in Newburyport.

Dr. O. G. Cilley, of Durham has sold his place and business to Dr. Wm. P. Sylvester of Oxford, Me.

A CAPITAL NOMINATION.—The Republicans of this district, as will be seen by our full report of the Convention, have nominated Hon. Wm. B. Small of Newmarket as candidate for State Senator, Mr. Bailey having been previously nominated and declined a reëlection. Mr. Small is an able man, honest, straightforward, and true to the most advanced principles of the Republican patry. His unanimous nomination is a compliment which speaks well for the harmony of the party. No man in the District deserves such honor better. Portsmouth will roll up a handsome majority for him, and the rest of the District will sustain him.

☞ Aaron L. Mellows of Newmarket was nominated on Wednesday as candidate for Senator in this District by the Democratic Convention, to be run down by Hon. Wm. B. Small of the same town.

☞ The officers of the various Banks in this city have all been reëlected, and Mr. William H. Hackett is added to the Directors of the First National Bank.

☞ The New Hampshire Gazette for this week, is now ready for delivery at the Chronicle office. Price 5 cts. per copy—$2. per year. Contains all the Local and other reading from the Daily Chronicle.

FOUND AT LAST.—A remedy that not only relieves, but cures the enemy of mankind Consumption, as well as numerous satellites which revolve around it, in the shape of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Influenza, &c. The remedy we allude to is DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, prepared by Seth W. Fowle and Son, Boston.

Boston, Mass., still maintain the highest rank for their elegant Boot and Shoe Store, 293 Washington street, (opposite Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s.)

Holloway's Ointment and Pills work admirably together as remedies for the affections of the Chest, Lungs and Throat, so common at this season. A few doses of the Pills at once alleviate the general febrile symptoms, and the Ointment faithfully rubbed over the seat of the complaint produces an immediate and powerful local effect; neutralizing and subduing the internal irritation and soon enabling the sufferer to "breathe freer and deeper." This treatment will cure a Cough that resists all other remedies. Sold by all Druggists.

The Living Machine.

Injure the main spring of a watch and every portion of the works becomes disordered. The human stomach is to the human system what that elastic piece of metal is to a chronometer. It influences the action of the other organs, and controls, to a certain extent, the whole living machine. The comparison may be carried further; for as the weakness or other imperfections of the main spring is indicated on the face of the timepiece, so also is the weakness or other disorder of the stomach betrayed by the face of the individual. The complexion is sallow or faded, the eyes are deficient in lustre and intelligence, and there is a worn, anxious expression in the whole countenance which tell as plainly as written words could do, that the great nourishment organ whose office, it is to minister to the wants of the body, and to sustain and renew all its parts, is not performing its duty.

It requires renovating and regulating, and to accomplish this end Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be truly said to be the one thing needful. The broken main spring of a watch may be replaced by a new one, but the stomach can only be repaired and strengthened by one of the objects of the famous vegetable restorative which for eighteen years has been waging a successful contest with dyspepsia in all climates. As a specific for indigestion it stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopœia have been exhausted, without, at best, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome and palatable, yet powerful stomachic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland, as well as upon the stomach and bowels, the Bitters act with singular distinctness, regulating and reinvigorating every secretive and assimilating organ on which bodily and mental health depend.

ASTONISHING REVELATIONS.

A HUMBUG.

How often we hear this expression from persons reading advertisements of Patent Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they may be right.

It is over 22 years since I introduced DR. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT, to the public. I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and storekeepers through a small section of the country, many taking it with great reluctance; but I told them to let any one have it, and if it did not do all I stated on my pamphlet, no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were taken on trial by persons present. I was, by many, thought crazy, and that would be the last they would see of me.

But I know my medicine was no humbug, in about two months I began to receive orders for more Liniment, some calling it my valuable Liniment, who had refused to sign a receipt when I left it at their store. Now my sales are millions of bottles yearly, and all for cash.

I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Vomiting, Spasms, and Sea-sickness, as an internal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally—see oath accompanying each bottle—and externally for Chronic, Rheumatism, Headache, Mumps, Frosted Feet, Bruises, Sprains, Old Sores, Swellings, Sore Throats, &c., &c.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS.

Sudden severe pains of the side and back, stitches, spasms, etc. These affections are most troublesome to persons past middle age. Will even come on in bed; are very painful and often dangerous. In damp weather they are more frequent than in dry. These plasters give relief at once, and need to be always in the drawer, handy.

PAIN OF THE SIDE CURED.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

What the Doctors Say:

AMOS WOOLLEY, M. D., of Kosciusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM extensively, in my practice, and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County, Ohio, says: "ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM not only sells rapidly but gives more satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medicinal properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success. As an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

Dr. Hopkins' Iron Tonic, Lynn, Mass., M. D., of Middlebury, Vermont, says; I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

Physicians do not recommend a medicine which has no merits, what they say about

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitely more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried Dr. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE.—CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

NAVAL.—2nd. Asst. Engr. Jos. B. Upham of this city is detached from this Navy Yard and ordered to the U. S. S. Miamtonomoh.

☞ For the next Mercantile Lyceum entertainment, Mr. Albee will give his Lecture on the Farm, — Tuesday evening, Jan. 18th.

☞ Frost's Allegory and Living Tableaux at the Temple again to-night. There was a fine exhibition last evening, in spite of the weather; and those who were present then will want to go again, — while those who were not, should be sure to attend to-night.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE for 1870 organized, Tuesday evening, by choosing Lyman D. Spaulding of Ward Two, Chairman, and Augustus Walden of Ward Three, Secretary. The High School Committee consists of Messrs. Samuel M. DeMeritt, Geo. M. Adams and Albert R. Hatch.

☞ From the Congress Block Bookstore, we have the revolving Counting Room Calendar, as usual; and we should hardly know how to get along without it. Besides the story of the whirling days, months and years, it tells all about Carter's Ink, for which Mr. Shores is the agent in this city.

☞ The Lecture before the Mercantile Lyceum, by Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, Tuesday evening, was a well considered and valuable essay upon the elements of Success in Life; and was eminently worthy the consideration of young men, to whom it was especially directed. The audience filled the hall, and was composed of our best citizens; and the lecture was listened to with much interest. It is a privilege to hear from one so well qualified to speak as Mr. Hackett, the result of the observation and experience of a long, well-spent and so in every way successful life; for he began at the lowest rounds of the ladder, and has worked himself well up.

☞ New York Ledger Bonner recently published the affidavit of the President of the N. Y. News Co., that his house had that week forwarded 277 and odd thousand, (we think it was,—or 300 and more perhaps,) Ledgers all over the country that week; and the next week Mr. Bonner said that as he had received over 3000 new subscribers that week by mail, he concluded the universal Yankee nation was going to enroll themselves on his list.

Now although we cannot tell quite so big a story as that yet; still the old Gazette, as well as the Chronicle, is steadily gaining always,—and the Gazette especially is doing wonders in its old age. Nobody once on the list, is willing to leave it; and although we have printed a large number in excess of our lists, yet so rapidly have our subscribers come in, that our supply is exhausted, and we are unable to furnish more copies for Jan. 1st or 8th. New subscriptions must now commence with Jan. 15th, or any subsequent date.

A COSTLY SMOKE.—A citizen of this place, who has for many years been endeavoring to do his share towards the destruction of all the tobacco in the world, by burning quantities of it daily —in a pipe,—had a goodly outer garment of graceful model, which was far dearer to his heart than the apples of other peoples' eyes, — excepting only some dozen eyes of superlative beauty. On Wednesday his cherished covering was fair and comely to the sight, as he placed it on'r his form for the last time, and lighted his pipe preparatory to proceeding to the scene of his daily toil,—but alas! its glory has departed forever, —at least, until he gets it mended—it is now hauled up for repairs. Arrived at his destination, the beloved garment was carefully put away, with the beloved pipe in its pocket. Soon the smoker spake, saying, "What a horrible smell of confounded old rags burning! who's been putting 'em in the stove?" No one replied; and with a horrible suspicion gnawing at his vitals, he rushed to the spot where he had left his clothing, to find that only about half of it remained there,—the other half having "gone up." What he said is not known —let us be charitable and suppose he didn't say anything,—but he put out the fire, and found that one whole broadside of his garment had been reduced to smoke, and one of its wings to tinder. Besides, his gloves and pocket-book had disappeared. So he thinks he paid pretty dearly for his smoke; but he derives much consolation from reflecting that the gloves were old ones, and that he expended $1.67 the day before, so there couldn't have been much left in the pocket-book.

CONGRESS.—In the house on Monday, Mr. Stevens of New Hampshire presented a bill to regulate the rank of the Navy staff corps. It establishes three grades, with the following rank: Medical and pay directors and engineer inspectors are to constitute the first grade and rank with captains and commanders; paymasters and engineers to have the rank of lieutenant-commanders; passed assistant surgeons, paymasters and engineers rank with lieutenants; assistants rank with masters, without increase of pay. The proposed result of the bill is to restore the rank of staff officers under Secretary Welles' regulation, which were revoked shortly after Mr. Borie became Secretary of the Navy. The pay of retired officers is arranged so as to be the same as retired line officers of similar service. The precedence and authority of commanding officers over the staff officers when on duty together is clearly provided.

On Tuesday, both Houses were engaged in debating their respective bills for the admission of Virginia.

In the Senate, a message from the President of the United States was received vetoing the act for the relief of Rollin White. Tabled, and ordered to be printed.

A STRAW.—The Concord Patriot predicts that the Temperance Convention will somehow turn out to the advantage of "the Radicals,"—tho' we don't see exactly how that can be. The Patriot, however, probably expects to see Gov. Stearns re-elected; and so thinks that the "golden opportunity" of the copperheads to profit by an unwise movement about temperance, may not be so purely golden after all.

JUST WHY.—There is a scarcity of seamen in the Navy as is well known. This is largely due to the abuse of the seamen by officers. Two seamen were heard discussing the matter of shipping, a day or two since, near the Rockingham Bank; and the discussion was finally closed by one of them, as follows: —"I've been thinking of shipping, but if these officers are going to hang men up by the thumbs and abuse them as they have done, I won't ship, that's all."

A Montreal alderman is twenty-five times a father.

Dr. Brenham of Texas was bitten just below the night shirt by a tarantula. Morphine, whiskey, turpentine and chloroform saved him.

Montgomery Blair is ill.

It is reported that the robbers of the Boylston Bank are determined to keep 50,000 of their plunder, which consists of greenbacks, diamonds, and a watch; but will give up one-half the rest, $256,000 in bonds, on condition that they are not to be prosecuted.

SAD ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last, at East Needham, Mass., a son and a grandson of Mr. Elijah Young (formerly of this city and conductor on the Eastern Railroad,) were drowned, on Mr. Young's farm. Otis M. Young, aged 8 years,—son of the late George B. Young, and grandson of Mr. Elijah Young and also of Mr. J. H. Wells of this city,—was sliding on a small muck pond near the house, with another little boy, when he broke in. His companion ran and called his uncle, Otis H. Young, aged 25, who rushed to his rescue, and lying flat on the ice, had just given his hand to the little fellow to pull him out, when both instantly disappeared beneath the surface, either by slipping off or further breakage of the ice, and both were drowned. A sad blow indeed for the family.

The boy who when he saw his friend in danger, ran at once towards the house to call help, shew commendable coolness; and when he afterwards saw both the lost ones were in, he again instantly started for other aid, but it was too late. Had he kept on to the house, summoning other assistance at first, instead of returning to the brook, (as very few men even would think of doing, however,) both might perhaps have been rescued. Or had the man, in climbing the fence which he had to pass over in his course to the brook, pulled off a board and taken it along with him, both lives might perhaps have been saved.

THE STATE TEMPERANCE CONVENTION At Concord on Wednesday was slimly attended. A motion to adjourn without making nominations was defeated 34 to 75. About one third of the delegates bolted, and the remainder nominated Rev. Dr. Barrows of Tilton for governor.

Morning Chronicle.

THE STRICKEN CREW.

AN ADVENTURE THAT CAN BE VOUCHED FOR.

On a fine morning in the fall of 1861, the frigate "Melpomene," one of her Britannic Majesty's finest screws, in which I was a lieutenant, left Halifax, N. S., under orders for the Bermudas, there to refit, preparatory to proceeding to the coast of America, to watch over English interests; her appointed head-quarters to be Fortress Monroe, her captain being allowed to take his time on the passage.

What a change it was, getting into the quiet monotony, the regular routine, of a man-of-war at sea, after several exciting months spent in Halifax; where there was as much interest taken in the great struggle going on between North and South, as in New York, Washington or Richmond; it being still a doubtful question what course England and France would pursue towards the two parties of belligerents. Indeed, there were two parties in the capital of Nova Scotia, whose feelings were as bitter against one another as those of the Federals and Confederates.

We had entered the Gulf Stream, and were sailing quietly along, when our signal midshipman reported to Captain E—w—t.

"A Danish bark in distress on the weather bow?"

"Mr. Haines," commanded the captain "ask her name, and how we can assist her."

"Aye, aye, sir," answered the officer.

In a few minutes the bunting fluttered at our mast-head, and all eyes were brought to bear on the stranger.

There was some delay, as merchant vessels are not generally very smart at communications by signal; at last however, the midshipman reported:—

"The Copenhagen—in want of water and provisions—scurvy bad on board."

"Martin," said Captain E—w—t, addressing our first lieutenant, "let Mr. Edwards take my galley, and board the bark, to see what she may require, and have the cutter ready to send what he finds may be wanted. Dr. Trimble had better accompany him, and see to the sick. Tell Edwards to come to me for orders, before starting."

"Very good, sir," replied Martin.

These orders directed me to go on the duty, which led to the events I am about to narrate.

In accordance with them the captain's private six-oared boat was manned, and the assistant-surgeon and myself, having received instructions from our respective chiefs, proceeded to board the Copenhagen, find out what she wanted, and signal back to the ship, when the necessary articles would be sent after us in one of the large boats.

I carried with me, however, a few pounds of pork, some biscuit, a little rum and lime juice, as well as some vegetables from the officer's mess, the doctor taking also along with him a few medical comforts.

The Copenhagen was about two miles off, and as we had our fires banked, and were under canvas only, our captain made no attempt to "close" the merchant vessel; besides, it was only a short pull in his fast galley.

As we rode towards her we were astonished at the Dane making no attempt to close us.

"Have you ever been in this part of the world before, Edwards?" asked Trimble of me, as we were nearing the bark.

"No; why?" I returned.

"Then you have never experienced the effect of the Gulf Stream?"

"No. I have not; though I have read a good deal about it."

"I have seen its evaporation so great as to become a thick fog, though you could hardly call it fog, for it was more like an immense vapor bath, and a very handsome mirror in our mess-room was completely destroyed by it."

As he said this, we had reached the Danish vessel, and I gave no more thought to the subject of our conversation. Once on board, a most wretched spectacle came under our eyes. The vessel was a fine, well-found craft. On the deck lay the helpless crew, in the last stage of starvation, her captain being apparently the only man with sufficient energy to speak to us.

I have seen starvation in many forms; in poor Ireland during the famine of '46, when America, so nobly and generously sent assistance in the frigate Macedonian; and again, at the Cape of Good Hope, when the Caffres destroyed their cattle and would not till the ground, because a prophet had told them that a mighty spirit would come amongst them, to lead them to victory and the extermination of the white man. I have witnessed these and other scenes of famine suffering, but nothing to compare with that presented by the scurvy-stricken crew of the Copenhagen.

"Hand up the provisions—quick! quick!" I cried, and began myself serving out the small supply we had brought with us. There was a strange, eager silence as each man's want were attended to.

The doctor went on to examine the wretched crew, and apply such remedies as he chanced to have, while I signalled the ship for what provisions were needed.

So much taken up was I with these occupations that I paid no attention to anything else, till, having completed what I was about, my attention was drawn to a strange haze forming to windward. Then I recalled the conversation which had been commenced between the assistant-surgeon and myself. Calling him up to me, I said: "Trimble, is that anything like the kind of fog you spoke of?"

As I spoke, I pointed to the hazy appearance to windward.

"Something of the sort," he answered, "though it does not appear to me exactly like what I have usually observed. Still, I think you will do well to keep the ship in sight."

While we were speaking, old Davis, the coxswain of our boat, came up.

"Please sur," he said to me, touching his hat, "that there haze to wind'ard be'ant a good sign. There be one 'o them there nasty logs a comin' on, mark my word, sur."

Without replying to his remarks, I ordered him to send our men to the ropes for trimming sails, as I now understood why the bark had not closed us. Not one of her crew had sufficient strength to move, with the exception of the skipper, and he was too weak even to manage the helm, having barely strength to make the signals to us. As he afterwards told me, he had these ready bent on with weights, so that they would run themselves up.

Taking the helm, and directing Trimble to note the Melpomene's bearing, I shaped a course for her. The haze had already begun to form into a dense fog; but, as the frigate was in full view of us, I had no anxiety or fear that anything unusual would occur.

I have often thought since, that my mind was distracted, and its power of reasoning dulled, by the wretched misery around me; but be this as it may, in ten minutes from the time I had first noticed the misty appearance, I found myself enveloped in a dense fog, or rather vapour cloud, which hung round the bark and brought on a feeling similar to what one experiences in going into a Turkish bath. Our thermometer leaped up fifteen degrees, and our respiration was painfully affected; though only for a time, as in a few hours the feeling wore off.

In the meantime, I endeavored to communicate with the Melpomene by a system of sound signals similar to those invented by Morse. I first tried with a fog-horn belonging to the bark, but as it had not been taken care of I could only get a grunt out of it. I next experimented with the bark's bell, but it was a miserable article—cracked and almost soundless.

All this time we could hear the frigate's steam whistle, with which she was signalling to us. But we not only could not return it, but had the further mortification of discovering, by the sound of the whistle growing fainter, that she was leaving us.

To be continued to-morrow.

THE KING OF THE CRADLE.

Draw back the cradle curtains, Kate,
Whilst watch and ward you're keeping,
Let's see the monarch lie in state,
And view him whilst he's sleeping.
He smiles and clasps his tiny hand,
As sunbeams in come streaming;
A world of baby fairy land,
He visits whilst he's dreaming.

Monarch of pearly powder puff,
Asleep in nest so cosy.
Shielded from breath of breezes rough
By curtains warm and rosy;
The rumbs soundly in hiscell,
As weak as one decrepid,
Though King of Coral, Lord of Bell,
And Knight of Bath that's tepid.

Ah, lucky tyrant! happy lot!
Fair watchers without number
To sweetly sing beside his cot,
And hush him off to slumber;
White hands in wait to smooth so neat
His pillow when it's rumpled;
On couch of rose leaves fresh and sweet,
Not one of which is crumpled!

Will yonder, dainty, dimpled hand—
Size, nothing and a quarter—
E'er clasp a sabre, lead a band
To glory and to slaughter!
And, may I ask, will those blue eyes—
In baby patois, "peepers"—
E'er in the House of Commons rise,
And strive to catch the Speaker's?

Will that fair brow o'er Hansard frown,
Confused by lore statistic!
Or will those lips e'er stir the town,
From pulpit ritualistic?
Impossible, and yet, mayhap—
Though strange, quite true it may be—
Perhaps Nero once was fed on pap,
And Beales was once a baby.

Though rosy, dimpled, plump and round,
Though fragile, soft and tender,
Sometimes, alas! it may be found,
The thread of life is slender!
A little shoe, a bitten glove—
Affection never waning—
The shattered idol of our love
Is all that is remaining!

Then does one chance, in fancy, hear
Small feet in childish patter,
Tread soft, as they a grave draw near,
And voices hush their chatter;
'Tis small and new—they pause in fear
Beneath the gray church tower,
To consecrate it by a tear,
To deck it with a flower.

Then take your babe, Kate, kiss him so;
Fast to your bosom press him!
Of mother's love what does he know?
Though closely you caress him.
Ah! what a man will be that boy,
What mind and education!
If he fulfils the hope and joy
Of mother's aspiration.

MANCHESTER FARMERS' MEETING.—Potatoes and their Culture.—Mr. Adams called up the potato question, and an interesting discussion followed, occupying the principal part of the forenoon.

Mr. George inquired what was the best early potato to plant, and the best field potato.

Mr. Beede, of Fremont, recommended the Early Rose and the Harrison.

Mr. Clark preferred the Early Chebagos for an early variety, and the Ox-Kidney for field potato. He never planted more than two kinds in a season, and did not think it well to plant a great many varieties.

Mr. Roberts, of Gloucester, experimented with twenty-two varieties this last season. He planted for early potatoes, the Early Rose, the Caledonia Seedlings, the Climax, the Chenango and the Sebec. The Early Rose yielded one-fifth better than any of the others. The Harrison and the Pink-Eyed Rusty-Coat were the best winter varieties, so far as his experience went. His soil was a gravelly loam, high and dry.

Mr. Pattee, of Warner, gave an account of his method of cultivating the potato, and expressed himself in favor of the Early Rose and Orono. The Harrison, he said, was not a marketable potato, and, therefore, he had discarded it. The character of his soil was a light, but not sandy loam. His potatoes cost him something less than 25 cents a bushel.

Mr. Beede gave an account of a series of experiments that he had tried with several varieties. From fifteen pounds of Early Rose he got thirty-six bushels; of Philbrick's Early White, he got fifty-six pounds from one pound of seed; from two pounds of the Willard, 235 pounds; one pound Western Chief, ninety-nine pounds; four pounds Excelsior, 420 pounds; fifteen pounds Harrison, forty-three bushels. He used six cords of manure, and at the rate of 400 pounds to the acre of Bradley's superphosphate in the hill. He thought, in point of quality, the White Peachblow was the best, but it did not yield so well as some other varieties, and was a little inclined to rot.

Mr. Lyman inquired if any gentleman could inform the meeting of the relative profitableness of the corn and potato crops.

Col. Clough, of Canterbury, spoke in a very forcible manner on the general subject of agriculture. He said he had followed the business of farming during a long life, and he had always felt safe in trusting the soil. It had ever remunerated him, and he believed it ever would remunerate the intelligent and industrious cultivator. He urged upon young men the importance of staying upon the farm, instead of going to the cities in search of fortunes, for he thought a competence was more certain to be secured by the pursuit of agriculture than in trade or commerce.

The Colonel spoke of the great success he had had in growing corn, and expressed his belief that the State of New Hampshire could raise her own bread, and that there was no occasion for sending a million of dollars annually to the West for the purchase of breadstuffs. He would agree to do his proportion toward bringing about this desirable consummation.

Mr. Rossiter agreed with Col. Clough that New Hampshire ought not to buy a bushel of corn. He had always been of opinion that the farmers of this State could raise their own corn cheaper than they could buy it. He had raised this cereal for twenty-nine years, and kept an accurate account of his expenditures on the crop, and he did not believe it cost him more than 50 or 60 cents a bushel.

Mr. Healy, of Stratham, considered corn a profitable crop to raise. He had been told that New Hampshire was no place to raise corn or pork, but he had fed his corn to hogs, and he believed that last year his corn had brought him two dollars a bushel in the shape of pork, the corn having cost him about a dollar.

Mr. Hayes, of Portsmouth, said that in his portion of the State the farmers preferred to raise potatoes and buy their corn. They thought they could make more money in that way than by raising corn. The Orono was their favorite potato, which would sell for from 10 to 15 cents a bushel more in the Boston market than any other potato.

Mr. M. H. Hussey, of North Berwick, Me., said his favorite potato was Bresee's Prolific. He bought a bushel last spring, for which he paid $60, and planted them on the 8th of June, and raised, with only one hoeing, 145 1-2 bushels of as nice potatoes as he ever saw. So far, he considered them ahead of everything else. For an early potato, he had seen nothing that come up to the Early Rose. He had dug potatoes, this year, of good size, in less than two months after planting them. He thought his potatoes, this year, had cost him about 25 cents per bushel, aside from the cost of the seed.

—A Southern paper mentions the case of an eighty acre farm, that had become so exhausted as to yield but four or five bushels of wheat per acre, but by the use of clover as a green crop, it was made to produce this year, from twenty to twenty five bushels of wheat per acre.

NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
An Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

Portsmouth, N. H.

FRIDAY, JAN. 14, 1870.

THE NAVAL STAFF CORPS.—The bill to regulate the rank of the naval staff corps, presented to the U. S. House of Representatives by General Stevens, of New Hampshire, the Washington Republican says is a well-digested and carefully-prepared bill, and well calculated to settle satisfactorily this troubled question. It does not fully meet the wishes of those members of the staff corps who have asked that Congress should give to them for their war service similar increase of rank and promotion to that enacted for the line in the bills of 1862 and 1866, which created commodores, admirals, &c., but it establishes them upon a satisfactory condition, in view of the proposed reduction of the navy to a peace basis.

It divides off the present roster of the three staff corps, after some reduction of numbers, into grades, creating medical and pay directors and engineer inspectors, with fixed numbers, to have rank with captains and commanders. Surgeons, paymasters, and engineers to have the rank of lieutenant commanders; Passed assistant surgeons, paymasters, and engineers to rank with lieutenants. Assistants to rank with masters, without increase of pay.

The general result of the bill is to restore in great degree the rank of the staff officers under Secretary Welles' regulations, which were revoked soon after Mr. Borie became Secretary of the Navy. The pay of the retired officers is arranged to be the same as retired line officers of similar service.

No staff officers are to have the rank of Commodore, except the Chiefs of bureaus. The precedence and authority of commanding officers over staff officers when on duty together, is clearly provided. The bill provides fixed and defined rank for the officers in question, and will doubtless be satisfactory to them and to the Navy generally.

FRANCE AND THE NAPOLEON DYNASTY.—The Boston Advertiser says:—

A new crisis has been precipitated upon the imperial government of France at the moment when it most needed a general calmness to slide easily into the new condition of things. A Bonaparte, a nephew of the first Emperor, a cousin of the present sovereign, has killed a man of the people, a member of the press, a representative of the reds, a comrade of Rochefort.

A smaller spark than this might suffice to fire the magazine upon which the feeble Emperor, his fashionable wife and his fragile boy have been standing in apprehension for months. M. Pierre Bonaparte's deed was no worse as a crime than many acts of other Bonapartes: but it was more serious as a blunder. The Emperor is placed in a perplexing dilemma. He cannot send his cousin to the guillotine or the galleys; and it is a difficult question how much milder a penalty will satisfy the people to whom the death of Victor Noir is as a martyrdom, or will go so far toward satisfying them that they will not take their vegeance into their own hands.

The Chambers, which before might have sided in helping the dynasty out of its scrape, are now much more likely to hinder it and add to its annoyance. The lock which he calls destiny has stood by Louis Napoleon in many threatening hours. The world will wait with eager anxiety to see if it will sustain him still. But in any event, when the approaching downfall comes, be it after the death of the Emperor or before it, the name of Victor Noir will give a new rallying cry to the gathering forces of the revolution.

CONGRESS.—In the Senate on Wednesday Mr. Sumner introduced a bill to authorize refunding and consolidation of the national debt, to extend banking facilities and establish specie payments.

☞ Mr. Albert Moulton of York, Me., has just slaughtered a pig 396 days old which when dressed weighed 448 pounds. At the age of four weeks it weighed only ten pounds, showing an average gain of 1 5-9 pounds per day for 278 days. This we think is ahead of anything yet. Can any one beat it? If so please report at headquarters.

Yours, SQUIB.

A NOVEL CLAIM.—The Indian Peace Commissioners have a novel claim before them. Last May a number of Pawnees left their reservation, went to Nebraska, and there murdered a white man named McMurtey, whose widow now asks the Indian Department damages in the amount of $25,000, and suggests that the sum requested be assessed upon the tribe of the murderers and deducted from their appropriations.

☞ Major Jones, the State Constable of Massachusetts, does not know of a single open bar in the Commonwealth, and thinks that men slink into corners and lock the door after them when they take a drink.

☞ The Universalists of New Hampshire are to hold a Sunday School Convention in Manchester, on Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 25 and 26.

New Hampshire Items.

Frank Hayes, an ex-soldier, is now confined in the Nashua station house on account of insanity, awaiting the action of the proper authorities whoever they may be. He has been mentally breaking down for a year past, and now imagines himself the Saviour. During the war, he lost an arm in the depot at Concord, owing to the discharge of a gun in the hands of a drunken soldier.

A Concord youth named Charles Frye attempted to shin the steeple of the Pleasant-street Baptist church, last Sunday, to get at the doves which built their nests therein. Before reaching his destined prey, he slipped and fell, striking the earth after a descent of twenty feet. Owing to his light weight and the fact that he "lit" in a favorable position, he escaped with unfractured bones, though bruised and "jounced" in a manner he is not likely to forget.

A town meeting was held in Warner on the 4th, to see if the town would vote to raise $6,000 to build a school house in order to obtain the interest on $20,000 bequeathed the town by the late Franklin Simonds. After some discussion, which rendered the prospects of the appropriations doubtful, Hon. N. G. Ordway proposed raising the sum by subscription, and offered to give $500 as his share. Samuel Dow pledged himself to a like amount, and a committee was appointed to see if the balance could be secured.

Eighteen years ago, a man by the name of William D. Smith was killed in this city, while blasting stone. Shortly after, his wife, Mary Jane Smith died. They left two children, a boy and a girl, bearing the names of the father and mother. The children were cared for by the city missionary, and homes secured for them. The girl remained in Manchester and was adopted by a family whose name is not now remembered. The brother, Wm. D. Smith, resides at Lebanon, and is anxious to learn if his sister be living. This may meet her eye or that of some one who has a knowledge of her residence. Manchester Mirror.

The wealth of New Hampshire is neither in agricultural, nor mineral, but in human resources, and in the beauties and sublimities of nature which do so much for the education of her sons and daughters.—[New York Examiner.

VOTING AWAY THE POLICE.—A good number of years ago, when the name of Jackson was the watchword of success to the then new democratic party, the town of Portsmouth went democratic at the March election for state officers, —though the previous year it had gone the other way,—and in that previous year, among the Police officers were Robert Smith and Nathaniel Rogers, who was afterward landlord of the Marboro' Hotel, Boston, and the Delavan House, Albany.

Both these officers, and others, tried to do their duty; and the "organ" of the terrified democracy blamed them for their strictness, and made quite a hustle of the matter before election.

The Meeting for choosing Town officers very naturally gave a still larger majority for the rising party; and their victory was very naturally celebrated by a very high and noisy time, reaching far into the night, and some of the zealous didn't go home till morning. One of these latter gentry; a very well dressed sailor, appeared on Market square next morning, which happened to be pleasant, and between 8 and 9 o'clock was promenading backward and forward between the Atheneum and Daniel street, addressing ladies and gentlemen in the most familiar and boisterous style, crowing over his victory and using words not to be repeated in ears polite.

Mr. Rogers, (who kept a shop in Daniel street,) heard the uproar, and stepping out, laid his hand on the orator's shoulder, and told him to stop his noise, and go with him.

Who are you? and what business have you with me? roared the sailor.

I'm one of the Police, was the answer. Police! Police! why I thought we voted that all away in Town Meeting.

This thought, though quite excusable in him, as he had been trained, was soon dispelled by his having to pay a small fine and costs:—and the story was often told by Mr. Rogers years afwards.

☞ Maj. George Marston, formerly of Portsmouth, and who has spent several years in Washington, and is now residing in Sandown,—has been visiting in the city for a day or two.

Mr. Samuel Rowe, who has been in Iowa and other Western States for about two years and half, has returned to this city.

Mr. Geo. W. Fernald, after a long residence in Iowa, has returned home, having sold out his business in the West.

☞ Tickets for the coming masquerade may now be had at 45 Congress Street.

New Hampshire Items.

Hon. John W. Sanborn of Wakefield has been appointed, by the Governor and Council, a trustee of the N. H. Asylum for the Insane, vice Hon. Isaac Adams of Sandwich, resigned.

President Smith of Dartmouth College has left home for a three months' vacation, and is, with his family, in New York city.

Benjamin P. Cheney of Cheney's Express, recently gave $500 to aid in repairing the Congregational Church at Hillsboro' Bridge.

The Exeter News Letter, says Mr. Jonathan Fogg of that town, who works daily for Mr. Henry Dow, walks from his home to his work, every morning, and walks back every evening, a distance of eight miles per day. He has done this for four months, which is quite a feat, since he weighs 250 lbs., and is verging hard upon sixty. His shoes are a credit to their maker.

A QUEER AFFAIR.—Rev. Horace Cook, who eloped with Miss Johnson, a New York heiress, last week, has returned to his home and returned the young lady to her family. He writes a letter to the Tribune stating that he returns Miss Johnson to her home as pure as when she left.

Miss Johnson states that Rev. Mr. Cook took her to Philadelphia, where he placed her in a hotel where he left her, not seeing her again from the time of his escorting her to the Philadelphia Hotel until Tuesday night, when he came and brought her back to this city. Her parents are satisfied that no improper intercourse has taken place. She evidently has been in a state of religious enthusiasm, bordering on monomania. Mr. Cook, after being locked up in a station house last night, tried to borrow a knife of another prisoner, but was denied. He refused to hold an interview in his cell with a reporter.

Cook went home, brandished a pistol, and frightened the family ont of their wits, until a friend fortunately induced him to give up the weapon, a six-shooter, before he did any injury. He then wandered down town, till he came across a newspaper man, whom he proceeded at once to immolate. The friends of Miss Johnson, and also of Mr. Cook, are satisfied that the young lady has returned from her enforced tour as pure as she went away.

Mr. Daniel Sanborn of Chester, recently caught in three weeks, seventy muskrats, seven minks, a fox and an otter.

"WHERE'S THE HORSE."—Two men wishing to take a horse to Portsmouth from Portland, engaged a car and closed their animal in it. The car went off with the evening freight train, Monday, and when on arriving at Portsmouth they got out of the saloon car attached to the train, to look after their pony, they found the door to the car in which he had been placed, open, and their property gone. There was a question. Did the horse get out and break his neck, or was he stolen at some station?

P. S.—We learn that Tuesday some boys found a horse answering the description of the missing one, in the Piscataqua river, near the railroad bridge. How he got there is a mystery. Portland Argus.

☞ Portland and Boston disputants have been arguing as to the relative depths of water in their respective harbors—all on account of H. B. M.'s man-of-war Monarch being ordered to Portland with the remains of the late Geo. Peabody. Our neighbors needn't quarrel about the depth of water in those localities. The depth of water in Portsmouth harbor is greater than that of Portland and Boston combined.

☞ At the Rockingham County Republican Convention held at Exeter on Thursday, Mr. R. Martin of this city presided. John W. Fogg Hobbs of South Hampton was nominated for County Commissioner; Folsom Dow of Epping, Register of Deeds; and Geo. G. Lougee, Treasurer. We shall publish a full report to-morrow.

☞ The Countess Guiccioli is said to be writing a reply to Mrs. Stowe's attack on Lord Byron and Mrs. Leigh. [What can her testimony be worth?]

☞ The North Church in this city, of which Rev. Geo. M. Adams is Pastor, admitted 40 members in 1870; 31 of them by profession.

FOUND AT LAST.—A remedy that not only relieves, but cures that enemy of mankind Consumption, as well as numerous satellites which revolve around it, in the shape of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Influenza, &c. The remedy we allude to is DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, prepared by Seth W. Fowle and Son, Boston.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

T. E. MOSELEY & CO.,

Boston, Mass., still maintain the highest rank for their elegant Boot and Shoe Store, 293 Washington street, (opposite Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s.)

Holloway's Ointment and Pills work admirably together as remedies for the affections of the Chest, Lungs and Throat, so common at this season. A few doses of the Pills at once alleviate the general febrile symptoms, and the Ointment faithfully rubbed over the seat of the complaint produces an immediate and powerful local effect; neutralizing and subduing the internal irritation and soon enabling the sufferer to "breathe freer and deeper." This treatment will cure a Cough that resists all other remedies. Sold by all Druggists.

The Living Machine.

Injure the main spring of a watch and every portion of the works becomes disordered. The human stomach is to the human system what that elastic piece of metal is to a chronometer. It influences the action of the other organs, and controls, to a certain extent, the whole living machine. The comparison may be carried further; for as the weakness or other imperfections of the main spring is indicated on the face of the timepiece, so also is the weakness or other disorder of the stomach betrayed by the face of the individual. The complexion is sallow or faded, the eyes are deficient in lustre and intelligence, and there is a worn, anxious expression in the whole countenance which tell as plainly as written words could do, that the great nourishment organ whose office it is to minister to the wants of the body, and to sustain and renew all its parts, is not performing its duty.

It requires renovating and regulating, and to accomplish this end Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be truly said to be the one thing needful. The broken main spring of a watch may be replaced by a new one, but the stomach can only be repaired and strengthened, and this is one of the objects of the famous vegetable restorative which for eighteen years has been waging a successful contest with dyspepsia in all climates. As a specific for indigestion it stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopoia have been exhausted, without, at best, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome and palatable, yet powerful stomachic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland, as well as upon the stomach and bowels, the Bitters act with singular distinctness, regulating and reinvigorating every secretive and assimilating organ on which bodily and mental health depend.

ASTONISHING REVELATIONS.

Two scientific publications are in the field against the hair dyes of which lead is the basis, The "New York Medical Gazette" and "The Journal of Chesistry" bitterly denounce them. Yet the hair may be safely dyed. Have you seen PROF. CHILTON'S TESTIMONY. Founded on a careful analysis, and certifying that Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye is not only a first-class article for changing the color of the hair, but

ABSOLUTELY SAFE.

CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATION, as a Dressing, acts like a charm on the Hair after Dyeing. TRY IT. ja13dawlm

A HUMBUG.

How often we hear this expression from persons reading advertisements of Patent Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they may be right.

It is over 22 years since I introduced DR. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT, to the public. I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and storekeepers through a small section of the country, many taking it with great reluctance; but I told them to let any one have it, and if it did not do all I stated on my pamphlet, no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were sent on trial by persons present. I was, by many, thought crazy, and that would be the last they would see of me.

But I knew my medicine was no humbug. In about two months I began to receive orders for more Liniment, some calling it my valuable Liniment, who had refused to sign a receipt when I left it at their store. Now my sales are millions of bottles yearly, and all for cash.

I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Vomiting, Spasms, and Sea-sickness, as an internal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally—see oath accompanying each bottle—and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Mumps, Frosted Feet, Bruises, Sprains, Old Sores, Swellings, Sore Throats, &c., &c.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS.

Sudden severe pains of the side and back, stitches, spasms, etc. These affections are most troublesome to persons past middle age. Will even come on in bed; are very painful and often dangerous. In damp weather they are more frequent than in dry. These plasters give relief at once, and need to be always in the drawer, handy.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

What the Doctors Say:

AMOS WOOLLEY, M. D., of Kosciusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM extensively, in my practice, and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County, Ohio, says: "ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM not only sells rapidly but gives perfect satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medicinal properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and unhesitatingly recommend it. As an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

NATHANIEL HARRIS, M. D., of Middlebury, Vermont, says: I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

Physicians do not recommend a medicine which has no merits, what they say about

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM,

Can be taken as a fact. Let all afflicted test it at once. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. ja13dawlm

The Most Successful Life Insurance Company in the World.

All Surplus Premiums of Profits returned to the Policy-holders, instead of being partially or wholly appropriate to the use of the Stockholders, as is the usage with all "Mixed" and "Proprietary" Companies.

Dividends made Annually, from the start, and not postponed until the third, fourth or fifth year as in most other Companies.

Profits apportioned to the assured on the "Contribution plan," which is conceded to be the only equitable mode of division; and not by the mode adopted by many companies, which is grossly UNJUST to a large proportion of the Policy-holders.

Assets in Cash, $15,000,000

(None of this is in the Notes-of-hand of Policy-holders, as in many other Companies.)

Its Annual Income, $8,000,000

(No portion of this is composed of Promissory-Notes, as in all Note-Companies.)

The Cash Income is constantly increasing with tremendous rapidity, and as a necessary consequence, swelling the enormous cash accumulation which forms the security to Policy-holders.

All Premiums and all Losses Paid in Cash.

No Promissory-Notes to be deducted from the face of the Policy when it matures, as in all Note-Companies.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopoia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE.—CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

CITY COUNCIL, Jan. 13 — In the Board of Aldermen, Thursday evening, —Jeremiah Locke and Edwin Underhill, formerly Police officers under Marshal Dresser, asked that the bill of Mr. Goodall, $106, for defending them in suits brought by Flora Kelley and one Higley, for false imprisonment, might be paid by the city. Referred to Com. on Claims. The petitioners state that they arrested the parties named for forfeiture; and Marshal Dresser discharged them without examination; on which, the said Kelley and Higley brought suits for false imprisonment—which were decided in favor of the officers; and as the expense was incurred while in discharge of their duties, they ask that the City will bear it.

The Board then went into Convention with the Council, to elect City Officers, as stated below:

In Convention, the first ballot was for City Treasurer. Whole number of votes cast, 19; H. A. Yeaton had 1, T. S. Gammon 5, Chas. A. Shannon 13,—and Mr. Shannon was elected.

For City Messenger. Whole number of votes cast, 19; for Aug. Walden 1, Wm. Bodge, Jr. 5, Geo. N. Jones 13, and Mr. Jones was elected.

Lot Layer. Votes cast, 15; for Alfred M. Hoyt, 13: elected.

Sealer Weights and Measures. Votes cast, 17; for John F. Shillaber, 13: elected.

Harbor Master. Votes cast, 17; for John Clark, 12: elected.

Pound Keeper. Votes cast, 17; for Robt. Shillaber, 12: elected.

Keeper of Powder Magazine. Votes cast, 16; for Chas. Robinson, 10: elected.

Measurers of Wood. Votes cast, 14; for Daniel H. Spinney 11, Jeremiah D. Goodrich 10, James H. Thompson 11, Charles W. Bailey 11, Joseph D. Pillow 11, Frederick W. Rogers 11, Charles E. T. Yeaton 11, Joseph Spinney 11: elected Surveyors of Lumber. Votes cast, 15; for Daniel Bailey 12, B. M. Parker 12, C. W. Bailey 12, Moses Yeaton 12, J. D. Goodrich 12, Jos. D. Pillow 11, James Moses 12: elected.

Port Wardens. Votes cast, 16; for John Clark 11, Wm. R. Martin 14, G. T. Vaughan 14: elected.

Fence Viewers. Votes cast, 17; for J. D. Butler 12, Geo. E. Hodgdon 11, Calvin Page 12: elected.

Inspectors of Flour. Votes cast, 17; for Chas. Robinson 12, John Brooks 10: elected.

On returning to their own rooms, the Aldermen, on motion of Ald. Pendexter, resolved, the Com. Council concurring, that so much of the Mayor's Address as alludes to the City Farm, be referred to the Joint Com. on City Lands and Buildings with the Mayor added,—for consideration and report.

Ballotted for Collector of Taxes; Thomas S. Gammon, had 2, C. A. Shannon 6, and was elected for the 6th year.

Frank B. Johnson was unanimously re-elected City Marshal, receiving all the 8 votes.

For Asst. Marshals, Chas. W. Shannon had 2, Thomas Entwistle 6, and John T. Mortimer 8—electing Entwistle and Mortimer.

MALT EXTRACT—

Is already recommended by our leading physicians, as a tonic and a nutrient (ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO LADIES) with the most satisfactory results. This beverage is extensively used where all spirituous liquors and ales are discarded, as it differs from all other malt preparation, being ALMOST FREE FROM ALCOHOL, and therefore neither intoxicating nor irritating: as it contains MORE NUTRIMENT THAN PORTER, ALE, OR THE STRONGEST BEER. ja3

THE STRICKEN CREW.

AN ADVENTURE THAT CAN BE VOUCHED FOR.

Such being the state of affairs, I proceeded to see how matters stood, in the way of provisions, and on inquiry found that there were thirty pounds of biscuit and two gallons of water in the gig, beyond what we had brought with us by special design for the sufferers of the Copenhagen. Men-of-war boats, when at sea, always carry a small supply of provisions, a bottle of lime juice, and a little rum; and as none of us had had our dinners, there now seemed a chance of our having but a very poor one.

"What do you think of this state of affairs?" I asked of Trimble.

"My opinion," he answered, "is, that this fog may last for the next twenty-four hours, and during that time, we may lose our ship; so I would husband such resources as are left us. But what on earth are we to do with these unfortunates?" he inquired, with a pitying glance at the famished crew of the Copenhagen.

"Upon my word, I don't know. I suppose we must share our biscuit with them."

"Of course, we must," replied Trimble. "Luckily, I have my cigar case. I hope, old fellow, you haven't forgotten yours?"

"Not likely," I said. "You know I never stir a step without it."

I now called Davis, and directed him to put a trusty hand in the gig and drop her astern, at the same time telling him that the Melpomenes must wait 'till evening for our first meal.

"Well, sur, I thinked there wor sum'at wrong when I left the frigate. I wor on the cons and I see'd the ber-omiter a goin' up werry fast; so I knowed some natral feenominhon wor a goin' to take place."

"Why did you not mention that before, Davis?" I demanded.

"Because, sur, I thought you 'nd larf at me."

"Well, it's a pity you did not; it might have saved us from being in this fix. But, Davis, we must take good care of what food we have left; the frigate has evidently parted from us, though I have no doubt, but that she will be in sight when the weather clears."

As I spoke, a gun boomed through the fog, but it was difficult to make out its direction. The bark had on board of her an old Danish brass six-pounder, but not a thimbleful of powder; so here, again, I was prevented from exchanging communications with the frigate.

Under these circumstances, feeling no anxiety, and only that, should the worst come, we might experience the inconvenience of empty stomachs for a few hours, I determined to lay the bark to, as I felt certain that our captain would do the same with the frigate, and that we should find her at no great distance when the fog lifted.

By this time, it being four o'clock in the afternoon, I ordered my boat's crew to haul up the gig, and served out a biscuit and a half, with a little rum and water to each man, Trimble and myself taking part with them in their frugal repast.

We were not troubled by the merchant seamen, as whatever medicine or stimulant the doctor had given them had put them into a sound sleep long before our dinner hour, from which they did not awake till late in the evening.

But, when they did, they were in the most ravenous state, loudly demanding food.

What was I to do? Give them our remaining biscuit? There was only a small quantity, and what would it be amongst thirty men — the number of the bark's crew? Only a morsel to each.

As they had eaten a hearty meal so recently, I thought they might go without anything more till we got the promised supply from the frigate; so I told them, through their captain, who spoke French, that I had nothing to give them.

They would not believe my statement. Food we had—they knew it—and we must share it with them. They were hungry; I had only seven men; I must supply them. Food they would have.

I again told them, more firmly, that I had nothing for them. They reiterated their disbelief, and said they would search my boat.

I now directed the boat's crew, in a low tone, to be on the alert, and that they must, at all risks, prevent their provisions from being taken from them. I added that we might be in the fog for perhaps another twenty-four hours, and so separated from the frigate.

Whether the Danish sailors understood me or not, I cannot say; I have thought since that they did; but, at any rate, it was evident that they believed that there was a good stock of provisions in the boat; indeed, their captain himself hinted that he knew as much.

To pacify them, I promised if they should wait until morning they should see what we had got, and that then we would share it with them.

I said this, being satisfied that there would be no need to keep our few biscuits from them in the morning, as in all likelihood we should be along-side the frigate.

But it was all to no purpose. Have the provisions, they declared, they would; and at once.

So I had to say, determinedly, no!

There were thirty of them to eight of us but we were in good health, while they appeared feeble and scurvy-stricken.

Still the spirit, which the doctor had distributed to them, had imbued them with a certain amount of artificial strength, along with a good deal of "Dutch courage." I saw there was a likelihood of trouble, and it would be necessary to act promptly and energetically, even though violence might be called for.

At this crisis a thought struck me. Watching for the most prominent of the agitators, my eye fell on one who, to this day, I believe to have been an Englishman. Stepping quickly up to him, I seized him by the collar, and the next moment he was a prisoner in charge of my boat's crew.

I then told the others, that I would instantly hang their shipmate to the yard arm, if they made any movement toward searching our boat.

Of course this was only a threat; and I scarce knew how it might result. Fortunately it had an effect that in the end perhaps proved the salvation both of myself and boat's crew.

The Danes showed dissatisfaction at their comrade being arrested—almost threatening a rescue; but, after clamoring awhile, they went forward, and below, into the fore-peak of the bark. But I knew it was only to deliberate, and, perhaps, return more determinate than ever. Hunger was urging them to desperation.

And the dread of what might ensue now urged me also to adopt a desperate course. An idea had suggested itself on seeing them go below; and hastily, but silently, hurrying forward, with Davis by my side, we clapped on the forecastle hatch, and at once secured it with the combing bar. We had them now safe as in a trap.

We could hear their threats and loud clamor, but heeded neither one nor the other.

I now divided my men into two watches, Trimble taking command of one, myself the other; Davis being placed in charge of the provisions, as I knew him to be a trustworthy man.

Concluded to-morrow.

A HAND THRESHING MACHINE.—One of the most serviceable machines, and one that attracted more attention than any other, at the N. H. State Fair, was the Hand Tresher, entered by S. C. Forsaith, Manchester. Its action gave great satisfaction, and led to thousands of questions and replies. It is a simple implement, yet wonderful in its working. It embraces an entirely new application of power in mechanics, and is so constructed as to give a greater speed with a smaller expenditure of power than any other application we have ever seen. This power alone can be applied to sawing and boring wood, and many other uses as well as threshing, and is now attracting the attention of some of the leading experts and scientific men of the country in connection with its diversified applications. It is claimed for the Thresher that a single hand power working, it is equivalent to one horse power on other machines; that it will thresh grass-seed, barley, wheat, rye, oats, and all kinds of grain, clean, without injury to the straw, and thresh from fifty to a hundred bushels per day, according to the condition of the grain. It is simple and durable, and must fill a place in useful implements long vacant and much needed.

DR. LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILL, OR

LA MEDICINE CURATIVE.

Mild, Certain, Safe, Efficient. It is far the best Cathartic ever discovered, and at once relieves and invigorates all the vital functions, without causing injury to any of them. The most complete success has long attended its use in many localities where it is offered to the general public with the conviction that it can never fail to accomplish all that is claimed for it. It produces little or no pain; leaves the organs free from irritation, and never overtaxes or excites the nervous system. In all diseases of the skin, blood, stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys,—of children, and in many difficulties peculiar to women, it brings prompt relief and certain cure. The best physicians recommend and prescribe it; and no person who once uses them, will voluntarily return to the use of any other cathartic.

LORILLARD'S "EUREKA"

SMOKING TOBACCO is an excellent article of granulated Virginia; where once introduced it is invariably admired. It is put up in handsome muslin bags, in which orders for Meerschaum Pipes are daily packed.

LORILLARD'S YACHT CLUB

SMOKING TOBACCO is made of the Choicest leaves grown in Virginia, and its effects, as the Nicotine has been extracted; it leaves no disagreeable taste after smoking; it is very mild, light in color and in weight, hence one pound will last as long as 3 of ordinary tobacco. In this brand we also pack orders every day for first quality Meerschaum Pipes. Try it and convince yourself it is all it claims to be, THE FINEST OF ALL.

LORILLARD'S CENTURY CHEWING TOBACCO.—This brand of Fine Cut chewing tobacco has no equal or superior in the market. It is without doubt the best chewing tobacco in the country.

LORILLARD'S SNUFFS

HAVE BEEN IN GENERAL USE in the United States over 110 years, and still acknowledged "the best" wherever used.

If your storekeeper does not have these articles for sale, ask him to get them; they are sold by respectable jobbers and dealers everywhere.

The Chronicle.

THE FARMERS' CONVENTION AT MANCHESTER.—Can wheat be grown in New Hampshire? Dr. Crosby said he desired to make a few statements in regard to the culture of wheat. He had ascertained, from some inquiries that he had personally made, that more wheat was probably grown in his town (Hanover) than in any other town in the State. Going out on one road in his town, and calling indiscriminately upon half a dozen farmers, he had ascertained some facts which he would state to the Convention.

His attention was called to the matter by a communication he had received from John L. Bridgman, of Hanover, who farmed one of their own farms, in which he stated that from four bushels' sowing on 17 rods less than two acres, he had harvested 96 bushels of as handsome wheat as any one could wish to see, which was 51 bushels to the acre. He prepared his seed by soaking it in strong brine three or four hours, then put in a quart of molasses to the bushel, stirred it well in, and then rolled it in soot until it was dry enough to sow. In this way, he had not failed to raise a good crop in fifteen years.

On inquiring of several of the farmers in his town, he (Dr. C.) had obtained the following reports: Asa Wright, 11 crops, from 1858 to 1869, 25 acres for the 11 crops, which gave 569 bushels, an average of 22 3-4 bushels. Elijah Jenny, from three bushels sown this year, harvested 176 bushels. Town Farm, 5 crops, 20 acres, 5776 bushels, an average 28 3-4 bushels. In 1860, the great wheat year, they got from six acres, 235 bushels, an average of 38 2-3 bushels. Philander Durkee, in 1860, from 1 7-8 acres, harvested 84 bushels, an average of 42 1-2 bushels. From 5 crops, 14 acres, he got 364 bushels, averaging 56 bushels. All this was spring wheat, with ordinary farm culture.

Dr. Smalley, of Lebanon, said he had tried wheat on a farm that he owned on the Connecticut river, and had succeeded well. He believed New Hampshire could whip the West in the average number of bushels to the acre, and he thought the farmers of this State should raise their own bread, instead of sending to the West for it, which did not help the farmers of the West so much as it did the railroads. In reply to a question, Dr. S. said he had plenty of witch-grass, and did not want to get rid of it. It made the best hay that was raised, and mulched the ground and saved it from drought.

Mr. Vaughan, of Laconia, thought wheat was one of the best crops for the farmers to raise, but he conceived that in general a mistake was made in not planting winter wheat early enough. The farmer waited until he got off his corn crop before he put in his wheat, and then it was too late to make a sure thing of it. He thought they could afford to let the ground lie fallow one season, in order to get a good crop of winter wheat, which was better than spring wheat. Mr. V. said the Early Rose was his favorite potato. He had seen three bushels raised from a single pound, and he thought no better potato was ever put on a table.

Mr. Bartlett, of Warner, said he had grown wheat for fifteen years, and he brought down a dozen specimens, to let the farmers know that they could grow winter wheat. He had found it profitable, and had only failed two years out of thirteen.

Mr. Clough said he had tried wheat on his farm, but with such poor success that he had given it up. If any gentleman had raised it successfully in the valley of the Merrimack, recently, he would like to have the information. He thought of trying it again next spring, to see if he could not succeed better.

FARMING, as well as every business, must be attended to or it will not pay. This is more so now than formerly. For now machinery does the work of hand labor; and science is adding success which the common farmer cannot reach—hence it is found in the rate of profits and general success.—There must be intelligence. The advancement of farming has made this so. "Skining" land is getting to be among the things that were.

This, however, is less the case on the prairies than in the east. An old fashioned farmer stands but a poor chance here. He is constantly selling out to better his condition, which is not done by buying another farm. He is usually glad to get rid of his land and not get another "incumbrance." We must, then, as the country improves, improve with it, and that by informing ourselves, both by reading, and conversation with those who know.

—High Feeding is the secret of the model farmer's success; his men are helped twice, his cows are induced to take another lock, his horses find full mangers, his hogs full troughs, he feeds his crops with good manures, and his mind and house are well filled with good reading.

—As fathers love their daughters better than sons, and mothers their sons better than daughters, so sisters feel towards brothers a more constant sentiment of attachment than towards each other.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms and dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

SATURDAY, JAN. 15, 1870.

Senator Sumner and Trumbull had a Choctaw growl in the Senate on Thursday.

Senator Chandler is an orphan.—Post. Dumas says Eve had red hair.

The War Department has prepared a bill for the reduction of the army.

There is trouble about organizing the Georgia legislature.

The telegraph operators' strike has ended in New England—the strikers going back to work.

It is probable that martial law will be proclaimed in Georgia, to unseat Gov. Bullock as an obstacle to reconstruction.

Rev. Horace Cook of New York is missing again.

Intense excitement continues in Paris. Napoleon has 100,000 troops to quell disturbances.

☞ Rev. Lucius R. Paige, D. D., of Cambridge, Mass., has just completed the 6th volume of his Commentary on the New Testament. This volume extends from Galatians to Jude; and with Rev. Dr. Whittemore's Notes on the Revelation, completes a joint undertaking of two brothers-in-law, which was commenced many years ago; Mr. Paige agreeing to comment on all the other books, if Mr. Whittemore would write on the Revelation. Both were men largely engaged in the common affairs of busy life;—but both were ardent believers and close students of the Scriptures. Both were industrious workers; each lived to complete his special task; and the result is a Commentary, of which for candor, sound learning, and good sense, no denomination needs to be alarmed.—Both of the authors were men who understood the value of money: they knew very well that in a pecuniary sense their labor on the Commentary would bring them no gains; but they went into the work for the love of it, and doubtless enjoyed their employment.

—The meeting house built at Waldoboro', Me., more then a hundred years ago, by the Germans, is still standing, with its twenty windows of four by nine glass, its square unpainted shutters, its pulpit, sounding board, and communion table of pine. The last pastor was Rev. John William Starman, a native of Helmstadt, Germany, who preached in this ancient house more than fifty years, in German and English, and who died in 1854 ninety-one years of age. Old Conrad Heyer acted as chorister in the old house for eighty years, and when a hundred years old, would sing the highest notes with scarcely any of the tremulousness of age. Nothing now remains of those ancient people who worshipped there. The old church is kept in repair by the noble liberality of Col. George Smouse.

HALF A MILLION DEATHS FROM FAMINE.—The Bombay (India) Gazette, a well-informed journal, estimates the deaths from want of food in all Rajpootana at not fewer than half a million; and besides, pestilence has, as usual, followed famine. For the last two months the people have been cut down by a most persistent fever and murrain, or swelling of the limbs and face, caused by living on grass seed. The people have lost heart, and the mortality is saddening. In some villages, from 10 to 12 per cent of the inhabitants died during the month of October alone.

—In Worcester, at lawsuit, a plump female witness was asked by the counsel at what time the cars passed her house on a certain day. She replied that she began knitting at 3 o'clock, and had knit twice round. Some one remarked that the time would depend on the size of the stocking. The lady readily replied that the stocking was for herself, and the court could exercise its own judgment and guess as to the size and time required.

—The vault in the store of Parker, Booth & Co., in Vergennes, Vt., was blown open with powder on Monday night, and $300 in money stolen. The rogues also carried off some valuable silks and other dry goods. A man, supposed to have been concerned in the robbery, was arrested in the cars the next day.

—The Halifax Chronicle favors annexation and argues: "The market of the United States is necessary to our lives. The market of Great Britain is not. Dreams will not clothe our children. The warmth of the shade of a brave flag will not compensate for a barefoot winter."

—Pierre Bonaparte, who has killed his man at Paris, is the son of Lucien Bonaparte, younger brother of the first Napoleon, and is an irascible gentleman of fifty-four.

—A new barn, belonging to Capt. Rufus Norton, in Cape Neddick, was blown down on Sunday night, 2d inst. The building was totally demolished. No stock nor hay in it.

—Look out for people who go about professing to be better than all the rest of mankind. If your purse is not in particular danger, your character may be.

THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION met at Exeter on Thursday. Charles G. Conner, a member of the State Central Committee, called the Convention to order. The Convention was permanently organized as follows: —President, Wm. R. Martin of Portsmouth. Vice Presidents, Charles G. Connor, Exeter; Alfred J. Leavitt, Hampton; John Mills, Hampstead; Henry Crowell, Londonderry. Secretaries, W. H. Brickett, Hampstead; J. Horace Kent, Londonderry. The following Committee on credentials were appointed—Hon. Joseph B. Adams of Portsmouth, B. F. Prescott of Epping, Nathaniel Giddings, Exeter.

On motion of Greenleaf C. Bartlett of Epping, Geo. G. Lougee of Rye was unanimously re-nominated as candidate for County Treasurer.

The Committee on credentials made their report, and Messrs. Moses Dow of Plaistow, L. Thomas Sanborn of Rye and Benning S. Scribner of Fremont were appointed to assist in counting votes.

The Convention balloted for a candidate for Register of Deeds, with the following result.

Whole number of votes cast,	108
Necessary for a choice	55
Folsom Dow of Epping had	60
Wm. H. Belnap of Exeter, present incumbent had	48 and Mr. Dow was nominated.

The Convention then balloted for a candidate for County Commissioner.

Whole number of votes	108
Necessary for a choice	55
John Wm. Fogg Hobbs of No. Hampton had	77
Frank B. Pollard of Plaistow had	24
Henry L. Garrett of Portsmouth had	7

and Mr. Hobbs was declared the nominee.

After speeches from several of the delegates the Convention dissolved.

☞ The Democratic County Convention, held at Exeter on Thursday, nominated for Treasurer, N. H. Leavitt, Jr., of Newmarket; Obadiah Dustin, of Salem, for Commissioner; and Wm. H. Belknap of Exeter for Register of Deeds. The latter has been Register of Deeds for 20 years, is a Republican, but was defeated for re-election in the Republican Convention the same day.

Hollis has a library of one thousand three hundred and twenty-eight volumes, incorporated in 1799. The sum of $100 has been raised by a levee recently to increase it.

Rev. O. H. Jasper has been nominated for Councillor in the fifth district. His hosts of friends will be pleased to learn that his Society at Lebanon have enlarged, improved and beautified their house of worship.

On the 4th., Messrs. Chas. F. Ham and Wm. H. Hill, of Dover, sailed down the river to Dover Point in J. Rand's Packet, "Z. S. Wallingford," and pedestrinated the distance home, six miles, in one hour and forty-two minutes—a feat not often to be accomplished at this season of the year.—Capt. Sterling Trefethen took his schooner to Portsmouth Jan. 6th.

Of 29 deaths in Durham in the year 1869, 15 were of persons over 79 years of age, and 9 of persons over 80 years.

An extensive religious revival is now in progress in Colebrook. Two weeks ago Mr. Durant of Boston, formerly a lawyer of large practice and wide reputation, but now one of the most successful revivalists in New England, arrived in the place. He immediately set about "his Master's business."

The First Congregational Church in Keene, after trying one sermon a Sabbath, for six weeks, have returned to their former custom of two sermons. The Sabbath sceool session was not appreciated by some in the congregation, and the arrangement was not entirely satisfactory to those living at a distance. If they had tried it six years, it might be otherwise.

The Congregational church in Strafham received seven new members. They have adopted the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book.

Rain to the amount of fifty-one inches and fifty-five hundredths has fallen at the Weirs during 1869, about five inches more than fell during the same time in Lake Village.

The Congregational church in Wilton used for the first time last Sabbath an elegant Communion Service presented by Mr. P. H. Putnam, a citizen of the town.

One end of the Boston & Maine Freight house at Great Falls was knocked out by a freight car, the brake chain getting unhooked, so that the brakeman could not hold the train, and the car went through the depot and out the back end, alarming people in that vicinity.

An Irishman, a stranger in Great Falls, undertook to give his wife a pounding on the streets, when one of the citizens took the woman's part and gave the fellow a good whipping.

Recently in Sandown, Mr. Ebenezer Hoyt, aged nearly 90 years, was driving with his son's wife, when approaching a road into which a woman was driving another horse, the old gentleman attempted to run by, because he was not first successful in "heading off" the woman. In doing this, he overturned his wagon, "spilled" himself and lady, and lost his team. No bones were broken, but the son of this veteran horse and dealer had a strong mind to horsewhip the old man for not remembering that he was not as young as he once was.

A large number of the good people of Kensington, parishioners and others, met at the house of Rev. E. D. Eldridge, January 3d. Besides a variety of rich gifts, forty-two dollars were left in money.

Messrs. Wallace of Rochester have been manufacturing during the dull times 130 cases or 9000 pairs of shoes per week. They pay to their workmen $2,500 per week. Aside from this they have a large tannery in Rochester, also large tanneries and shoe manufactories in other places.

James Kennedy, a printer at the Advocate office in Claremont, was arrested for breaking into Ladd's appothecary store. His hands were cut and bleeding from breaking the glass of the window. He confessed, and is in jail for lack of bonds. Rum was at the bottom of the matter, as it is of half the crime and deviltry of the world.

Julia Petts, aged twenty-two, died at Keene from the effects of an abortion. While on her death-bed she was married to a man named Hiram Greeley. The abortion was procured by one Webster, from Gilsum. He, however, escaped, but the woman in whose house the girl died, and who has a sister in the State Prison for a similar crime, has been arrested. The affair created intense excitement in the town.

—There are eight New Hampshire girls at present connected with the State Normal School at Salem, Mass.

It seems to be very certain that the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company, which received its charter at the last session of the legislature, will be established upon a firm and satisfactory basis at an early day. To begin with the capital stock will be $100,000, and $80,000 has already been subscribed. It is the design of the leaders of the enterprise to have the stock taken in all sections of the State, so that the people of the State generally may feel interested in the welfare of the company.

The inmates of the Strafford County Farm had a Christmas Festival. Two trees in beautiful array supported at least three hundred presents, which were distributed to the delighted company, to whom it was a ray of sunshine upon their obscure and dreary way. The choir and a large company from Barrington were present.

Rev. James Holmes has been engaged as stated supply at Bennington.

FURS AT AUCTION.—A rare opportunity for the purchase of furs at a great sacrifice is presented by the auction sale of the entire stock of Messrs. Cook & Aldrich, Boston, on Wednesday next. See advertisement for particulars.

☞ Divine services at the Navy Yard Chapel, every Sunday morning at half-past 10. The church boat leaves Portsmouth landing at 10:15; returns at 11:45. The public are respectfully invited.

☞ Tickets for the coming masquerade may now be had at 45 Congress Street.

☞ For the next Mercantile Lyceum entertainment, Mr. Albee will give his Lecture on the Farm, — Tuesday evening, Jan. 18th.

☞ The New Hampshire Gazette for this week, is now ready for delivery at the Chronicle office. Price 5 cts. per copy—$2. per year. Contains all the Local and other reading from the Daily Chronicle.

FOUND AT LAST.—A remedy that not only relieves, but cures that enemy of mankind Consumption, as well as numerous satellites which revolve around it, in the shape of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Influenza, &c. The remedy we allude to is DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, prepared by Seth W. Fowle and Son, Boston.

SPECIAL NOTICES,

Fashionable, Comfortable, Durable. The Gaiters and Slippers made by T. E. MOSELEY & CO., 293 Washington street, Boston, (opposite Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s) for ladies, gentlemen or youth.

H l- admirably together as remedies for the affections of the Chest, Lungs and Throat, so common at this season. A few doses of the Pills at once alleviate the general febrile symptoms, and the Ointment faithfully rubbed over the seat of the complaint produces an immediate and powerful local effect: neutralizing and subduing the internal irritation and soon enabling the sufferer to "breathe freer and deeper." This treatment will cure a Cough that resists all other remedies. Sold by all Druggists.

The Living Machine.

Injure the main spring of a watch and every portion of the works becomes disordered. The human stomach is to the human system what that elastic piece of metal is to a chronometer. It influences the action of the other organs, and controls, to a certain extent, the whole living machine. The comparison may be carried further; for as the weakness or other imperfections of the main spring is indicated on the face of the timepiece, so also is the weakness or other disorder of the stomach betrayed by the face of the individual. The complexion is sallow or healed, the eyes are deficient in lustre and intelligence, and there is a worn, anxious expression in the whole countenance which tells as plainly as written words could do, that the great nourishment organ whose office it is to minister to the wants of the body, and to sustain and renew all its parts, is not performing its duty.

It requires renovating and regulating, and to accomplish this end Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be truly said to be the one thing needful. The broken main spring of a watch may be replaced by a new one, but the stomach can only be repaired and strengthened, and this is one of the objects of the famous vegetable restorative which for eighteen years has been waging a successful contest with dyspepsia in all climates. As a specific for indigestion it stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopœia have been exhausted, without, at best, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome and palatable, yet powerful stomachic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland, as well as upon the stomach and bowels, the Bitters act with singular distinctness, regulating and reinvigorating every secretive and assimilative organ on which bodily and mental health depend.

ASTONISHING REVELATIONS.

Two scientific publications are in the field against the hair dyes of which lead is the basis, The "New York Medical Gazette" and "The Journal of Chemistry" bitterly denounce them. Yet the hair may be safely dyed. Have you seen

A HUMBUG.

How often we hear this expression from persons reading advertisements of Patent Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they may be right.

It is over 22 years since I introduced DR. TOBIAS'S VENETIAN LINIMENT, to the public. I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and storekeepers through a small section of the country, many taking it with great reluctance; but told them to try it, if no one have it, and if it did not do all I stated on my pamphlet, no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were taken on trial by persons present. I was, by many, thought crazy, and that would be the last they would see of me.

But I knew my medicine was no humbug. In about two months I began to receive orders for more Liniment, some calling it my valuable Liniment, who had refused to sign a receipt when I left it at their store. Now my sales are millions of bottles yearly, and all for cash.

I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Vomiting, Spasms, and Sea-sickness, as an internal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally—see oath accompanying each bottle—and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Mumps, Frosted Feet, Bruises, Sprains, Old Sores, Swellings, Sore Throats, &c., &c.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS.

Sudden severe pains of the side and back, stitches, spasms, etc. These affections are most troublesome to persons past middle age. Will even come on in bed; are very painful and often dangerous. In damp weather they are more frequent than in dry. These plasters give relief at once, and need to be always in the drawer, handy.

PAIN OF THE SIDE CURED.

Allentown, Penn., April 4, 1865.

Messrs. T. Allcock & Co.

Dear Sirs: My daughter used one of your Porous Plasters. She had a very bad pain in her side, and it cured her in one week. Yours truly, JOHN V. N. HUNTER.

25,000 SOLD BY ONE DEALER.

Messrs. J. Balch & Son, of Providence, R. I., write, Nov. 1868: "We have sold the Porous Plasters for twenty years, and, at retail and jobbing, must have sold twenty-five thousand altogether. They are well liked. ja13dawlm

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

What the Doctors Say:

AMOS WOOLLEY, M. D., of Koscilusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM extensively, in my practice, and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County, Ohio, says: "ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM not only sells rapidly but gives perfect satisfaction in every instance in which it has been used. As a physician in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medicinal properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success. As an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

NATHANIEL HARRIS, M. D., of Middlebury, Vermont, says: I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

Physicians do not recommend a medicine which has no merits, what they say about

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM,

Can be taken as a fact. Let all afflicted test it at once. Sold by all Medicine Dealers. ja13dawlm

THE EQUITABLE

LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY

OF THE UNITED STATES,

Office No. 92 Broadway, New York.

The Most Successful Life Insurance Company in the World.

All Surplus Premiums of Profits returned to the Policy-holders, instead of being partially or wholly appropriate to the use of the Stockholders, as is the usage with all "Mixed" and "Proprietary" Companies.

Dividends made Annually, from the start, and not postponed until the third, fourth or fifth year as in most other Companies.

Profits apportioned to the assured on the "Contribution plan," which is conceded to be the only equitable mode of division; and not by the mode adopted by many companies, which is grossly UNJUST to a large proportion of the Policy-holders.

Assets in Cash, $15,000,000

(None of this is in the Notes-of-hand of Policy-holders, as in many other Companies.)

Its Annual Income, $8,000,000

(No portion of this is composed of Promissory-Notes, as in all Note-Companies.)

The Cash Income is constantly increasing with tremendous rapidity, and as a necessary consequence, swelling the enormous cash accumulation which forms the security to Policy-holders.

All Premiums and all Losses Paid in Cash.

No Promissory-Notes to be deducted from the face of the Policy when it matures, as in all Note-Companies.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

is the most important medicinal novelty that modern chemistry has produced. It contains two botanical extracts, perfectly harmless in themselves, but embodying all the remedial properties of mercury, and destined in this pleasant form to supersede and banish from general use, the nauseous pils and portions of which that dangerous excitant is the main ingredient. More than One thousand experiments were made by the inventor of the peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the pleasant taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.—The Trustees o ex-Mayor Jones' donation have accepted the trust, and are sanguine in their expectations that the sum required to secure the Library can be raised. They will immediately form their plans, and probably solicit contributions from our citizens and the sons abroad. To accomplish the result needed, it will be necessary to raise five thousand dollars in five years. There certainly can be no doubt that this sum can be raised in a much shorter time. Somebody ought to start the enterprise by giving a good building, or the site for one; —and, speaking of this, it is surprising how little, in fact almost nothing, has been done by public gifts to the city or any such object as this, for many a day—hardly since the first settlement of the old place. Mrs. Cutts, with her Richards Avenue donation, has set a good example, which we hope will be emulated by some of the others who have got money enough to make them miserable, when they don't know what else to do with it, or can't keep it any longer, if not sooner or better than this. Mr. Jones is only an adopted son of Portsmouth, and not a lettered man; but in his gifts to the High School and Public Library, he has done more for the public than most of our rich natives for a century or so.

☞ In looking over the proceedings of the New Hampshire Temperance Convention, we notice the name of Col. Pierce of Hillsboro', as the only member of the Democratic party known to us. It is possible that he may vote the New Party Ticket; but it is not probable that a dozen others from the former party will vote with the latter.—The resolution, therefore, about our parties, is rather one sided. And the present appearance is, that the new party will not throw a very heavy vote, all told.

☞ The election of the new City Officers seems to give general satisfaction; as we hope the official course of the new appointees will do. The three new Fence Viewers are all on the wrong side of the fence politically, but as they have all joined the great matrimonial caravan lately, it is probable their new elevation will give of-fence to none. The Flour Inspectors are new officers here.

☞ An experiment was had on Friday at the Navy Yard (Seavey's Island) with the new percussion shell, invented by Commander W. W. Low of the U. S. N. Several officers of the Navy were present, and we learn that the experiment proved that the movement is a perfect success, and one that if adopted will inaugurate a new system in the Department of Ordnance.

☞ The new Gaslight to be placed on Water Street, at the foot of Court Street, is designed as much for a lighthouse as a street light; and will therefore be kept burning all night, to assist navigation—as boats and vessels entering the dock there, will come in safe by keeping this light and that higher up Court Street in range.

☞ The late Mrs. Cutts of this city bequeathed $1000 for music to St. John's Church—and the Rector, Rev. Mr. Clark, in his sermon last Sabbath, congratulated the Society on the good condition of their Church and Chapel, and urged the necessity of a new Organ—which it is probable will soon be procured.

☞ We believe in sugars, sweets, nice Candies, and the like—and Dr. Gilbert advertises this kind, this morning, with nuts and other Fruit, &c. The dried peaches are nice for sauce at this season. Beecher goes in strong for pure sweetmeats, in an article in the New York Ledger this week.

☞ The Winter is working off easy and comfortable, we think. But it is not gone yet, by a long shot. How soon people forget. We believe mercury did not go below zero at all last year until March 6th, and we had lots of sleighing after this date, though we had little this year up to this time.

☞ A full attendance is requested at a Meeting of the Mercantile Library Association, this (Saturday) evening, at eight o'clock.

☞ Mr. Small has got a small job,—a soft thing, to defeat Mr. Mellows for Senator in this District.

☞ The Town of York has 800 voters. It is eight miles in extent. The name was first Agamenticus, then the city of Gorges or Gorgiana, then York. The charter of this the first (earliest) city in America, is copied into the town records still preserved, notwithstanding the Indian devastations by which many valuable public documents were lost.

FROST'S TABLEAUX.—These exhibitions which were given in the Temple on Wednesday and Thursday evenings by the pupils and teachers of the Universalist Sabbath School under the supervision of Mr. C. G. Frost of Providence, attracted quite a large number of spectators, and gave many of them much pleasure. The various tableaux were particularly pleasing to the children present, on account of the splendor of the dresses and the brilliancy of the illumination.

—Two boys got on behind a buggy in Gloucester, and being unable to get off again on account of the speed of the horse, became frightened and screamed lustily. The driver, thinking some accident had befallen them, reined the horse up suddenly, breaking off both breeching hooks and bringing the carriage upon the horse, and he ran away, throwing out the occupants of the buggy and running upon a wharf, where the reins became entangled in the wheel just in season to check him from going overboard?

—Rivalry in trade is shown in the case of two sausage dealers in Paris, with shops adjoining, one of whom has painted on his glass window, over a pyramid of sausages, "At ten cents a pound; to pay more is to be robbed;" while the other puts his sausages into an obelisk, and paints above it, "At twelve cents a pound; to pay less is to be poisoned."

—Mrs. Colfax, wife of the Vice President, set a laudable example at the reception at her house, in Washington, on a new year's day, in presenting no intoxicating liquors to her guests.

—Chappequiddic has ceased to be an Island, the sea having thrown up a beach four feet high across Wasqua inlet. The inlet has been open nearly a hundred years.

—Astonishing fashions in spring hats and bonnets are promised. Perhaps the bonnet will be worn under the chin, and a bow-knot tied on the top of the head.

—The Boston Herald says Senator Sprague is watching for an opportunity to make a ten hour speech on the eight hour law and the finances.

A Mansfield (O.) woman has recovered $250 from a saloon-keeper for damage done her husband by selling liquor to him.

—Why should we look to medical men to put down the eccentricities of fashion? Because they can best administer clo'-reform.

—The "gentlemen" of Kilkenny county, Ireland, are engaged in a sort of civil war, and poison each other's hounds.

—The question of uniting the villages of Amesbury and Salisbury Mills (Mass.) is being seriously agitated.

—The planet Venus can now be distinctly seen with the naked eye at midday, when the sky is clear.

—Dumas says that "Eve had light hair, inclined to red, and was neither graceful nor beautiful."

H—O—F—F—'—S
MALT EXTRACT—
Is already recommended by our leading physicians, as a tonic and a nutrient (ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO LADIES) with the most satisfactory results. This beverage is extensively used where all spiritrous liquors and ales are discarded, as it differs from all other malt preparation, being ALMOST FREE FROM ALCOHOL, and therefore neither intoxicating nor irritating: as it contains MORE NUTRIMENT THAN PORTER, ALE, OR THE STRONGEST BEER. ja3

Morning Chronicle.

THE STRICKEN CREW.

AN ADVENTURE THAT CAN BE VOUCHED FOR.

Concluded from Yesterday.

Morning broke, with the fog still enveloping us, and I began to feel our position really perilous, particularly as Tremble reported that he had not heard a single gun from the frigate during the whole of his watch. The last one that had been heard was about half-past eight the evening before. Still judging from appearances, I had hope that the breeze would freshen, and clear the fog by noon.

Nor was I disappointed. About half-past eleven A. M. it lifted, and we could see the horizon all round us.

The horizon—but nothing more! No Melpomene!

Here we were on the wide ocean, in the same situation as the "Stricken Crew" we had come to rescue from distress and starvation.

And, if anything, we were in a worse position; for we knew not when those desperate men might be tempted to do.

Perhaps fire the ship!

A moment's reflection brought up before me the real peril of the situation.

It was truly appalling.

We had still left a few biscuits—about fifty in all.

The food we had given the unfortunate Danes had only increased their sufferings; and their cries coming up through the closed hatch were heart-rending. But what could we do for them? To have released would have been to seal our own destruction. Under the delusion that we were well provisioned, and half insane with their sufferings, they might have set upon, torn us, and, perhaps, done worse. Their captain, and two or threee others, were still on deck, a guard of the Melpomene's keeping watch upon their movements.

All day long we kept a lookout for the frigate, but she was nowhere to be seen; and as the sun went down our hearts sank along with it. We ourselves began to realize the pain of hunger in all its dread reality.

Another night passed; again the autumnal sun rose in its glorious splendor, ushering in to many a day of pleasure, but to us one of hunger and desolation.

The unfortunate crew of the bark had for some hours been silent, tired out; the poor wretches had, we supposed, fallen asleep.

My heart smote me as I thought of their starving condition.

But the safety of myself, and those entrusted to my care, should be thought of before anything else; besides, we had nothing to satisfy their hunger, and were helpless to assist them.

At this crisis the lookout man, who had been placed at the royal-masthead, sung out in a clear voice, that rang cheerily in our ears, the startling words:

"Sail, ho!"

Every one seemed silence-stricken at the cry, and I, seizing my telescope, rushed to the mast-head.

For a moment, my eyes were dazzled by the bright noon-day sun, but as I became accustomed to the glare, I could make out a ship's royals, on our lee-beam. My experience told me she was a man-of-war.

Hailing the deck, I directed Davis to trim sails, set studdin' sail, and keep the vessel three points free, at the same time sending the look-out on deck to assist in working the ship, and taking his place myself.

In about an hour, I could distinguish our "chase," to the first reefs of her topsails, and now, I was certain from the rake of her masts, and my knowledge of the movements of our fleet, that she was a frigate.

Just as I made this discovery, a cry ascended from below, and looking down, I saw my men endeavoring to prevent the bark's crew from coming on deck, through the cabin hatch abaft!

Not waiting to ask myself how they had thus reached the after part of the ship, I seized the main-royal back-stay, and in an instant was upon deck.

The struggle for a time was desperate, but the poor, starved remnants of humanity could not withstand the strength of the Melpomenes—which, if anything, was increased by their late abstinence—and, in a few minutes, we had the Danes secured, hand and foot, and once more stowed away.

I now sent Davis to the masthead, with orders to keep a sharp lookout on the strange ship. From this time, all was anxiety as to whether we had been observed by the frigate. How I longed for a gun, or some other means of communicating with her! Suddenly, a hail came from Davis, aloft:

"By the Lord, sur! there goes a gun!"

As he spoke, a dull booming came across the ocean waves, and we knew we were sighted.

Then another gun, and another, till by sound signal the frigate had spelt her name. She made out "Melpomene."

The scene that followed is beyond description. We, the officers, forgot our position, and so did the men. We only knew we were human beings, with brotherly feelings, and that salvation from a fearful death was near at hand. We laughed, we sang, and Trimble would have at once released our prisoners, thinking as they were now assured of safety, there was no need for keeping them any longer in confinement. But I believed it better—as they would have only a little while longer to suffer—that they should remain where we had made them fast, until the frigate's boat boarded us; and this plan was adopted.

How different were our feelings under the setting sun, to those we experienced at its rising!

We were once more on board the Melpomene.

We had been in real danger, and were quite conscious of it. We had been not only threatened with starvation, but had also risked a sanguinary collision with the already famished crew of the Danish vessel, who, as before stated, were half insane from their sufferings, and seemed to think that we, instead of coming to their rescue, were in some way or other the cause of their distress. At all events, they believed we had plenty of provisions, and could help them, had we wished to do so.

Most undoubtedly we had been in a position of real and almost hopeless peril, from which accident alone now rescued us; for it was sheer accident our once more crossing the track of the frigate. Had she steamed on to Bermuda, no other vessel might have appeared in time to deliver us from a fate too fearful to be contemplated.

Our joy at finding ourselves once more on the deck of the Melpomene may be imagined, but not described.

The Captain of the Copenhagen was our guest, and a little doctoring soon gave him strength enough to enable him to communicate the particulars of how he and his crew had got into their distressed situation. The bark had taken departure from Falmouth for Boston with a full cargo, and was in her eighty-seventh day when we boarded her. She had been detained by rough weather, with a succession of adverse gales, until her provisions had given out and the men got stricken with scurvy. In all probability, had the Melpomene not sighted the bark, all on board of her would have perished.

On asking the skipper, how his men had come up abaft from the fore-peak, he explained it by saying, that the cargo consisting partially of dry goods, a kind of "wing-passage" had been made for the supercargo, and through that they had found their way.

As the captain of the bark spoke a language with which many of us were acquainted, we had a good deal of conversation with him. Both he and his chief officer were intelligent gentlemen, as indeed are most of the officers of Danish and Swedish ships. Before leaving us, there was an interchange of national toast between old Denmark and old England.

After having provisioned the Copenhagen, we sent her on her way rejoicing; and a few months afterward, Trimble and myself received a handsome pair of epaulettes, and the men five sovereigns each, from the owners of the bark.

BRIGHTON CATTLE MARKET.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, JAN. 13.

[Reported for the Boston Journal.]

At market for the current week—Cattle 2231; Sheep and Lambs 10,756; Swine 350; number of Western Cattle 1105; Eastern Cattle 709; Northern Cattle and Working Oxen 425. Cattle left over —

Prime Beef Cattle—Extra $13 00 @ $13 50; first quality $12 25 @ $12 75; second quality $11 25 @ $12 00; third quality $10 25 @$11 00; poorest grade of coarse Oxen, Bulls, &c., $7 00 @ $9 50 ₱ cwt, (the total weight of hides, tallow and dressed beef.)

Brighton Hides 8 @ 8½c ₱ lb; Country Hides 8c ₱ lb.

Brighton Tallow 7 @ 7½c per lb; Country Tallow 6½ @ 7c ₱ lb.

Lamb Skins $1 @ $1 50 each; Sheep Skins $1 @ $1 50 each: Calf Skins 18@20c ₱lb.

The trade for this week has been very fair, but the prices have fallen off from ¼ @ ½c ₱ lb from those of last week. There was a very few nice Massachusetts Cattle in, and also some from the West. The ₱ lb, 30 per cent. shrink, was the highest price obtained that we have heard of. Most of the Maine Cattle were suitable for Beef, and most of them were sold to slaughter. The number from all sections was lower than has been in for several weeks past.

Store Cattle—Yearlings $15 @ $28; two year olds $18 @ $45; three year olds 45 @ $65 ₱ head. Many of the small Cattle that are in a fair condition are sold for Beef.

Milch Cows—Extra $85 @ $115; ordinary $50 @ $80; Store Cows $35 @ $55 ₱ head. Prices depend a great deal upon the fancy of the purchaser.

Working Oxen—There was a good supply in market. We quote sales at $175, $185, $190, $150, $110, $115, $205, $215, $220, $.250, $260 ₱ pair.

Sheep and Lambs—Most of the Sheep from the West were owned by butchers; one lot of 50, which were taken at a commission, cost from 6½ @ 7½c ₱ lb., The trade has not been quite so active as that of last week, but was very fair. We quote extra lots at $5 @ $8 ₱ head; ordinary lots $2 50 @ 4 50 ₱ head, or from 4 @ 8½c ₱ lb. Many of the lots were taken at a commission.

Swine—Store Pigs, wholesale 10¼ @ 12c ₱ lb; retail 12 @ 15c ₱ lb. Fat Hogs—None at market except dressed.

THE LORRAINE VEGETABLE CATHARTIC PILL.

OR DR. LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILL, OR LA MEDICINE CURATIVE.

Mild, Certain, Safe, Efficient. It is far the best Cathartic remedy yet discovered, and at once relieves and invigorates all the vital functions, without causing injury to any of them. The most complete success has long attended its use in many localities; and it is now offered to the general public with the conviction that it can never fail to accomplish all that is claimed for it. It produces little or no pain; leaves the organs free from irritation, and never overtaxes or excites the nervous system. In all diseases of the skin, blood, stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys,—of children, and in many difficulties peculiar to women, it brings prompt relief and certain cure. The best physicians and prominent clergymen, and no person who once uses this, will voluntarily return to the use of any other cathartic.

LORILLARD'S "EUREKA"

SMOKING TOBACCO is an excellent article of granulated Virginia; wherever introduced it is universally admired. It is put up in handsome muslin bags, in which orders for Meerschaum Pipes are daily packed.

LORILLARD'S YACHT CLUB

SMOKING TOBACCO is made of the Choicest leaf grown; it is anti-nervous in its effects, as the Nicotine has been extracted; it leaves no disagreeable taste after smoking; it is very mild, light in color and in weight, hence one pound will last as long as 3 of ordinary tobacco. In this brand we also pack orders every day for first quality Meerschaum Pipes. Try it, and convince yourself it is all it claims to be, THE FINEST OF ALL.

LORILLARD'S CENTURY

CHEWING TOBACCO.—This brand of Fine Cut chewing tobacco has no equal or superior anywhere. Without doubt the best chewing tobacco in the country.

LORILLARD'S SNUFFS

HAVE BEEN IN GENERAL USE in the United States for over 110 years, and still acknowledged "the best" wherever used.

If your storekeeper does not have these articles for sale, ask him to get them; they are sold by respectable jobbers almost everywhere.

A STORY OF SCIENCE.

BY ONE WHO KNOWS NOTHING ABOUT IT.

A philosopher sat in his easy chair,
Looking as grave as Milton;
He wore a solemn and mystic air,
As he Cava la balsam split on
A strip of glass, as a slide to prepare.

He took his microscope out of his case,
And settled the focus rightly;
The light thrown back from the mirror's face
Came glimmering upward brightly.
He put the slide with the mite in place,
And fixed on the cover tightly.

He turned the instrument up and down,
Till getting a proper sight, he Exclaimed, as he gazed with a puzzled frown,
"Good gracious!" and "highty-tighty!
The sight is enough to alarm the town—
A mite is a monster mighty!"

From t'other end of the tube, the mite
Regarded our scientific,
To its naked eye, as you'll guess, the sight
Of a man was most terrific;
But reversing the microscope made him quite
The opposite of magnific.

"One sees the truth through this tube so tall,
Said the mite, as it squinted through it:
"Man is not so wondrously big, after all,
If the mite-world only knew it!"

MORAL.

MEM.—Whether a thing is large or small,
Depends on the way you view it!

THE ROOLES OF PLAYIN ONTO A ORGAN INTO MEETIN.—By P. Benson Sr.—which the Sr. it stans for singger. The rools whitch are heroby given in what follows are for the benephit of enny buddy whitch plays into meetin with the quire, wether its onto a big organ or a cabanet organ or a parlor organ or a melodyan or a most enny thing.

These rools is as follows, viz: to wit, namely:

1. Git all the pay for playin you kan.
2. Part yure hare into the middle if yure a man.
3. If you aint a man dont part your hare a tall, but git sumbudy to do it for you.
4. Carry a very small cane. It neednt be so very small the long way of it, but the wide way of it, it must be verry narrow.
5. When you go into meetin hold up yure hed, and doant look round either way. It shows yure mind is not wanderin from the Subjeck.
6. After you get into meetin look all round to see who is thare. It shows you aint too proud to look at other peepol.
7. Tock out loud a little before meetin begins. If there is enny strangers thare they wont be so afrade.
8. If thares a good chance sware a little. It shows you aint a hippycrit.
9. Wen the preecher cums in and neels down in the poolpit pool out all the stoppers. Thats what the stoppers is for.
10. When a him is gave out to be sung, play over the whoal toon before singin, but be sure to play it so as they cant tell whether its that toon or some other toon. It will amoose the peepel to gess.
11. When you play the interloods, sumtimes pool all the stoppers out, and sumtimes pull them all in. The stoppers is made to pull out and in.
12. Play the interloods about twicet as long as the toon. The interloods is the best part of the mewsick and should be the longest.
13. Play from the interloods into the toon without lettin them kno when the toon begins. This will teech them to mind thare biznis.
14. Alwaze play the interlood faster or slower than the toon. This will keep it from bein the same time as the toon.
15. If the preacher give out 5 verces play 4. Too menny verces is teejus.
16. Doorin the sermon go out of the church & cum back in time for the next toon. This will show you doant mean to be hard on the preecher by havin too menny lissenin to him to wunst.

SALT IN COOKING VEGETABLES.—If one portion of a dish of vegetables be boiled in pure water, and the other in water to which a little salt has been added, a decided difference may be observed in the tenderness, flavor, and, if potatoes, mealiness of the two. Onions are probably more improved by being cooked in salt water, than any other vegetable. Much of their unpleasant smell is taken away, and a peculiar sweetness and improved aroma are decidedly apparent. Salt hinders the evaporation of the soluble and flavoring principles of vegetables.

PLASTER FOR SORE BACKS IN HORSES. The Queenslander says: "One who has tried for various means of cure," says that the yolk of an egg beat up with a spoonful of Spirits of Turpentine makes the best plaster he is acquainted with for the sore backs of horses. He covers the plaster with a soft, oiled cloth, and pours oil over all when flies are troublesome.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

MONDAY, JAN. 17, 1870.

Stray Splinters.

The Erie Railway strike is at an end, the strikers having all been paid off, and discharged. The machine shops are all deserted. Five hundred men are now out, and the locomotive engineers threaten to strike.

The amount subscribed to the Stanton relief fund in New York city is $50,000.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's salary has been raised to $20,000.

A suit for slander, instituted by Mrs. Mary Ann Rivers against her father, Henry G. Ricker of Livingston, N. Y., before Judge Hodgeboom at Hudson, terminated by the jury bringing in a verdict of $3500 damages for the plaintiff.

The Ecumenial Council doesn't suit the Pope.

A North Brookfield, Mass., man tied his horse's head and tail together, and drove it in a circle to cure it of balking. In one minute the animal's spirits were entirely broken, and so was its neck, from running against a post.

Ex-President Fillmore entered his seventieth year last Friday.

Virginia has lost 20,000 negroes since the war.

The whaling fleet from Boston, Provincetown, Salem, Beverly and Newburyport, whose cruising ground is in the Atlantic Ocean, have made a net loss to their owners the past year of $200,000.

A verdant youth at Charles City, Iowa, sent seventy-five cents to New York, recently, for a method of writing without pen or ink. He received the following inscription, in large type, on a card: "Write with a pencil."

McFarland's trial will not come off until March. His counsel have decided to enter a plea of insanity.

The British Government has seized some land near Stockwell, which belonged to the late Geo. Peabody. The seizure is made on the ground that Mr. Perbody was an alien and had never been naturalized as a subject of Great Britian, therefore he was unableto hold land in the Kingdom.

Richmond papers say that 20,000 workingmen left Virginia last year and went South, that many came home on a visit at New Year's, and nearly all acted as missionaries to induce] others to follow in the south vard movement.

The Minnesota legislature has ratified the 15th Constitutional Amendment.

Three children of Joseph Whyple of Passaic County, N. J., who left their homes New Year's Day on a nutting excursion, were found on Tuesday afternoon, dead, having become lost in the woods on Wynocke Mountain, about ten miles from home. It is thought that the children subsisted for several days on nuts they had gathered previous to being benighted; having lost their way, were overtaken by physical exhaustion and starvation. They were five, seven, and ten years of age.

There is a strong probability that the government estimates for the ensuing year will be much reduced.

The California Senate has adjourned without voting on the ratification of the constitutional amendment.

A Louisville gentleman, who house was broken into by buglars, shot and killed one and fatally wounded another, Thursday night.

The Secretary of the Navy has requested Admiral Farragut, as the representative officer of our navy, to take charge of the navy escort at Portland in honor of Mr. Peabody, and will furnish him a staff for the occasion of the general obsequies, commensurate with his rank and position.

The official canvass of the Iowa election returns puts Gov. Merrill's majority at the respectable figure of 39,986.

—The Savannah Republican says:—"Mr. Stanton was a bad man," and adds, "he was the life and soul of the Federal armies during the late war, and but for his abilities and unconquerable sternness of purpose, it would have closed years before it did, and with the South independent." Could higher praise be awarded?

Some of our coppery exchanges in New Hampshire speak of Mr. Stanton in a similar strain.

☞ Boys who have to split wood should know that it splits much more easily up from the roots than downward The stick should be turned upside down before striking it. So, too, it is better to split by slabs than to strike through the center of it.—Exchange.

Not so. Wood generally splits easier from the top than from the butt; and that while some kinds of wood split better by slabs,—other kinds split better through the heart.

—Winter's prominent feature — It snows.

Congress.—In the Senate on Friday a bill was introduced abolishing the franking privilege and establishing a letter-carrying system in cities of 5000 inhabitants.

The Virginia bill was debated and Mr. Edmunds' amendment requiring an oath to be taken by all officers of the State was adopted, 45 to 13. The Senate held an evening session and adjourned at 10.30 to Monday.

The House debated the Virginia bill reported by the committee, and finally adopted Mr. Bingham's substitute for the bill, admitting the State to representation unconditionally, by a vote of 98 to 95. The New Hampshire members voted nay.

The negative vote was wholly made up of republicans; the affirmative vote was composed of 41 republicans and 47 democrats. As soon as the substitute was carried and the vote on the main question came up, quite a number who went against it at first, changed sides, so that on its passage the bill had 143 yeas to 49 nays.

The State Temperance Convention at Concord had a fair attendance, reporting 133 delegates from 40 towns. Rev. D. C. Babcock presided. There was a warm discussion on the expediency of putting a separate ticket into the field, but the friends of the measure were in a majority of about two to one. Rev. Dr. Barrows was the principal advocate of separate action, and was himself nominated for Governor by acclamation.

Col. Henry D. Pierce, the only prohibition Democrat we know of in the State, was nominated for Railroad Commissioner, but declined, and moved that the State Committee be authorized to communicate with the Labor Reform Committee with regard to other nominations, provided they favor the views of the temperance party. A State Committee was reported and elected.

The opponents of separate action withdrew, and organized a separate convention, and adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That as the firm friends of stringent prohibitory legislation, we do not see the way clear to the nomination of a Governor the present year.

Rev. Elisha Adams, who labored hard to prevent a separate nomination in the regular Convention, was the chairman of the seceders' meeting, and F. S. Crawford, Secretary. The character of the seceders may be judged from the fact that the committee who reported this resolution consisted of J. M. Fletcher of Nashua, Rev. D. W. Faunce of Concord, G. E. Freeman of Milford, B. F. Sawyer, of Newport, and Rev. James Pike, of So. New Market—all men of high standing and life-long laborers in the temperance cause. Their judgment will and should have weight with the friends of the cause. The time has not come, if it ever does, for the movement.—Lebanon Free Press.

A Storm on a Mountain.—Prof. Huntington and Mr. A. F. Clough, who have taken up their residence on Mount Moosilauke, in New Hampshire, for the winter, for scientific purposes, report that the storm of the 5th inst. was very severe on the mountain. An exchange says:

"At ten A. M. Mr., Clough ventured out with the 'wind gauge' and found that the wind was blowing at the rate of 95 miles per hour. In the afternoon the wind increased and at three o'clock he went out with the 'gauge' again; he was instantly thrown down and was unable to stand up the instrument. The rain was pouring, but he managed to hold the gauge for five minutes, and then, after four attempts, each time being thrown down by the wind, he succeeded in getting back into the house.

This time they found that the velocity of the wind was 101 miles per hour, and Prof. Huntington thought if the gauge had been properly held it would have shown that the velocity was 120 miles per hour. After dark their window was blown in and they had hard work to board it up; the walls of the house are of stone, but such was the force of the wind on the roof that every part of the inside trembled like a leaf, and so loud was the roar that one had to shout to make the other hear, although not more than six feet distant. The rain fell in torrents."

—The Sisters of Charity of Ottawa, Canada, have lost a suit against the executors of J. F. Laroque, who while in their hospital had given the Sisters $20,000. They brought in a bill for board, lodging, and service money. The executors claimed that all this bill had been much more than paid by gifts which had left the estate insolvent, that the charges were extortionate, but that they were quite willing to pay the expenses of his funeral.

—Dr. McLeod, of New York city, was foremost in expelling George H. Stuart from the Reformed Presbyterian Church, for irregularities in music. The papers report a wedding in his church, when several pieces of music were performed on the abomination called an organ.

—Mr. Spurgeon's attack of small-pox has abated; but a visitation of gout has prevented him from visiting Paris. A correspondent of the National Baptist says "his health has certainly not been benefitted by a return to the use of wine."

—The California distillers who have been mashing grain on Sunday in opposition to the provisions of the revenue law forbidding it, now claim exemption from the payment of tax on the whisky produced from these Sunday mashes, on the ground that they are unlawful.

—Berkshire has got a foot of snow and splendid sleighing.

New Hampshire Items.

In 1868, says the Laconia Democrat, one Sam'l McIntire kept a saloon in Alton, which was raided upon by a lot of women, with a few men, who knocked in the heads of barrels, smashed jugs, and spilled their contents on the ground. As the result of a law suit and reference, McIntire has got a verdict of $1000 damages who broke his den.

To "refresh" the singers at Doctor Morrison's Funeral, in Londonderry, March 12, 1818, a bill of refreshment was prepared for the singers; 5 quarts W. I. Rum, $3.20; 1 pint Brandy, .40; 1 gall. Cyder, .20; 16 pyes, $2; 100 fryed nuts, .75; 5 lbs. of cheese, .63; 1 bunch of Cigars, .13.—$7.31.

On the 4th, in Winchester, Chas. Pratt, a man who has several other names to use as occasion requires, having been drinking strong drink, assaulted Avery Bryant with a sword, cutting a terrible gash on the right side of his head. He then stabbed Bryant in the right arm and fled.

There were twenty-five deaths in Mason in 1869. The oldest person was ninety-one years and three months, and the average forty-five years.

Four hundred and eight deaths took place in Manchester during 1869. Two of the number were over a hundred years. Consumption caused 74 deaths.

Forty-three deaths took place in Wolfeborough during 1869.

On the 6th, in Winchester, a son of Elijah Lyman slipped on some ice and broke his left thigh. A year ago, exactly, he had broken his right thigh in the same way

On the 6th, in Jefferson, Mrs. Moses C. Kimball fell on the ice and broke her right arm and dislocated a joint.

Rev. Dr. Wallace has been pastor of the Hanover street Congregational church at Manchester 30 years, during which time the church has grown from a membership of 27 to 494.

Rev. E. H. Smith has resigned the pastorate of the Baptist church in Lyme, after a successful pastorate of seven years. Resignation to take effect March 1st.

Mr. Dominicus Hanson is the oldest druggist in Strafford county and the oldest trader in Rochester, having commenced business in the year 1829 at the early age of 16 years.

At a recent meetiog of the Directors of the Nashua & Worcester Railroad at Worcester, they voted to take stock in the Nashua & Rochester Railroad to the amount of $200,000.

Samuel Chandler, Esq., of Bedford, father of Senator Chandler of Michigan, died a few days since, aged 95 years.

At the Republican Senatorial Convention held at Rochester, on Thursday last, Hon. George C. Peavy of Strafford was unanimously nominated for re-election, as senator for that district.

The starch factory at Milan has manufactured, this year, 115 tons of starch, using 28,000 bushels of potatoes.

The Chief Engineer of the Nashua Fire Department has missed only one fire for twenty years.

The Amoskeag Manufacturing Company at Manchester, is starting up about 250 looms in No. 4 Mill, which have been standing still most of the time since the war. This will give employment to about 100 hands, and add $3000 per month to their pay-roll.

Joel D. Edwards, of Strafford, committed suicide recently, by taking strychnine. He was about fifty-one years of age, and leaves a wife and four children. Pecuniary trouble was probably the cause.

A Favorite of Fortune. — The lucky Fort Edward (N. Y.) milliner, to whom her affianced lover, a young English nobleman, left $17,000,000 at his death, some months ago, hailed from Glover, Vt., and is the niece of Daniel Gray of that town. All attempts to set aside the will have been abandoned, and she is informed by her agent in London that an instalment of $5,000,000 of this snug little bequest will be forwarded the present month. She is reported as being a quiet, sensible girl, and not likely to be upset by this staggering freak of fortune.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Fashionable, Comfortable, Durable. The Gaiters and Slippers made by T. E. MOSELEY & CO., 293 Washington street, Boston, (opposite Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s) for ladies, gentlemen or youth.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills work admirably together as remedies for the affections of the Chest, Lungs and Throat, so common at this season. A few doses of the Pills at once alleviate the general febrile symptoms, and the Ointment faithfully rubbed over the seat of the complaint produces an immediate and powerful local effect; neutralizing and subduing the internal irritation and soon enabling the sufferer to "breathe freer and deeper." This treatment will cure a Cough that resists all other remedies. Sold by all Druggists.

The Living Machine.

Injure the main spring of a watch and every portion of the works becomes disordered. The human stomach is to the human system what that elastic piece of metal is to a chronometer. It influences the action of the other organs, and controls, to a certain extent, the whole living machine. The comparison may be carried further; for as the weakness or other imperfections of the main spring is indicated on the face of the timepiece, so also is the weakness or other disorder of the stomach betrayed by the face of the individual. The complexion is sallow or faded, the eyes are deficient in lustre and intelligence, and there is a worn, anxious expression in the whole countenance which tell as plainly as written words could do, that the great nourishment organ whose office it is to minister to the wants of the body, and to sustain and renew all its parts, is not performing its duty.

It requires renovating and regulating, and to accomplish this end Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be truly said to be the one thing needful. The broken main spring of a watch may be replaced by a new one, but the stomach can only be repaired and strengthened, and this is one of the objects of the famous vegetable restorative which for eighteen years has been waging a successful contest with dyspepsia in all climates. As a specific for indigestion it stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopœia have been exhausted, without, at best, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome and palatable, yet powerful stomachic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland, as well as upon the stomach and bowels, the Bitters act with singular distinctness, regulating and relaxigorating every secretive and assimilating organ on which bodily and mental health depend.

ASTONISHING REVELATIONS.

Two scientific publications are in the field against the hair dyes of which lead is the basis, The "New York Medical Gazette" and "The Journal of Chesistry" bitterly denounce them. Yet the hair may be safely dyed. Have you seen PROF. CHILTON'S TESTIMONY. Founded on a careful analysis, and certifying that Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye is not only a first-class article for changing the color of the hair, but ABSOLUTELY SAFE. CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATION, as a Dressing, acts like a charm on the Hair after Dyeing. TRY IT. ja13dawlm

A HUMBUG.

How often we hear this expression from persons reading advertisements of Patent Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they may be right.

It is over 22 years since I introduced DR. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT, to the public. I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and storekeepers through a small section of the country, many taking it with great reluctance; but I told them to let any one have it, and if it did not do all I stated on my pamphlet, no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were taken on trial by persons present. I was, by many, thought crazy, and that would be the last they would see of me.

But I knew my medicine was no hu mbug. In about two months I began to receive orders for more Liniment, some calling it my valuable Liniment, who had refused to sign a receipt when I left it at their store. Now my sales are millions of bottles yearly, and all for cash.

I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Vomiting, Spasms, and Sea-sickness, as an internal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally—see oath accompanying each bottle—and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Mumps, Frosted Feet, Bruises, Sprains, Old Sores, Swellings, Sore Throats, &c., &c.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

What the Doctors Say:

AMOS WOOLLEY, M. D., of Kosciusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used Allen's Lung Balsam extensively, in my practice, and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County, Ohio, says; "Allen's Lung Balsam not only sells rapidly but gives perfect satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medicinal properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success. I am so confident it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

NATHANIEL HARRIS, M. D., of Middlebury, Vermont, says; I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

Physicians do not recommend a medicine which has no merits, what they say about

THE EQUITABLE

LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY

OF THE UNITED STATES,

Office No. 92 Broadway, New York.

The Most Successful Life Insurance Company in the World.

All Surplus Premiums of Profits returned to the Policy-holders, instead of being partially or wholly appropriate to the use of the Stockholders, as is the usage with all "Mixed" and "Proprietary" Companies.

Dividends made Annually, from the start, and not postponed until the third, fourth or fifth year as in most other Companies.

Profits apportioned to the assured on the "Contribution plan," which is conceded to be the only equitable mode of division; and not by the mode adopted by many companies, which is grossly unjust to a large proportion of the Policy-holders.

Assets in Cash, $15,000,000

(None of this is in the Notes-of-hand of Policy-holders, as in many other Companies.)

Its Annual Income, $8,000,000

(No portion of this is composed of Promissory-Notes, as in all Note-Companies.)

The Cash Income is constantly increasing with tremendous rapidity, and as a necessary consequence, swelling the enormous cash accumulation which forms the security to Policy-holders.

All Premiums and all Losses Paid in Cash.

No Promissory-Notes to be deducted from the face of the Policy when it matures, as in all Note-Companies.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried Dr. Erasmus Winslow's Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — Circulars and Show Cards sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

FIRST SENATORIAL DISTRICT.—The Official Correspondence.—The following correspondence between the Committee chosen to inform Mr. Small of his selection as candidate for Senator, and his reply, explains itself.

PORTSMOUTH, Jan, 12, 1870.

WILLIAM B. SMALL, Esq.: Dear Sir At a full Convention of the Republicans of Senatorial District Number One, held at South Newmarket this day, you were unanimously nominated as their candidate for Senator; and the undersigned were appointed a Committee to inform you of the nomination and request your acceptance of the same.

The enthusiastic manner in which the nomination was received, is an index, we trust, of the triumphant election which is to follow it.

We are very respectfully,
Your obedient servts.
AARON YOUNG,
MOSES MANN,
— JACOB T. BROWN.

NEWMARKET, Jan. 14, 1870.

AARON YOUNG, MOSES MANN, and JACOB T. BROWN, Esqs., Committee, &c.

Gentlemen, your favor of the 17th inst. informing me that the Republican Senatorial Convention of Dist. No. One, holden at South Newmarket on that day, have unanimously nominated me as candidate for Senator for the District, came to me last evening.

Allow me to tender to you, and through you, to the Convention, my earnest thanks for this flattering token of confidence and respect. This nomination is to me doubly agreeable from the fact that it seems to have been made with unanimity, and comes to me entirely unsought. I accept the nomination; and I give you the assurance that if elected, it shall be my endeavor to discharge the duties of the position faithfully and according to the great principles of the Republican party, which I understand to mean the greatest good of the whole people.

Thanking you again, gentlemen, for the favor, I am yours truly,
W. B. SMALL.

Communication.

A NUISANCE THAT NEEDS ABATING.—It is generally supposed that those who are "under the droppings of the Sanctuary" are in a peculiarly favorable position for the developement of all the christian virtues; but, Messrs. Editors, if it should come in your way to pass the Middle Street Church on a melting day, when the aforesaid "droppings" make ugly spots on the ladies' velvets and ribbons; or on some subsequent frosty day, when they have become ice on the never-too-well-cleaned sidewalk, and all who are not wicked enough to "stand in slippery places" must practice the sliding step which so often leads "from the sublime to the ridiculous,"—you might judge from the expressions which fall, on those occasions, from the lips of the fairer as well as the stearner portion of the passers by, that the tendency of those particular "droppings" was the reverse of what are termed "means of grace."

Seriously, the place alluded to is an unmitigated nuisance to all who have occasion to pass it. In former years the christian benevolence of a worthy neighbor, kept the sidewalk carefully covered with ashes; but since his death, the many public-spirited citizens who attend the church have failed to see the need of thus attending to the welfare of society at large; and when so beautifully renovating the interior of their church, forgot to repair the leaky eaves-gutters. This they ought to have done, and not to have left the other undone.

Do not think that a severe fall which I had there yesterday, or the sufferings of a lady friend, with a broken arm from the same cause, induce me to send you this communication; I do it solely PRO BONO PUBLICO.

☞ The schooner Mary Kelly, Capt. Dunham, of St. Andrews, N. B., which was wrecked and towed into this port, and sold; has been thoroughly repaired at Marcy's shipyard, by Messrs. C. H. & J. L. Downs, and is now ready for sea. The iron work was from Trafton Brothers. the spars and blocks from Martin Brothers, the rigging by Mr. Deering, the sails from J. R. Holbrook. The vessel was sold at auction for $1535, and her repairs have cost about $2500, at which price she is a cheap vessel. The owner speaks in high terms of the competent mechanics who have fitted his staunch craft.

☞ We hope that our new Board of Assessors will not fall into the habit which has prevailed of late years, of making illegal taxes on property and polls, which cannot be collected for various reasons—the principal one being that many of the persons assessed have not been in Portsmouth for years and some are dead.

☞ The new Henry press for the Portsmouth Journal has arrived, and will be tested this week. We wish Mr. Brewster the best success with it.

☞ Monday, Jan. 17th, is the birthday of Benjamin Franklin—the greatest man America ever produced.

☞ Mr. Belknap has not been Register of Deeds, 20 years, as was stated on Saturday. He was first elected to that office in 1865, so that he is now in his fifth year of service.

☞ We copy on our 4th page from the Journal some remarks from a correspondent respecting Mr. Hackett's Lecture, which was a sound and sterling production, and worthy of being heard elsewhere, before similar Mercantile institutions.

NAVAL.—Lieutenant S. P. Baird has been detached from the Navy Yard, Charlestown, and ordered to the Benicia.

Lieutenant George M. Book has been detached from the Benicia, and granted a sick leave.

Chief Engineer A. Henderson has been detached from special duty at Boston and ordered to the United States Steamer Colorado, and as fleet engineer of the Asiatic fleet.

—An exchange says: "A fighting man has been employed on this paper. He weighs eight hundred pounds. His wrists are the very tool of death; his hair is short; his eyes are black; his boots are No. 12. O, he is a monster, this fighting man of ours! He goes for men like an ant for green cheese. He was never thrashed. O, he is a whale! He ate seven cans of oysters at our office the other night, and called for more. He's the heaviest instrument of total and eternal punishment on record! Come at us, ye lean and lank, overgrown specimens of humanity; spit on our boots if you dare; slide down our cellar door if you can, and if our Wallapus don't everlastingly go for you, then size and heft have nothing in them."

—Seven seamen who refused to proceed to sea on board the ship Skiddaw from Quebec last fall, on the ground of that vessel's unseaworthiness, preferring to remain rather a few weeks in jail, afterwards shipped on board the ship Edna from Montreal, and were lost, with the rest of the crew, recently on the coast of Ireland. The Skiddaw arrived home safe.

—A rival of Tom Thumb has been found in Richmond, Maine. He is a son of Mr. Joseph Totman, of that place, is eight years old, twenty inches high in his shoes and weighs twenty-four pounds. He is well built and smart.

—With a single exception, the chief officials of the General Government at Washington furnished neither wines nor liquors to their guests on New Year's Day. This temperance feature was due to the suggestion of President Grant.

—Rev. T. De Witt Talmadge received into the Central Presbyterian church of Brooklyn last Sabbath, 43 new members; making in all 137 additions during the few months of his pastorate, many of them being cases of conversion.

—Biland, the youth who shot a clergyman in Berlin during divine worship, has been sentenced to 12 years' hard labor. When called upon to plead, he said: "Being convinced that man is not a free agent, I plead not guilty."

—Human hair to the invoice value of $10,000 is imported from Europe weekly, at the port of Boston alone. It comes from the heads of the inmates of poor-houses, prisons, hospitals and pest-houses generally.

—Mrs. Nellis and a two year old daughter were burned to death Tuesday night, at Cypress Hills, N. Y. The mother poured kerosene on the fire and the can exploded, causing their death.

DENTAL CARD.

DR. GOODALL respectfully announces that owing to the decline in Gold, he is now able to buy all Dental Materials at a reduction from former prices, and therefore will reduce the price of artificial teeth from $25 to $20 for upper or lower sets, mounted in blocks (with gums)—the very best of work and materials and the highest style of finish. Price of temporary sets reduced to $16 dollars.

He has for an Assistant a very superior and competent Dentist, and can mount whole sets of teeth IN ONE DAY, when POSITIVELY necessary for patients from a distance. In this as in all other branches of Dentistry, terms cash, and satisfaction guaranteed.

I still continue to use "GOODALL'S PATENT SPRING PLATE" with perfect success.

MALT EXTRACT—

Is already recommended by our leading physicians, as a tonic and a nutrient (ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO LADIES) with the most satisfactory results. This beverage is extensively used where all spirituous liquors and ales are discarded, as it differs from all other malt preparation, being ALMOST FREE FROM ALCOHOL, and therefore neither intoxicating nor irritating: as it contains MORE NUTRIMENT THAN PORTER, ALE, OR THE STRONGEST BEER. ja3

WILD SPORTS OF THE EAST—CONTINUED.—We proceeded steadily on our way until we were brought to a halt by the sight of the tracks of some fierce wild beast extending across our path, which Lord Zephyr at once pronounced to be foot-marks of a panther. Wye Tasche thought a hen had made the tracks, while I fancied that a cow had had something to do with their authorship,—but of course did not obtrude my opinions upon such experienced woodsmen as my two companions, — who supported their several theories with so much earnestness that I was glad to change the subject by inducing Wye to give us a lecture on the mechanic arts, in the course of which, to illustrate a principle he was explaining, he took the lock off the gun, and laid it on one end of a stick, near the bank of a large river at which we had arrived. A moment afterward, by way of emphasising a certain statement, he brought his foot down with majestic force on the other end of the stick, and our gunlock, after describing a graceful parabola, landed in the water, exactly in the middle of the turbulent stream.

I stood as one paralyzed; Wye Tasche softly murmured "Gorry!" but My Lord, with the magnanimous calmness which is so distinguished a feature of his character, observed, "Never mind, my friends; we can shoot the ferocious denizens of these primitive wilds just as well with a gun which hasn't got any lock on it, as with any other kind. Let us proceed on our mission of destruction."

Without further adventure we arrived at Agamenticus, where we found evident traces of some former visit to the spot by civilized men; and at length we came across a hut, probably the ancient home of some hardy pioneer. A closer inspection disclosed traces of a dire tragedy, which Lord Zephyr had little trouble in explaining to us.

"Behold," said he, "this humble cot. Once, perchance, it was the abode of a true hunter, like one of us; peace and plenty reigned within these walls, and the hunter had real jolly times. But the ruthless savage came—and yonder vast heap of charcoal tells only too plainly the tale of his fierce cruelty,—the torture, and the brave man's death. O! my friends, could we but meet a few dozen red-skins, wouldn't we give 'em fits,—if I had one before me now I'd 'bust' his ear, and split his nose like a sheep's foot, and—by jingo! there's a striped squirrel."

Now the excitement of the chase began. My Lord assailed the animal with the hard-boiled eggs we had carried for our dinner,—but didn't hit him; Wye Tasche headed him off from a heap of rocks he was making for, by throwing the gun at him; and I almost came very near jumping on him—should have, only I tripped, and went head foremost into a juniper bush, instead. Between us, we treed the squirrel in a pine that stood about twenty yards from the hut.

"Now, My Lord," said Wye, in an agony of excitement, pointing the lockless gun at the wild beast that was sitting quietly on a limb of the tree; "how can we fire the gun? Quick, quick!"

"Very easily," said Lord Zephyr; "you point the gun, and when you get the animal well aimed at, I'll pound the percussion cap with this big stone. So go ahead, and sing out when you are ready."

As with muscles of iron did Wye Tasche hold the deadly weapon pointed at the doomed animal, for about fifteen minutes, and then gave the expected word—"Now!" Lord Zephyr drew near, struck the percussion cap gracefully with a paving-stone, and the gun did not go off. "I'll make a mark this time," said Lord Z.; and so he did. As he swung the stone vigorously on high, to repeat the blow, it came in contact with Wye's eyebrow, and as this made him alter his position a little, the stone descended on his thumb, instead of on the cap. The gun did not go off this time, either; and Wye observed, "I don't believe a gun can be fired that way, anyhow." This roused the lion in My Lord, who seized the gun, planted its muzzle on the ground, held it firmly in place by pressing his waistband against the butt, and saying "Look at me," brought the stone down with both hands. We looked, and saw him as he went backward through the door into the hut with great speed, somewhat doubled up, and enveloped in smoke. The gun, owing to its muzzle having been stuck about a foot into the mud, had kicked a little.

PAKENHA.

RAT POISON.—Recent experiments have shown that squills is an excellent poison for rats. The powder should be mixed with some fatty substances, and spread upon slices of bread. The pulp of onions is also good. Rats are very fond of either.

MRS. STOWE AND LADY BYRON.—Prof. Calvin E. Stowe writes and publishes in the Congregationalist, a few suggestions in reference to Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's new book, in which she defends, explains and confirms her previous book about Lady Byron and others.

Prof. S. speaks of Lady Byron, from his own knowledge, in the very highest terms. He says:—

She appeared to be truthfulness itself, and I saw no signs of the moodiness and capriciousness, and hallucination which have recently been ascribed to her. In theology she was a Restorationist, but in other respects I found little occasion to differ from her. She might have had other opinions with which I do not sympathize, but I did not hear her give utterance to them. She impressed me as a self-possessed, devout, Christian woman, tried and purified by severe and long-continued afflictions. As to the truth of her story, it seemed to me she could not be mistaken, and I am sure she would not deceive.

In respect to a heresy charged upon Mrs. Stowe, her husband says:—

Something has been said, in time past, in your paper, respecting Mrs. Stowe's views of the future state of the wicked. In one of her letters to Lady Byron she expresses herself fully on this point. She is not a Restorationist like Lady Byron; nor does she believe that, in regard to all persons, probation entirely ceases with this life. In respect to this doctrine she is in accordance with Prof. Tholuck, as that eminent scholar developed his views in a conversation I had with him at Halle in the summer of 1836.

MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION LECTURE.—Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett delivered the sixth lecture of this course, last Tuesday evening, to an audience that filled every seat in the hall. At the commencement Mr. Hackett said it was his purpose to offer a few desultory remarks upon the causes which contribute to the success or failure in what should be the purpose of life; with such admonitions and encouragements as his own observation suggested. Success, the law of which is as universal as the law which holds the planets in their orbits, is not power alone, for that not unfrequently ruins its possessor; it is not wealth alone, for rich men are sometimes only great failures; it is not social position, for that is often obtained without merit, or lost without fault. But it is the harmonious development and growth of a manly character—the fruits of which are influence, wealth and position. The being what we were designed to be, is success. The first requisite to success in life is integrity. That integrity which does not inquire what may be done, but what ought to be done. An indispensable requisite is a well considered well digested plan of life, which should be always kept in view.

It is no uncommon thing to see a young man toiling to aid a mother or sister. Some persons look upon such a young man as unfortunate. It were better to imitate than pity him, for it will be found that when he comes to the serious work of life, he has been so training himself that he will outstrip him who never encountered such burdens, (ought they not to be called helps?) Many a young man gets some way on the journey of life before he discovers that no man enjoys the real blessings of wealth, and position without toiling for them and earning them. Our real respect for a man is, what he is, not what he has. The accumulation of a fortune alone is not success. What is the real ground of the respect universally entertained for one of our distinguished townsmen? It is not the wealth of which he is the representative, or the fact of his having creditably filled the highest office in the gift of the State; but it is for those powers and habits which has accumulated that fortune; for that generous, yet well regulated sympathy in what promotes the good of individuals and the public; and for those noble impulses always right, and often so effective, that have given him a hold upon our community.

The lecture, which was an hour long and of which we have given only some of the principal points, was one of the best we have had the pleasure of listening to for a long while—a lecture which should have been heard by every young man of this city.

The President of the Association in announcing the next lecture said, "that he thought all would be glad to hear that the gentleman from Newcastle (Mr. John Albee) would repeat his lecture on Farming, next Tuesday evening. A course of which there is little doubt, if we may judge from the expressions of approval of those who ventured in the storm on the occasion of its first delivery.

THE LORRAINE VEGETABLE CATHARTIC PILL.

DR. LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILL, OR LA MEDICINE CURATIVE.

Mild, Certain, Safe, Efficient. It is far the best Cathartic invented, and all who use it praise it. Invigorates all the vital functions, without causing injury to any of them. The most complete success has attended its use in many localities; and it is now offered to the general public with the conviction that it can never fail to accomplish what it is claimed for it. It produces little or no pain; leaves the organs free from irritation, and never overtaxes or excites the nervous system. In all diseases of the skin, blood, stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys—of children, and in many other difficulties peculiar to women, it brings prompt relief and certain cure. The best physicians now recommend and prescribe it, and no person who once uses this, will voluntarily return to the use of any other cathartic.

LORILLARD'S "EUREKA"

SMOKING TOBACCO is an excellent article of granulated Virginia; wherever introduced it is universally admired. It is put up in handsome muslin bags, in which orders for Meerschaum Pipes are daily packed.

LORILLARD'S YACHT CLUB

SMOKING TOBACCO is made of the Choicest leaf grown; it is anti-nervous in its effects, as the Nicotine has been extracted; it leaves no disagreeable taste after smoking; it is very mild, light in color and in weight, hence one pound will last as long as 3 of ordinary tobacco. In this brand we also pack orders every day for first quality Meerschaum Pipes. Try it and convince yourself it is all it claims to be, THE FINEST OF ALL.

LORILLARD'S CENTURY

CHEWING TOBACCO.—This brand of Fine Cut chewing tobacco has no equal or superior in the United States, without doubt the best chewing tobacco in the country.

LORILLARD'S SNUFFS

HAVE BEEN IN GENERAL USE in the United States for nearly 100 years, and still acknowledged "the best" wherever used.

If your storekeeper does not have these articles in stock, ask him to obtain them; they are sold by respectable jobbers almost everywhere.

COOKING AND COURTING.

TOM TO NED.

Dear Ned—no doubt you'll be surprised,
When you receive and read this letter;
I've railed against the marriage state,
But then, you see, I knew no better.
I've met a lovely girl out here,
Her manner is—well—very winning;
We're soon to be,—well, Ned, my dear,
I'll tell you all from the beginning.

I went to ask her out to ride,
Last Wednesday,—it was perfect weather;
She said she couldn't, possibly,
The servants had gone off together.
(Hibernians always rush away,
At cousin's funerals to be looking),
Pies must be made, and she must stay,
She said, to do that branch of cooking.

"Oh, let me help you," then I cried:
"I'll be a cooker, too, how jolly!"
She laughed, and answered with a smile,
"All right! but you'll repent your folly.
For I shall be a tyrant, sir,
And good hard work you'll have to grapple;
So sit down there, and don't you stir,
But take that knife and pare that apple."

She rolled her sleeve above her arm—
That lovely arm, so plump and rounded;
Outside, the morning sun shone bright;
Inside, the dough she deftly pounded.
Her little fingers sprinkled flour,
And rolled the piecrust up in masses;
I passed the most delightful hour
'Mid butter, sugar and molasses.

With deep reflection, her sweet eyes
Gazed on each pot and pan and kettle;
She sliced the apples, filled her pies,
And then the upper crust did settle.
Her rippling waves of golden hair
In one great coil were tightly twisted;
But locks would break it, here and there,
And curl about where'er they listed.

And then her sleeve came down, and I
Fastened it up—her hands were doughy;
Oh, it did take the longest time,
Her arm, Ned, was so fair and snowy!
She blushed, and trembled, and looked shy;
Somehow, that made me all the bolder;
Her arch lips looked so red that I—
Well—found her head upon my shoulder.

We're to be married, Ned, next month;
Come and attend the wedding revels.
I really think that bachelors
Are the most miserable devils!
You'd better go for some girl's hand;
And if you are uncertain whether
You dare to make a due demand,
Why just try cooking pies together.

☞ Mrs. J. P. Thurston has sent the following "official notice" of the sale of the State of Maine to Secretary Drew:

Sir: The sale of the State of Maine, as you are aware, for a breach of the fundamental guarantees of the State and United States Constitution, took place in the House of Representatives in the Capitol at 10 o'clock to-day according to the advertisement of Mrs. Jane P. Thurston, to realize a lien she holds upon said State. It started with a bid of $15,000 from Senator Lane elect from Cumberland County, followed by a bid from Representative Haynes elect from Hancock County by a bid of $100,000,000, one hundred millions, which was followed by Mrs. J. P. Thurston's bid of the value of the State two hundred and twenty-five millions,—who took it.

A NON SEQUITUR.—An English clergyman in Lancashire was lately endeavoring to prove that doers of good were always in the minority, and by parity of reasoning, that the Conservative party, being in the minority were right. To illustrate, he said: "Paul was in a minority, but who was right? Peter was in a minority, but who was right? Christ was in a minority, but who was right?" But the reverend orator was literally "sat upon" when some one in the gallery shouted—"Judas Iscariot was in a minority, but who was right?" The effect was laughable. The lecturer was struck dumb, for some minutes could not utter a word, and the audience roared.

—M. De Lesseps, at one stage of the Suez canal undertaking, thought it important to obtain the attention of the English public. He therefore visited London, and called on a prominent editor for advice. "Begin," said he, "by spending freely to get your project attacked by the press. That will prepare the way for spendingmore to get it defended, and between the two you will secure the general notice you need." The advice was followed.

TESTING FLOUR.—An exchange gives the following simple mode as the proper way to test flour: Place a thimblefull in the palm of your sand and rub it gently with the finger. If the flour smoother down, feeling gentle and slippery, it is of an inferior quality. But if the flour rubs rough in the palm, feeling like fine sand, and has an orange tint, purchase confidently. It will not disappoint you.

SWEETENING STONE JARS.—A housekeeper writes: "Having some stone jars in which lard had been packed, until they became unfit for use, I made them perfectly sweet by backing them full of fresh earth, and letting it remain two or three weeks. I suspect this plan would be equally effective in any case of foul earthen or stone ware."

—To reprove small faults with undue vehemence, is as absurd as to seek to remove a fly from a friend's forehead with a sledge-hammer.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the validity. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

TUESDAY, JAN. 18, 1870.

Matters and Things.

Anthony Trollope. it is said, has made $£50,000 by his pen. This is a new illustration of the maxim: "Take care of the pens and the pounds will take care of themselves."

Miss Evans (Mrs. Wilson), the author of "St. Elmo," "Beulah," and "Vashti," was seriously injured a few days since by a railroad accident in Tennessee.

A negro explains the apathy in celebrating the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, by the fact that "Butler's bin dar since Jackson's bin gone."

The Republican plurality for Governor in Texas is 873.

Beecher declines to have his salary raised.

The Wheeling Register shouts over Olive Logan's "Girls" in this style: "Hurrah for Olive! Olive knows all about her subject. She was a 'subject' herself once. Come back next year, that's a good girl."

Traupmann has confessed that he murdered the Kinck family, eight in all, in France. He has a lively prospect of being hung, if he lives long enough.

A "clerical error" — Rev. Horace Cooke's.—Com. Bulletin.

John Collins, a clerk at the City Hall, Boston, has stolen $14,400 of the city's money. He had $5400 in his possession, when arrested, and says he had gambled away $9000. He intended leaving for Europe the day after he was arrested.

The former rebel-general D. H. Hill is now editing a country paper in North Carolina.

A Wisconsin town has had several mad dogs lately and complains that they are out of season.

Eggs are only sixpence a dozen in Augusta, Georgia, and the hens contemplate a strike.

Two Milwaukee boys who combined the pursuits of boot-black and newsboy, saved $1300 last year.

A Minnesota town probably has the youngest mother in this country. She wants several months of being twelve years old.

Bayard Taylor says he has travelled 30,000 miles in Europe without a single accident or missing a single connection.

The color of Mr. Spurgeon's nose has excited newspaper comment.

Further developments in regard to the frauds of the American Book Concern in New York show facts unfavorable to the managers. In the building all sorts of little jobs were brought to light. The chief of the department had taken all the "gold sweepings" as his perquisites, worth about $1600 per year; 1400 dozen skins, which must have cost the concern $20,000, are not accounted for, and so on from beginning to end. Rev. James Pike, chairman of the investigating committee, does not sign the report.

John Hayes and John Long, who had been confined in the Massachusetts State Prison and who have been recently discharged, their innocence having been established, ask the legislature for compensation.

The Stanton fund has reached $100,000, and promises to grow much larger.

Horace Greeley gets $10,000 for editing the Tribune.

Dr. Livingstone was at Ujiji, on Yanyanyika Lake, May 30.

One branch of the California legislature, in session Sunday, very consistently repealed the law prohibiting Sunday theatricals.

Advices from Portugal confirm the reported defeat of Lopez. Advices from Paris deny it, and assert that he is in Great Cordilleras, with an army of 8000 men.

The legislature of Mississippi has ratified the 14th and 15th amendments to the national Constitution. The legislature of Kansas has ratified the 15th amendment. The Senate of Ohio has ratified the 15th amendment, and there is scarcely a doubt that the House will do likewise.

A congressional committee is investigating the New York gold conspiracy which ruined so many in September last. Some important information has been ascertained.

Russia is on a war footing.

An extensive coal miner's strike in Prussia has ended.

Hon. Wm. L. Putnam is to be re-elected Mayor of Portland on a citizen's ticket without party issues.

The small pox is raging violently in New Haven.

The telegraph strike has ended and the operators return to work.

Boston meditates a one cent store.

Meriden, Conn., is a growing place. One of its physicians attend the birth of individuals there last year.

Paris is quiet. Prince Pierre Bona parte is soon to be tried for the murder of Victor Noir.

Gen. Butler is back at Washington. If the Senate amends the Virginia bill, there'll be a lively time in the House with Butler to lead the radicals. Success to him.

Correspondence of Chronicle and Gazette.

PORTLAND, ME. Jan. 17.

Editors Chronicle:—The forthcoming Peabody Obsequies are the topic of talk at present. The proposed ceremonies have been announced and nothing new transpired in regard to the occasion. Upon the appearance in sight of the Monarch, the signal will be given and the fire alarm sounded and the flag on the City Hall raised at half-mast. The authorities will hasten to place in readiness all the contemplated matters intended to be carried out, and then await consultation with Geo. Peabody Russell, who is on board the Monarch. Some 24 or 48 hours will be given to perfect arrangements, and then the grand obsequies here will take place.

The Railroad enterprises still are being vigorously pushed. The Portland & Ogdensburg expect to reach Fryeburg this year and the Portland & Rochester to reach Rochester—two important steps of progress. The Maine Central and the Portland & Kennebec will unite and being one of the most important links in the chain between the Provinces, and the upper Kennebec & Portland, the new corporation must pros per.

The total value of domestic produce and manufactures exported from this port during the year 1869, including lumber and cooperage, &c., was $1,-666,941,00. The proportion of the above shipped in American vessels was $869,707,00, and in foreign vessels $797,237,00. The value (in gold) of all kinds of lumber transported into this District for the year from Canada, $311,612,00, of which all but about $75,000 worth was exported to Cuba and South America.

A copy of Martin Luther's Bible was a short time since in possession of a gentleman of this city. It was printed in 1699 in black letter. It was purchased in Germany by the grandfather of one John Frammar who was the first settler in the town of Waldoboro(Me..) and has continued in the possession of his descendants ever since, being at this time the property of a great great grand-daughter, Mrs. Dr. W. A. Banks of Rockland. It is profusely illustrated, finely printed and well preserved. It contains the Old and New Testaments, Apocrypha, Concordance and Life of Christ by Martin Luther.

The Bowdoin College alumni of Portland and vicinity have a dance at the Falmouth, Feb. 2 at 6 P. M., at which time the organization will be perfected. Brothers elsewhere please take notice. SANCHO.

New Publications Received.

A Business Directory of the State—The New Hampshire Register and Political Manual of 1870,—is published by McFarland & Jenks, Concord, and for sale by the booksellers. Neat and convenient for reference.

Letter and Spirit: Winchester Lectures. By Richard Metcalf. This is an 18 mo. volume of 186 pages; published in Boston, by the American Unitarian Association. The lectures were written, and delivered by a pastor to his own people; and contain a very plain and clear exposition of doctrine and life as understood by Unatarian Christians.

Harper's Weekly, last week had a caricature, (alas, too true!) of Democratic Victories. The likeness is unmistakable.

LIBERIA FACTS AND STATISTICS.—Forty-seven years ago, in 1822, Jrhudi Ashman sailed in the Brig Strong with less than one hundred sable men and women, and landed them at what is now the city of Monrovia on the West coast of Africa. Two companies had sailed before him, one in 1820 and one in 1821; but were driven from the coast by the slave traders, and landed, one of them in the British Colony of Sierra Leone, and the other on Sherbro Island. On Mr. Ashman's arrival there, parties joined him, and so was planted the germ of the present Republic of Liberia.

Since 1822, one hundred and fifty-one vessels have carried out emigrants to the number of about 15,000. In all these voyages there has never been the loss of life to an emigrant by accident or drowning during the voyage,—a fact probably without a parallel in the whole history of ocean service.

So from a just conception of the wonderful change wrought on that coast, the reader must go back just fifty years 1819, and visit it in thought. He would see the whole coast dotted with slave barracoons along the rivers, bays and inlets. The only human activities visible were those employed in catching, branding and shipping the poor negroes, amid all the horrors of the middle passage to hopeless bondage. Twenty-two thousand were thus shipped in 1819.

Saturday evening, Dr. Samuel W. Roberts went to visit a family in Wolfeborough, and starting for home, his whiffle-tree broke, frightening his horse so much that he ran down hill, and being hard-mouthed the Dr. could not hold him. On ascending the next rise of land, the shafts slipped out of the harness, and the Dr. was thrown out, striking the ground with such force as to injure his side and hip. At the same time the horse cleared himself from the wagon, and ran into a field where he staid all night in the storm—but was brought home next day, unhurt, about as good as new.

We learn from the Nashua Telegraph that Mrs. Frank Fletcher, of Lyndon, Vt., recently died in Hollis in a very sudden manner. While on her way to Vermont with her husband, to whom she had been married but three weeks, she stopped at the house of Mr. Wm. Merrill, uncle to Mr. E. Their host died in just a week after their arrival, and only two days after, Mrs. Fletcher was found, by her husband, lying unconscious on her chamber floor. She partially recovered her senses, but was unable to speak, and died in about five minutes. The cause of her death, in all probability, was heart disease. The funerals of Mrs. Fletcher and Mr. Merrill took place at the same time, the coffins resting side by side.

Mrs. Lenahan, residing in Manchester, gave birth to a pair of twins, a boy and a girl, on Thursday night, each weighing 12 pounds.

Gov. Smyth, as one of the managers of the Soldiers' Hospitals has sent one F. B. Hayes, of Nashua, a disabled and insane soldier, to Washington, where he will be well cared for at the Soldiers' Home. Hayes was a member of one of the State regiments, and lost an arm in the service. As is usual in such cases, Gov. Smyth appointed an attendant for the disabled man.

R. P. Claggett, Esq., of Newport, was badly kicked in the face by a horse at Acworth, a few days since.

R. M. Booth, of Lempster, has caught 16 mink this season, which he has sold for about one hundred dollars.

A copper mine yielding nineteen per cent. of pure metal has been discovered at Hanover.

Hon. Nathaniel Gordon of Exeter was renominated, Friday, for senator in the second district by the republicans.

The State Musical Convention at Concord adjourned finally Friday evening, with a grand concert. Prof. L. O. Emerson, who was expected to direct the convention, was taken sick on Wednesday, and was not able to leave his bed afterwards.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

FOR STORMY WEATHER,

Your feet should be well protected. Ladies, gentlemen, and children will find durable and fashionable boots at T. E. MOSELEY & CO.'S, 292 Washington st., Boston, (opposite Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s.)

Holloway's Ointment and Pills work admirably together as remedies for the affections of the Chest, Lungs and Throat, so common at this season. A few doses of the Pills at once alleviate the general febrile symptoms, and the Ointment faithfully rubbed over the seat of the complaint produces an immediate and powerful local effect; neutralizing and subduing the internal irritation and soon enabling the sufferer to "breathe freer and deeper." This treatment will cure a Cough that resists all other remedies. Sold by all Druggists.

The Living Machine.

Injure the main spring of a watch and every portion of the works becomes disordered. The human stomach is to the human system what that elastic piece of metal is to a chronometer. It influences the action of the other organs, and controls, to a certain extent, the whole living machine. The comparison may be carried further; for as the weakness or other imperfections of the main spring is indicated on the face of the timepiece, so also is the weakness or other disorder of the stomach betrayed by the face of the individual. The complexion is sallow or faded, the eyes are deficient in lustre and intelligence, and there is a worn, anxious expression in the whole countenance which tell as plainly as written words could do, that the great nourishment organ whose office it is to minister to the wants of the body, and to sustain and renew all its parts, is not performing its duty.

It requires renovating and regulating, and to accomplish this end Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be truly said to be the one thing needful. The broken main spring of a watch may be replaced by a new one, but the stomach can only be repaired and strengthened, and this is one of the objects of the famous vegetable restorative which for eighteen years has been waging a successful contest with dyspepsia in all climates. As a specific for indigestion it stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopoeia have been exhausted, without, at best, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome and palatable, yet powerful stomachic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland, as well as upon the stomach and bowels, the Bitters act with singular distinctness, regulating and reinvigorating every secretive and assimilating organ on which bodily and mental health depend.

A HUMBUG.

How often we hear this expression from persons reading advertisements of Patent Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they may be right.

It is over 22 years since I introduced DR. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT, to the public. I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and storekeepers through a small section of the country, many taking it with great reluctance; but I told them to let any one have it, and if it did not do all I stated on my pamphlet, no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were taken on trial by persons present. I was, by many, thought crazy, and that would be the last they would see of me.

But I knew my medicine was no humbug. In about two months I began to receive orders for more Liniment, some calling it my valuable Liniment, who had refused to sign a receipt when I left it at their store. Now my sales are millions of bottles yearly, and all for cash.

I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Vomiting, Spasms, and Sea-sickness, as an internal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally—see each the surrounding each bottle—and externally for Chronic, Rheumatism, Headache, Mumps, Frosted Feet, Bruises, Sprains, Old Sores, Swellings, Sore Throats, &c., &c.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

What the Doctors Say:

AMOS WOOLLEY, M. D., of Kosciusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM extensively, in my practice, and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County, Ohio, says: "ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM not only heals rapidly but gives perfect satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medicinal properties I feel free to use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success. As an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

NATHANIEL HARRIS, M. D., of Middlebury, Vermont, says; I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

Physicians do not recommend a medicine which has no merits, what they say about

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Diaphoretic and Alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, this Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopoeia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

COASTING EXTRAORDINARY. — A youth of full five years, who would a coasting go, resolved to slide on State Street ice, though the waters lay below. His sled was nice and o'er the ice young Randall swift did glide, a-down the street nor ne'er did meet exulting boy to chide. The ice was smooth and on he went not caring whither he was bent, till near the dock he danger saw and heard the mock of boys' yaw yaw. No help was there, no arm could save, and towards the snare he went, and gave a piercing shriek in tones not weak. Over he went and pop into the dock was sent, and waters blue closed o'er the form of boy and sled,—and people feared him good as dead. They fished him out and sent him home to get dried up from watery foam, and that he'll there be kept to ream, until he's read this fearful pome, is our sad wish—else he may dish the moral of his revel; 'tis this, quite clear, N. B. who fear, and take the well timed warning, if coast you must, remember not to slide on Monday morning, for if you do you're of the few whose heads're not generally level.

A LAWSUIT ENDED.—At the trial, about a year ago, of the case of Concord Railroad vs. George Clough, Dr. Carney of Boston was a witness, and testified that he deemed Clough a thief, and had heard him called so. Clough was indignant, and sued Carney for slander, claiming $30,000 damages; but recently Clough's counsel admitted a nonsuit,—that is, he gives up the $30,000, and pays his cost.

☞ The astronomers are growing very annoying. One prophesies a present to the earth, in the course of a few years, of a bran-new moon, twice as large as the present one. Another tells us of a coming telegraphic message from the sun, in the shape of a column of electric light, in form like a toad-stool; and now, here comes another, with the pleasing information that Jupiter is burning out, and will shortly quit the firmament in disgust.

☞ Miss Julia C. Addington has lately been elected to a public office in Iowa, while the constitution of that state expressly determines that the office shall be filled by a "male." The lady assumes the duties of the office under instructions from the attorney-general, who decides that she is a male—the term, as used in the constitution, being merely a generic one, and includes both sexes. This lovely woman disappears from sight, sex is abolished, the marriage service loses its significance—and the world moves!

☞ A petition from the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, praying Congress to give attention to the unnatural and injuriously degrading position of the medical staff of the United States navy in regard to rank and authority, on account of the unnecessary and ungracious orders lately issued from the Navy Department, has been presented in the Senate, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

On Saturday night while John Pease of Concord, was attempting to dress a cancer which had been troubling him for some years, his clothing accidentally took fire, and he was so badly burned that he died Sunday night. He was 74 years of age.

GREAT AUCTION SALE OF FUR GOODS.

The ENTIRE STOCK of the well known House of MESSRS. COOK & ALDRICH, at No. 147 Washington Street, opposite the Old South Church.

Wednesday, Jan. 19, at 11 o'cl'k, A. M.,

At the store of Messrs. Cook & Aldrich, as above

Will be sold their stock of fur goods, one of the largest and most attractive stocks in the city, embracing nearly everything in the line of manufactured fur goods for ladies' and gentlemen's use.

This establishment is too well known to require any extended comments in an advertisement.

The object of this sale is to close out entirely, if possible, the balance of this season's stock.

The goods can be seen and purchased at private sale till the auction. Catalogues will be ready on Monday morning, 17th inst. An auction of so extensive and really desirable articles of furs, &c., very seldom occurs, and should interest the public. Ja15

CHRONICLES OF OLD TIMES.

BY UNCLE TOBY.

The Portsmouth Privateers of 1812.

NUMBER TWO.

The schooner Thomas, of this port, commanded by Capt. Thomas Manning Shaw, was one of our earliest privateers, and one of the most successful, though her career ended with her capture by the British.

There is not, in our Custom House, any book in which was recorded the arrival and sailing, or clearance, of privateers and prizes, in the war of 1812,—and the Marine Lists, in the town newspapers of that day, are very imperfect and greatly confused. But in the Gazette of August 18, 1812, we have this item:

"On Sunday last, the privateer schooner Thomas, Capt. Shaw, of 14 guns and 100 men,—and the privateer sloop Science, Capt. Fernald, sailed from this port on a cruise. It is said two others are fitting out."

The cruise of the Thomas (or Revenge,) was short. She came into this port on Friday, Sept. 11, with her prize, the British ship Falmouth, of Bristol, late Capt. Hill, bound home from Jamaica, with a cargo of 459 hogsheads and 40 tierces Sugar, 145 hogsheads Rum, 20 hogsheads Coffee, and 60 tons Logwood, valued at $200,000.

The Falmouth was described in the Gazette as being 5 years old, 450 tons burthen, mounting 6 long, 9s, [not cigars, but cannon,] six 24 and two 12 lb. carronades, [short cannon,]—and carrying 23 men. It was added, that "she struck without firing a gun," which would not be very strange, when we consider the hundred men of the Thomas. But there was a story current among the boys of that day, that a negro sailor fired a part of her broadside, when all the rest of her crew ran below.

The Falmouth's cargo was landed on Portsmouth Pier, covering it completely,—and making the greatest display we ever saw there. Vessel and cargo were sold in due time at public auction, by that prince and model of auctioneers, Major Samuel Larkin, whose clear and sonorous tenor voice rings in our recollection with a life-like reality, as we write these lines.

Major Larkin was a Federalist,—the War and the Privateering were both Republican Institutions,—yet he sold, not only the Falmouth and her cargo, but also all or nearly all the prizes and plunder which came into this port during the war, and in a few cases he sold prizes elsewhere. He was, to be sure, never a bitter partisan, tho' he held decided views: but his superiority as an auctioneer gave him the business: and the public confidence which he worthily enjoyed, doubtless gave firmness and buoyancy to his sales.

The unloading of the Falmouth was a high frolic, and lasted several days after her condemnation, previous to the auction. When more than two-thirds of her cargo was out, one breezy afternoon a little before night, the tide had risen to near high-water mark, and lifted up the high-sided vessel, so that she seemed almost to stand above the wharf. The men had been hoisting hogsheads of sugar with a tackle and can-hooks only;—and as rum was very abundant on the wharf, they might have been drinking. At any rate they were in high spirits, singing and hoisting a very large hogshead. Up it went, high in the air, and with a good vigorous jerk of the rope, out it swung over the wharf. But that same jerk started a can-hook, the hogshead came down with a quash and a crash, and the sugar flew on all sides. Boys, girls and men rushed to the spot with buckets, tin kettles, pails, and even hats and caps, filling these vessels with prize sugar! The owner did not get much of it; but then, as the by-word used to run, It was all privateering;—and not many questions were asked.

The people of Portsmouth, that winter, 1812–13, ate more Jamaica sugar than they ever did before or since, in a similar length of time; and the sweets and gains of this and other such prizes, gave life to the Privateering Business, and the Yankee Privateers literally swarmed from nearly all our ports, between Hampton Roads and Penobscot river.

In the Ramble before referred to, mention is made of the capture, by the Thomas, in 1812, of the British ship Richmond, 14 guns, 25 men besides officers, 400 tons, deeply laden with West India produce, bound from Jamaica to London;—she was sent into Portsmouth. We do not remember this prize, but give it as recorded.

The Thomas took many other prizes, at a later date,—among them the ship Dromio, of 12 guns, from Liverpool for Halifax, with a cargo worth $70,000,—and sent into Wiscasset. Also the "mischievous British privateer Liverpool Packet," which she brought in here,—and of which more mention may be made hereafter. We shall also probably make more mention of the Thomas. But we shall occupy the remainder of this chapter with some other matters that seem to belong to the history of our loss and gain by War at Sea, in the year 1812.

Some persons, now, might wonder why our Government should have encouraged and authorized Privateering at all. But all such should consider that the War was declared by our Congress, in favor of Free Trade and Sailors' Rights. Yet, at the moment when this war was declared, Great Britain had 1060 vessels of war in her navy, of which 800 were in commission;—while our American Navy had only seven effective frigates and 12 or 15 sloops of war!

It was obvious, then, that we must have Privateers, or else we could do nothing warlike on the sea. It is true that the little Navy did wonders—and established a reputation for prowess and skill, most enviable. But the chief injury to British commerce was done by the Privateers, which were commissioned to sink, burn and destroy, such prizes as they could not readily get in; and they kept the great English Navy very busy, watching them.

But War and Privateering, as well as other games, may have two sides, and both sides may gain some, and lose some.

So it was with the War and the Privateering of Portsmouth,—and no doubt with other ports. Our own recollection was, that most of our merchant ships got home here without capture, and lay rotting at the wharves during the war. And this turns out to be correct in the main.—But there are some large exceptions, with which we close this chapter.

We have before us, or within reach, files of the Gazette, War Journal, and Oracle.—In the Oracle of Feb. 13, 1813,—doubtless prepared by Wm. Garland, a merchant, and Andrew Halliburton, the accurate banker,—we have an exact List of Vessels belonging to this Port, captured by the British since the war began, i. e. eight months.

Ship Fabius, valued at	$30,000
" Brutus and specie	14,000
" Merchant and cargo	32,000
Brig Rockingham and cargo	9,000
Ship White Oak and cargo	8,000
Brig Hero and cargo	6,000
Ship James and cargo	22,000
Schooner Three Friends	3,000
Brig Dolphin and cargo	6,000
Ship Charles	10,000
" General Eaton	10,000
" James and freight	25,000
Privateer Sloop Science	7,000
	$182,000

In the same paper we read:—

"We understand the net amount of all the prizes brought into this port will not exceed $120,000."

Notwithstanding this, the privateering made business brisk in our streets, with much appearance of prosperity: the losses were real, and they were felt, but they did not make much noise nor show. The noise and show were made by the lucky privateersmen, as they were called.

THE LORRAINE VEGETABLE CATHARTIC PILL.

DR. LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILL, OR LA MEDICINE CURATIVE.

Mild, Certain, Safe, Efficient. It is far the best Cathartic ever yet discovered, and at once relieves and invigorates all the vital functions, without causing injury to any of them. The most complete success has attended its use in many localities, and it is now offered to the general public with the conviction that it can never fail to accomplish all that is claimed for it. It produces little or no pain; leaves the organs free from irritation, and never overtaxes or excites the nervous system. In all diseases of the skin, blood, stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys,—of children, and in many difficulties peculiar to women, it brings prompt relief and certain cure. The best physicians recommend and prescribe it; and no person who once uses this, will voluntarily return to the use of any other cathartic.

THE MIDSHIPMAN'S LESSON.

Reading Mr. Parton's article, in a late issue of the Ledger, on "Admiral Chas. Stewart," brought to my mind another naval hero with whom it was my fortune to be acquainted. I allude to Commodore Charles Morris—he who was First Lieutenant of the Constitution when she captured the English frigate Guerriere, and who spent fifty-seven years in active service, departing this life, at Washington, in 1857—before the rank of Admiral had been established in our navy. And in this connection I am reminded of an anecdote which may serve to illustrate how Com. Morris was wont to deal with derelict officers.

In the early part of 1844 I returned from the Mediterranean in the old Delaware line-of-battle ship, Commodore Morris in command. Among our officers was a midshipman whom I will call Marline. He has been transferred to the Delaware at Port Mahon, having, through the influence of official friends at Washington, obtained permission of the Secretary of the Navy to come home. Marline was a scion of one of the "First Families," and believed himself to be quite a gentleman. He could not associate with anything below him in social position. It was from his persistent persecution that a most worthy young midshipman, who has been raised from the lowly rank of apprentice-boy, was forced to leave the ship in which he had received his promotion. In short, Marline was a conceited, self-sufficient, arrogant snob; and while he chafed under the thought that he was outranked by a long line of passed-midshipmen, sailing-masters, lieutenants, commanders, captains, and commodores, he sought recompense in overbearing insolence toward his inferiors. He dressed in gaudy apparel, and wore white kids, even at sea.

During the latter part of February the old ship was being knocked about off the New England coast, in a vain endeavor to make Boston harbor; and after nearly all her sails had been blown from the bolt-ropes, she turned tail to the wind—on the first day of March—and made for Norfolk.

On day, while lying-to in a furious storm of sleet and snow, with life-lines rove fore and aft, Commodore Morris came out from the cabin, and took a survey of the scene. Not a man on board could walk more steadily than he; and after taking a few turns upon the quarter-deck, he stopped and cast a glance under the break of the poop, where, beneath the shelter of a ladder, crouched the midshipman of the watch—Mr. Marline. And this was Marline's usual method of doing duty when the weather was unpleasant. He was a skulk as well as a snob. I saw the Commodore's eyes snap and twinkle.

"Where is the midshipman of the watch?" he demanded.

The howl of the blast prevented his voice from reaching the sheltered nook beneath the ladder, and one of the men at the wheel aroused the middy, and informed him that the Commodore wanted him.

"Mr. Marline," said Morris, as the young gentleman came up, "are you on watch?"

"Yes, sir." "How long have you been in the service?"

"A little over two years, sir."

"So long as that? Then perhaps you have made up for your lack of knowledge touching the duties of an officer of the watch, by your knowledge of seamanship. Will you tell me how the topsail reef-tackles are rigged and rove?"

Marline looked up to where the close-reefed main-topsail was straining under the force of the gale, as though he would solve the problem by sight; but his eyes were not strong enough.

"Don't you know, sir? Can you tell me how you would connect the pendant and the reef-purton?"

The midshipman was silent. He had never bothered himself to remember how things were done which belonged to common sailors and riggers to do.

"You don't know, eh?" "Really, Commodore,—I—I—can't exactly—"

"I thought so; but you shall not long remain ignorant. You will go aloft, sir, to the main-topsail yard-arm, and learn for yourself how the reef-tackle is rigged."

"But—Commodore,—you do not mean—go—now?"

"Go now, sir! And I will wait here and hear your report."

Had a lieutenant ordered this, Marline would have refused point-blank; but he dared not disobey that grim old veteran. And he crept up the icy shrouds, the furious wind pinning him ever and anon to the rigging—crept up, slowly and painfully—clinging for dear life, and gasping for breath—crept out upon the yard, where he was swept to and fro through the sleety, snowy air in an arc of frightful length—crept out until he had gained the Flemish-horse, where he could find how the pendant was attached to the leech of the sail, and thence trace the tackle to the deck. He came down at length, looking very much like a frost-bitten turnip, and made his report.

"Thank you," said the Commodore, very politely. "Should I have any more questions to ask of you when on the watch, I shall look for you under the ladder."

But the Commodore did not catch our hero under the ladder again. A few weeks later, and Mr. Marline surrendered his warrant, and retired from the service in disgust.—N. Y. Ledger.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. J. F. ADAMS, UNDERTAKER.
RESIDENCE 28 Washington St., Portsmouth.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 19, 1870.

The News In Brief.

Mrs. J. P. Thurston has telegraphed to President Grant that she has bought the State of Maine.

Washington is gay again.

The Arrapahoe Indians view the arrival of Chinese in Texas with exultation:—it's so easy to lift their scalps with the "pig tail" attached.

Albert Speyer testifies that he bought gold in September during the panic at from 40 to 60 per cent., by the order of Fisk and Gould.

Another deaf man has had fun walking on a railroad track near Bellefontaine, Ohio. The cars struck him back of the hatchway, and he never will hear again in this world. Some one ought to whisper to these deaf people that it is unsafe to walk on the railroad.

Government officials are still obliged to pay an income tax.

The iron clads Terror and Agamenticus, and steamers Alaska and Benicia are ordered at once to Portland.

The Supreme Court met again on Monday. Attorney General Hoar announced the death of Judge Stanton, and presented resolutions of respect to his memory. The court adjourned to Tuesday.

Middletown, Conn., is Democratic by 65 majority.

Sharp engagements are reported in Cuba—but though the Spaniards claim all the victories, they do not seem to gain ground.

Ordway has called on Fisk and Gould at New York, with a summons to appear in Washington and testify in the investigation case of the gold panic of last September.

It is said that the Boylston Bank robbers are willing to divide equally with their victims.

There is much indisposition among members of Congress to continue the Bureau of Education under the present management.

The Veteran Observer predicts that the next census of the United States will show a population of 42,133,021—exclusive of San Domingo.

Governor Durkee of Utah died at his hotel in Chicago, Saturday morning, of pneumonia.

Pittsburg, Pa., has had a thunder storm. Ditto Chicago.

Despatches received give accounts of great destruction of life and property by a severe storm of rain in the west on Monday. In Kentucky there was a terrible tornado.

CONGRESS.—On Tuesday, the Senate passed the House bill prohibiting the retired officers from assignment to duty which would entitle them to full pay for their services.

Sumner introduced a bill regulating telegraphic lines and cables to foreign countries.

Mr. Sumner, from the committee on foreign relations, reported, without amendment, the bill providing for the adjustment and satisfaction of the claims of American citizens for spoliations committed by the French prior to July 31, 1801. The claims are to be adjusted by three commissioners to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and are to be paid to an amount not exceeding $5,000,000 by the United States.

The Virginia bill was defeated, and Mr. Steward moved to lay it on the table and consider the House bill. Carried, yeas 25, nays 53.

Mr. Edmunds of Vermont submitted the amendment which has been incorporated in the Senate bill, requring the imposition of an oath in the case of each member of the legislature and State officer, that said persons are not ineligible to hold office under the fourteenth amendment.

Mr. Ferry of Connecticut said he was opposed to the amendment, as it would imperil admission, and he was opposed to all amendments for this reason.

Mr. Edmunds thought that men whose hands had already been laid upon the Constitution, should be compelled to swear that they were not traitors to it.

Mr. Thayer of Nebraska addressed the Senate at length in behalf of the loyal people of Virginia, who, he said, were asking in vain for security and protection. He finally yielded to a motion for an executive session.

In the House, among the bills referred was one repealing the tonnage tax on American vessels.

A bill was introduced that newspaper manuscript and corrected proofs passing between authors and correspondents of newspapers, shall be placed on the same footing as book manuscripts, and shall pass in mails at the rate of printed matter.

Mr. Cox of New York introduced a bill constituting eight hours a day's labor for all laborers, workmen and mechanics in government employment.

NAVAL RANK AGAIN.—The grand question whether the Staff Officers of our navy are officers or not, is now being brought to the notice of Congress; what answer that body will make remains to be seen. That something will be yielded to the earnest representations of the staff and the persistent demands of almost the entire press of the country, is pretty certain; that full justice will be done is not so sure.

Even the restoration of the rank and pay wrongfully taken from the staff by an illegal act of arbitrary power, will not settle the question now,—though it may smooth it over for a time. The staff did not "agitate" for their rightful rank and pay until even what they did have was stolen from them to satisfy the wretched snobocracy of caste; but the question virtually raised by the naval aristocracy, as to which owns which—the Union the navy or the navy the Union—has had its proper effect; and now the people demand that the popular branch of the service,—the surgeons, who represent the professional, as the paymaster or the business, and the engineers, the entire mechanical and industrial interests of the country,—shall have as much reward for their services as those receive who have not half their claim to it.

Less than justice will not satisfy the staff now—certainly will not satisfy the people. We are becoming a democratic people—caste has received some staggering blows within the last twenty years; but our naval "line" have labored hard (and successfully too,) to drive back republicanism from the navy; a vast nursery of caste has been established, and is paid for through the nose, by the people, to foster and sustain the aristocracy; and an organized and desperate resistance is to be made to any encroachment on their "vested right" to get all the honors of the naval service,—no matter who really wins them.

Will Congress dare to do justice to the staff, in face of the arrogant and supercilious line? We shall see—and soon. To illustrate the comical insolence of the premises laid down by the line, I take the following from the Charlestown Advertiser:

A line officer in 1869, unblushingly wrote as follows:—"Any amount of money and political influence will be forthcoming at the proper time, it necessary, to resist the unparallelled impudence and assumption of the subordinate branch of the Navy (the staff) to the honors and dignities of the line." In another place he says, referring to the line: "They will not, however, be coerced in this matter. Neither the press, nor the Congressional Committee can influence Vice-Admiral Porter; Equality with line officers is simply absurd."

There! I wonder whether our Congressmen dare affront a body of men imbued with the above expressed republican sentiments, by declaring that if a staff officer earns a grade in rank or a $ in money, he is as much entitled to it in justice, and shall be by law, as the line officer who earns a similar step or sum? The officer whose writings I have quoted has enlightened me on one important point; for until I read his article I had always supposed that the citizens of the U. S., thro' their delegated legislators, had some voice in naval affairs. In this it seems I was mistaken. Congressional Committees will not "influence" a line officer to do justice. Very well. Let them "influence" Congress to do it—which will answer the purpose just as well.

The spirit of caste evinced by the line—which led them on every possible occasion during the late war to snub, and injure with petty annoyances, the volunteer officers from the merchant service; which was exhibited in a marked manner in the case of Seely, who received a ridiculously light punishment for his savage cruelty, while his commander (who, according to line logic, was responsible for everything done in the ship, and consequently should have "unlimited powers,") went scot free; and which upheld and applauded Selfridge while censuring Surgeon Green!—is a disgrace not only to the navy, but to our boasted democracy. And every man who regards the interests of the country before those of a class must condemn it—and its fruits.

About Surgeon Green. As far as he is personally concerned, it matters little what Congress may do in his case—a man with the high moral and professional courage displayed by Mr. Green can take very good care of himself. But as an act of justice to the nation, his sentence should be revoked, and he reinstated in his proper position.

And while Congress is considering the question of caste, (or naval rank) it would be well for them to enquire what benefit the country enjoys from the institution at Annapolis which has done so much to create and sustain a naval aristocracy? And whether enormous sums are not annually expended, from the people's Treasury, for no other purpose whatever than to keep "the people" out of the "line"—for the sole benefit and support of one privileged class? I propose to have more to say on this subject, soon. PAKEHA.

The Baptists of Salem have dedicated a new church. The shoe business of Salem is now going ahead with great vigor, two large shops, recently closed, having taken a new start.

The Peterborough Transcript says that the iron for the Manadnock Railroad is contracted for.

A young man in Nashua, named Eugene Meighen, has refused the offer of $200, from a Bostonian, for his dog "Trouble."

One of the robbers of Abel Baker at Hamilton, was arrested at Northfield. His name is Abram Williams, colored, aged thirty-five. A belt was found under his clothing, containing from seven to eight pounds of silver coin from different countries. Three pocketbooks were also discovered, which contained about $250, in old State bills of Salem, Beverly and other banks, and $50 or more in national bills. Williams has spent but little of his share of the money.

In Concord, six boys were sliding down School street on a "double team," when the sled ran against a tree, and James H. Larkin, son of the Postmaster, had his right leg broken. Two or three others were considerably hurt.

On New Year's night at Janesville, Wis., Miss Jennie S. Sanborn of Lake Village bore off the prize of an elegant pair of skates, for the most tasteful costume. Miss S. appeared as a fairy queen.

The ladies of the Unitarian Society in Dover are at work sewing carpets for the residence of their new pastor on Central St. The relations of the church and their new pastor are of the warmest kind, and affairs are progressing swimmingly.

The Universalist Society in Dover are about wiping out a debt of $1800, which the Dover Gazette says has been as a dead weight upon the society for more than twenty years.

A resident of Chichester walked half a mile on stilts, with a rooster in his arms the other day, on a bet.

—In New Sharon, Maine, Saturday last, John Fletcher, a constable, with a posse, attempted the arrest of Ezekiel Tolman, for debt, when an affray occurred between the posse and a number of persons aiding Tolman in resisting. Several were wounded on both sides in the affray. John S. Tolman, brother of Ezekiel, attacked Fletcher with a fire shovel, when Fletcher fired a pistol, the ball taking effect in Tolman's groin, and he died in twenty minutes.

—An exchange has grown discursive on the subject of oysters. It gravely informs us that "the oyster is known to science as a marine acephalous mollusc of the lamellibranchiate order of the genus ostrea." We feel better, now, and henceforth we think we shall know what we are eating.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills work admirably together as remedies for the affections of the Chest, Lungs and Throat, so common at this season. A few doses of the Pills at once alleviate the general febrile symptoms, and the Ointment faithfully rubbed over the seat of the complaint produces an immediate and powerful local effect; neutralizing and subduing the internal irritation and soon enabling the sufferer to "breathe freer and deeper." This treatment will cure a Cough that resists all other remedies. Sold by all Druggists.

The Living Machine.

Injure the main spring of a watch and every portion of the works becomes disordered. The human stomach is to the human system what that elastic piece of metal is to a chronometer. It influences the action of the other organs, and controls, to a certain extent, the whole living machine. The comparison may be carried further; for as the weakness or other imperfections of the main spring is indicated on the face of the timepiece, so also is the weakness or other disorder of the stomach betrayed by the face of the individual. The complexion is sallow or faded, the eyes are deficient in lustre and intelligence, and there is a worn, anxious expression in the whole countenance which tell as plainly as written words could do, that the great neurasthenic organ whose office it is to minister to the wants of the body, and to sustain and renew all its parts, is not performing its duty.

It requires renovating and regulating, and to accomplish this end Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be truly said to be the one thing needful. The broken main spring of a watch may be replaced by a new one, but the stomach can only be repaired and strengthened, and this is one of the objects of the famous vegetable restorative which for eighteen years has been waging a successful contest with dyspepsia in all climates. As a specific for indigestion it stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopœia have been exhausted, without, at best, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome and palatable, yet powerful stomachic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland, as well as upon the stomach and bowels, the Bitters act with singular distinctness, regulating and reinvigorating every secretive and assimilating organ on which bodily and mental health depend.

A HUMBUG.

How often we hear this expression from persons reading advertisements of Patent Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they may be right.

It is over 22 years since I introduced DR. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT, to the public. I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and storekeepers through a small section of the country, many taking it with great reluctance; but I told them to let any one have it, and if it did not do all I stated on my pamphlet, no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were taken on trial by persons present. I was, by many, thought crazy, and that would be the last they would see of me.

But I knew my medicine was no humbug. In about two months I began to receive orders for more Liniment, some calling it my valuable Liniment, who had refused to sign a receipt when I left it at their store. Now my sales are millions of bottles yearly, and all for cash.

I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Vomiting, Spasms, and Sea-sickness, as an internal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally—see oath accompanying each bottle—and externally for Chronic, Rheumatism, Headache, Mumps, Frosted Feet, Bruises, Sprains, Old Sores, Swellings, Sore Throats, &c., &c.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

What the Doctors Say:

AMOS WOOLLEY, M. D., of Kosciusko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM extensively, in my practice, and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County, Ohio, says: "ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM not only sells rapidly but gives perfect satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medicinal properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success. As an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet tried."

NATHANIEL HARRIS, M. D., of Middlebury, Vermont, says; I have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY

OF THE UNITED STATES,

Office No. 92 Broadway, New York.

The Most Successful Life Insurance Company in the World.

All Surplus Premiums of Profits returned to the Policy-holders, instead of being partially or wholly appropriate to the use of the Stockholders, as is the usage with all "Mixed" and "Proprietary" Companies.

Dividends made Annually, from the start, and not postponed until the third, fourth or fifth year as in most other Companies.

Profits apportioned to the assured on the "Contribution plan," which is conceded to be the only equitable mode of division; and not by the mode adopted by many companies, which is grossly unjust to a large proportion of the Policy-holders.

Assets in Cash, $15,000,000.

(None of this is in the Notes-of-hand of Policy-holders, as in many other Companies.)

Its Annual Income, $8,000,000

(No portion of this is composed of Promissory-Notes, as in all Note-Companies.)

The Cash Income is constantly increasing with tremendous rapidity, and as a necessary consequence, swelling the enormous cash accumulation which forms the security to Policy-holders.

All Premiums and all Losses Paid in Cash.

No Promissory-Notes to be deducted from the face of the Policy when it matures, as in all Note-Companies.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

One thousand experiments

were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitly more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

THE CREEK CESS-POOL. — Messrs. Frank Jones, Francis Jarvis and the Eastern Railroad Company have been indicted by the grand jury at Exeter, for aiding in maintaining a nuisance near their places of business in this city. We hope, now that the law has been invoked to rid this section of the city of the intolerable nuisance, that it will be ascertained who is really responsible and that the responsible parties will be compelled to abate it. All that the residents in that vicinity ask is that they may no longer be obliged to breathe the suffocating stench which arises in warm weather; and we have no doubt, if the arraigned parties legally are found responsible, that the long-wished for relief will be speedy. The cess-pool has been a great disgrace to our city for years.

☞ A very large and handsome Hog, of the Chester White breed, 18 months old, and raised by Mr. Daniel H. Spinney of this city, was dressed by Mr. J. F. Adams yesterday, and will be shown by him on Market Square this morning. We never saw a better patterned live hog, or fatter or handsomer pork, and the weight is estimated at over 700 lbs. It is not for sale, but for home use.

Mr. Adams also dressed a pig last week for Mr. John Bennett, eight months old, which weighed 330, and gained 1 13-20 lb per day for 231 days, —rather beating our York pig. By the way, did we print Squib's figures as he wrote them, or did we make the mistake in the reckoning as printed?

☞ At the Annual Parish Meeting of the Middle St. Baptist Society, held on Monday evening, Messrs. Horton D. Walker, J. D. Akerman and J. C. Carr were re-elected Wardens. Horton D. Walker was re-elected Treasurer, and Henry C. Walker, Clerk. The Treasurer made his Report,—which shew the Society to be flourishing—square with the world and a surplus left in the treasury.

PORTRAITS OF GEN. WHIPPLE AND ADMIRAL STORER. — The Dusseldorf (Germany) Press says that among the finest and most costly Portraits now in the various studios in that city, (and the number is very large) are those for the Schawbe National Galleries of Fallen Heroes in Boston. They are life size, and mostly full length. Among them are nearly completed, exceedingly fine paintings of the late Maj. General Whipple, and Rear Admiral Storer, of Portsmouth, N. H. They are well designed by Cappelow; the perspective, coloring and anatomy are admirable. These, with others, have drawn a large number of visitors to the studios, from abroad. The Schwabe galleries in Boston, which are open to all, are considered the largest portrait collections in the world, when they are completed, with those which are now in progress in the various studios in Europe. In costliness and workmanship of art, the Leipsic Gazette says, "they cannot be surpassed, and must be an honor to any country."

We are pleased also to learn that the portrait of the late A. Stow Laighton, of the U. S. N. of this city, is also nearly completed, in Dresden, and is of the same rare workmanship as the above.

☞ Sunday morning found a nice level coating of snow and ice on the ground, and the best sleighing of the season; but the warm sun soon melted all away, and now the ground is entirely bare. The weather is like April, the frost is all coming out, and mud abounds. The lumbermen, wood-choppers and ice men, have had less opportunity thus far, than the builders, stone-wall makers, &c. But we shall have Winter enough yet.

☞ A stray horse and sleigh was found at Noble's Island on Monday. The team was the property of a Mr. Goodwin of North Berwick, and was stolen while he was at church.

WOMEN may hold meetings and talk and prate of wrongs until the crack of doom; but this matter will not be helped until they prove that they honor and respect labor for labor's sake, and learn to show no less respect, at any rate, to the girl who sews for a living, than to the fine lady who rolls through the street in her carriage. Labor must be honored in the first place, and then women must be taught to fill places of labor with honor. Girls must be taught that is as disgraceful and contemptible for them to loll and laze about the house, as it is for their brothers to idle and lounge in the streets; that a woman loafer is as bad as a man loafer—then some reformation may be expected, and not till then.

Important victories are claimed for the Cuban insurgents.

Hon. Lot M. Morrill, Republican, was chosen U. S. Senator by the Maine legislature on Tuesday. The Senate gave him 27 votes to 3 for Isaac Reed. House; Morrill 100, Reed 20.

Correspondence Chronicle and Gazette.

YORK, Jan. 17th.

Ninety days since, Mr. Elijah Harmon was thrown from a loaded team, the wheel passing over his leg, breaking it above the knee. Since that time he has been confined to the house, and on Sunday while his wife was at church, he got up, and was walking upon crutches, when one of them slipped upon the floor, and the poor fellow was thrown down, again breaking the same leg. Drs. Eastman and Hazen were immediately called. He still suffers intense pain. It seems hard indeed, as he is poor and his family were dependent on his daily labor for sustenance. I learn that the neighbors have been very charitable toward the family thus far since the first accident, and it is to be hoped they will now feel that "it is more blessed to give than to receive." All who give in this case, may do so feeling assured that their kindnesses will be duly appreciated and kindly remembered by the now distressed family.

Mr. Nathaniel Webber, aged 78 years, was found dead in bed on Monday morning, having died sometime during the night. Supposed cause, disease of heart. Deceased was a highly estimable citizen, having represented the town in the State Legislature several years, and held offices of trust and honor. "They are passing away."

Your informant of births who says, "To Mr. Chas. A. Ramsdell, a daughter," made a trifling mistake. He came within one of it, as the infant happens to be of the other sex—and is a boy, intirely! Yours, &c., C.

The Philadelphia Ledger Almanac for 1870, published by George W. Childs as a New Year's gift to the subscribers to The Ledger, is a handsome and valuable work. Eighty thousand copies are to be given away, and Mr. Childs announces that it will be continued yearly. Not its least merit is its remarkable cheapness; and that so many copies should be given away, is another evidence of the enterprise of Mr. Childs. The Almanac is at once a courtesy to the subscribers to the Ledger, and an advertisement of The Ledger; and it is clear that Mr. Childs practices in his own business the principles he recommends to the public.

—Mrs. Gaudelle of North Adams recently presented her husband with three bouncing boys, all of whom are living and doing well.

☞ The New Hampshire Gazette for this week, is now ready for delivery at the Chronicle office. Price 5 cts. per copy—$2. per year. Contains all the Local and other reading from the Daily Chronicle.

MALT EXTRACT—
Is already recommended by our leading physicians, as a tonic and a nutrient (ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO LADIES) with the most satisfactory results. This beverage is extensively used where all spirituous liquors and ales are discarded, as it differs from all other malt preparation, being ALMOST FREE FROM ALCOHOL, and therefore neither intoxicating nor irritating; as it contains MORE NUTRIMENT THAN PORTER, ALE, OR THE STRONGEST BEER. ja3

GREAT AUCTION SALE OF FUR GOODS.
The ENTIRE STOCK of the well known House of MESSRS. COOK & ALDRICH, at No. 147 Washington Street, opposite the Old South Church.
Wednesday, Jan. 19, at 11 o'cl'k, A. M.,
At the store of Messrs. Cook & Aldrich, as above
Will be sold their stock of fur goods, one of the largest and most attractive stocks in the city, embracing nearly everything in the line of manufactured fur goods for ladies' and gentlemen's use.
This establishment is too well known to require any extended comments in an advertisement.
The object of this sale is to close out entirely, if possible, the balance of this season's stock.
The goods can be seen and purchased at private sale till the auction. Catalogues will be ready on Monday morning, 17th inst. An auction of so extensive and really desirable articles of furs, &c., very seldom occurs, and should interest the public. ja15

DENTAL CARD.
DR. GOODALL respectfully announces that owing to the decline in Gold, he is now able to buy all Dental Materials at a reduction from former prices, and therefore will reduce the price of artificial teeth from $25 to $20 for upper or lower sets, mounted in blocks (with gums)—the very best of work and materials and the highest style of finish. Price of temporary sets reduced to $16 dollars.
He has for an Assistant a very superior and competent Dentist, and can mount whole sets of teeth IN ONE DAY, when POSITIVELY necessary for patients from a distance. In this as in all other branches of Dentistry, terms cash, and satisfaction guaranteed.

Morning Chronicle.

PIG HUNTING,

— OR, THE —

Pursuit Of Pork Under Difficulties.

A TAIL OFF RYE BEACH.

Written For the Chronicle and Gazette.

BY EFF.

The Pig is an animal of much prowess, and one we hold in high esteem. Neither is he so great a fool as usually regarded, as the learned pigs and others have demonstrated. Although commonly considered very filthy, he will, if given the opportunity, keep his premises much cleaner than the noble and intelligent horse; and as for stupidity, we never could see wherein the cow one whit excelled him for knowledge. For stubbornness, or obstinacy, persistence or perseverance — whatever the quality may be termed—we will allow his pigship [does rather take the palm; though even here, the contrary or balky horse is hard to beat—and often gets severely beaten for it, like the hog, but not often conquered, take either side.

But it is not a moral disquisition on swine, that we are upon; but a simple recital of facts in the history of one porker, that we shall relate. And if we should venture a word upon the propriety of eating pork, we could at least say that much of the animal's own health, and the consequent soundness of his meat, depends on how he is kept and where, and what he feeds upon. And we could never understand how the wild western or southern hog, who runs at large in the open air, and feeds on mast and other clean food, can be less healthful than the northern or eastern porker, who usually lives and breathes and has his whole being, on and in a fetid manure heap.

But let that pass, and let us come to our pig—although it will be seen that was not so easy, literally. A lean, muscular pig can run like a race-horse; and we have been told that wild ones at the South will travel on the top of a stone-wall like a squirrel! For ourself, we once saw a shoat start from the sty of the Rockingham House at Epping, and although half the town was after him, they didn't catch him; and the last we saw of him he was half a mile off, going up a high hill alone, having distanced every pursuer; and for aught we can say, he may be going it still. Let him go.

Pigs are of many varieties, like their human patrons, whom in flesh they are said to resemble, and whom in disposition they are often not unlike. Between the terrible wild boar, and the chunky little suckling pigs which a Newington farmer last summer laid on the ground in Market Square, and picked up when he pleased—is as much difference, perhaps, as between the most terrible and most loveable man.

A pig we remember when a boy, a black and white shoat from a Cincinnati drove, was always highly esteemed for his quiet and silent disposition; and when he grew to dress 300 lbs., and was killed, a long darning-needle found imbedded in his tongue, so that he could not curl it up to squeal, was assigned as the reason for his stillness. And by the way, though he was killed in Christmas week, to secure cold weather, so warm was it that the pork never cooled at all, but was always soft and flabby. Fat needs cold climates, and cold climates need fat. Let them have it.

Now for our tale,—which is not our tale at all, but only re-tailed by us, from first hands. Once on a time, a substantial farmer of Rye bought from a drove a shoat,—a thin, wiry, long-snouted fellow, with ears and tail cropped close to his body. He ate well and grew well, but would not stay in his sty except when he wanted to. Time and time again he got out, jumping over the top until they built it too high for him; and then shoving his sharp nose and his body after it, between the horizontal rails of his pen.

Ere long he came to be well known in all the neighborhood,—the pest of his owner and his family and neighbors, and the amusement of the summer boarders all about. In one of his escapades he led his master (?) and a boy two or three miles, and brought up in Breakfast Hill woods, whence he was dislodged with great difficulty, and took refuge in a farmer's cow-yard near. The boy here attempted to catch him, but how can you hold a pig without tail or ears?

The happy possessor (?) of the erratic swine, standing outside the long bars, saw him coming, head on for said bars; and although they were all in place, and by no means far apart, our hero knew well enough that the pig, though now grown to be considerable of a hog, would go between those bars like a shot. So he was all ready for him, and when he did come through with a rush, his owner, a man of dignity and standing (about six feet) in the community, literally fell upon him, and crushing him to the earth, held him until his legs were tied, and so he was carried home.

Only once more after this did he escape; and this time he made a sea-voyage of it. One day when his owner was at dinner, his neighbor and brother came in and said, The pig is out, and gone down towards the beach (which was a mile or more away;) I will walk along, and when you get done dinner, you take the wagon and follow, and we'll catch him. Ah! luckless boast, for which they paid full dear. After a long race, in which piggy ran the whole length of the beach, he on the water-side of the ridge of sand and stones thrown up by the sea, and his pursuers on the other; when they came west to the Atlantic bath-houses, now, thinks the well-blown hunter, we can come out and head him off.

But no — presto, change! away he goes, down on the point, out upon the rocks, and jumping into the sea, heads straight for the Shoals. Then was there astonishment, and running in hot haste. Not a boat was to be had nearer than Rye Harbor, about three miles distant; and when they had put to sea and finally caught up with the pig, he was four miles off shore, and still heading for Hog Island. He was with much difficulty pulled in, carried home, and this time so securely fastened there, that he never got out again.

Yes! he did, too, and here is where the chief joke comes in. Mr. L. L. P. was the owner; and by-and-bye the time came when the hog was fit to kill. So Mr. A. J. was professionally called upon. All being in readiness, it was decided to pass a line round his body, with a slip-noose, hoist him up, and then apply the knife. But this pig was not going to yield to any such inglorious weapon. Five or six times he laid flat down, and let the rope slip off over his fore legs and body; and as he had neither ears nor tail, and was very savage to approach, it was deemed best to open the pen, and depend on catching him unawares in the road. Catch a weasel asleep! Up the road he ran, then down, mile heats or more; his pursuers now heading him off, and then leaping a wall to evade his attacks. It was astonishing to see how J. could get those big boots of his over the fence so quick. Nor was P. at all slow in saving himself, either.

After a long chase, in goes P. and gets his gun; and when the boys drive the pig up to the house again, where were J. and P. to receive him, over the wall goes J. once more, to keep out of the porker's open mouth. P. stands his ground a little better, having the gun; and when the enraged animal came close upon him, he let him have the charge in his shoulder. But nothing daunted, the animal pressed on, and Mr. P. attempting to keep him off, and to escape into the yard, partly climbed and was partly pushed up over the fence, by resting the muzzle of the gun against the front part of the mad hog's body.

Now although pig was not yet eat, nor even beat, yet he ran crying down the street; and jumping into a roadside pond, (and it was cold weather,) ran under the wall, and into a ditch through a meadow. The banks were too high and icy for him to climb out, so on he kept for a long distance, till the gutter ended on higher ground, when he emerged, and again gave chase to his recent followers. Over a wall again they go; and when he puts his fore feet up on the wall to look at and no doubt rejoice over them, Mr. P. placing his gun close to his head, put a bullet through his brain. And this was the end of poor piggy, who, if he did not die in peace, no doubt was buried in a pot of grease. Our friend P. does not buy pigs out of droves, since that experience—which we think may be called going the whole hog or the entire swine.

THE LORRAINE VEGETABLE

CATHARTIC PILL.

DR. LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILL,

LA MEDICINE CURATIVE.

Mild, Certain, Safe, Efficient. It is far the best Cathartic remedy yet discovered, and at once relieves and invigorates all the vital functions, without causing injury to any of them. The most complete success has long attended its use in many localities; and it is now offered to the general public with the confidence that it can never fail to accomplish all that is claimed for it. It produces little or no pain; leaves the organs free from irritation, and never constipates or excites the nervous system. In all diseases of the skin, blood, stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys,—of children, and in many difficulties peculiar to women, it brings prompt relief and certain cure. The best physicians recommend and prescribe it; and no person who once uses this, will voluntarily return to the use of any other cathartic.

The Chronicle.

A HOMELY LIFE.

A wrinkled, bent, old woman, she,
Who had no comeliness of face
Unless you saw, as children did,
The gleam of inward grace.

Alone she lived. Her home was poor;
In lowliness her lot was cast;
In humble, homely toil her days,
From youth to age, were passed.

She murmured not that Life was hard,
Without complaint did her duty.
Yea, more, in very gladness walked.
Questioned not Life's beauty.

She was not wise as men call wise;
Among the learned she had no place;
But night and morn she read The Book;
Drew thence a wondrous grace.

She truly loved her Father, God;
As truly loved his creatures all;
Would turn aside to save from pain,
The meanest things that crawl.

She envied not her neighbor's good;
Her heart rejoiced not in his fall;
Her ear she closed to Scandal's voice,
Had charity for all.

She talked not much of inner life;
To grace no loud pretensions made;
But all knew whence her lamp was filled
By the clear light displayed.

She never spoke in meeting, but
In humble ways she served her Lord;
The cup of water often gave,
Nor thought of the reward.

With ready hand and kindly word
She helped the suffering and the poor;
She gave her mite—'twas all she had;
Could men or angels more?

So, waiting not for greater gifts,
She promptly did the good she could;
And He who sees not as men see
Remembers what we would.

And though in toil her days were passed,
And that she lived was known to few,
I'm sure that in The Book of Life
Is the name of Martha Drew.

EMILY PEARSON.

LIBERIA FACTS AND STATISTICS.—Liberia in 1869.—What do we see, today, as the results of fifty years' labor of the Society?

We see the foreign and domestic slave trade and polygamy utterly abolished on 1000 miles of the West coast. We see there a well-regulated Republic, geographically as large as New England, with a Constitution like our own, wisely administered by colored men. We see there 20,000 Americo-Liberians, in some 40 different settlements; 5,700 re-captives from slave ships,—civilized, educated in the Liberia schools, assimilated to Christian habits, and received as citizens into the bosom of the State. Some of these recaptives are now effective preachers of the Gospel and members of the Legislature. We see 600,000 of the native population, within the Republic, cheerfully obedient to its laws,—speaking the English language, and having already a civilization of a higher order than that of the masses of ancient Greece and Rome,—for it is a civilization that is informed and moulded, to some extent, by Christianity. We have a College there, with an able faculty of liberally educated colored men, and 40 students in the collegiate and preparatory departments; three Academies, and our New England system of District Schools introduced. The steam engine is there,—the sugar mill, and the printing press, that great instrument of civilization. Two or three newspapers are published there, edited with ability, in the various columns of which we see all the indications of a prosperous and thriving State.

But, best of all, there are over 50 churches there, in which are found about 2,000 converts from the native population. We are doing the Foreign Missionary work there as fast and as effectively as it is done by any Board of Missions.

Such is Liberia in 1870. It is, thro' God's blessing, a triumphant success. The scheme of colonization was and is a noble conception, encircling in its wide and benevolent embrace a nation of slaves, a continent of heathen, and perhaps we may add, the future peace of our own country.

The whole cost of this fifty years' work, for the purchase of territory and transporting emigrants, has been less than the average daily cost of our war during the last half year of its continuance. That daily cost was estimated at 3,000,000 per day:—the whole amount expended by the Colonization Society in fifty years is $2,662,059!

When or where has so much been accomplished in the interest of humanity and a christian civilization at so little cost?

Shall not this good work go on? More than 2,000 freedmen—a large portion of them christain men and women,—are anxious to go ahead in spreading our civilization in their Fatherland. J. R. C.

—At a marriage ceremony in Wickford, lately, the groom became impatient during the extended prayer, and interrupted the clergyman with "Elder, ain't that 'beout 'nough?"

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
Late Agent of the United States Patent Office, Washington, under the Act of 1837,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Bonds, Assignments, and all papers or drawings for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made into American and Foreign works, to determine the validity and utility of Patents or inventions, and legal and other advice rendered on all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
During eight months the subscriber, in the course of his large practice, made on twice rejected applications, SIXTEEN APPEALS, EVERY ONE of which was decided IN HIS FAVOR by the Commissioner of Patents.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me THIRTEEN applications, in all but ONE of which patents have been granted, and that one is now pending. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGHART."

STATE BANKS,—GREENBACKS. — In the case of the Veazie Bank of Maine vs. Jeremiah Fenno, Collector of Internal Revenue, the United States Supreme Court rendered a decision recently. The arguments for the bank were: first, that the disputed tax is a direct tax, not apportioned among the States, conformably to the Constitution; second, that the act imposing the tax invades a franchise granted by the State.

The opinion of the Court, which was delivered by Chief Justice Chase, is a document long enough to make three or four closely printed columns of this paper. It goes as far back as 1796 for decisions concerning analogous taxes, and cites the history of the bills for bank-note taxation since 1862. Its conclusion is that Congress has full authority to tax the circulation of State banks. On the incidental question of a national currency, the decision says it cannot be doubted that Congress may constitutionally authorize the emission of bills of credit, and adds:

It is not important here to decide whether the quality of legal tender in payment of debts can be constitutionally imputed to these bills; but it is enough to say that there can be no question of the power of the Government to emit them, to make them receivable in payment of debts to itself, to fit them for use by those who see fit to use them in all the transactions of commerce, to provide for their redemption in coin or otherwise, and thus to make them a currency uniform in value and description, and convenient and useful for circulation.

Judges Nelson and Davis dissented from the decision, on the ground that the taxation of State banks is an unjustifiable attempt to crush them out of existence. The constitutionality of the Legal Tender act may be considered virtually settled.

SONG OF A HORSE.

A poor old stage horse, lank and thin,
Not much else but bones and skin,
I jog along, week out, week in,
Kicked and cursed and meanly fed,
Jammed in the side and jerked by the head,
And the thing I can't at all make out
I swhat on earth it's all about.

Why was I made to toil and tug
For this little odd human bug,
Two-legged, dumpy as a jug.
Who sits aloft my ribs to batter—
Or why was he made, for that matter?
And, if I needs must be created,
Why is it that I was not fated
To prance and caper, finely mated,
Silver-harnessed, sleek and fat,
With groom and blanket, and all that?

Here I go, day after day,
Pounding and slipping down Broadway,
Dragging these curious biped things,
With fore legs gone and yet no wings—
Where they all go to I don't know,
Nor why in the world they hurry so,
Nor what good use Heaven puts them to!

It wasn't my fault, you see, at all, [small,
That my joints grew big and my muscles
And so I missed a rich man's stall.
I'm clumsy, stupid, crooked, slow,
Yet the meanest horse is a horse, you know,
As well as the glossiest nag that go.

O Lord! how long will they use me so?
And when may the equine spirit go
Where glorified horses stand in a row,
Switching their bright tails to and fro,
Careless of either wheels or whoa?
Where oats are always apropos,
And flies don't grow!
Oh, no!
Oh!

CONGRESS.—In the Senate, the debate on the Virginia bill was continued. In the House the great feature of the day was a powerful speech by Mr. Dawes, rebuking the executive department for unfaithfulness to the republican party's pledge of economy in the administration of the government.

He questioned whether the state of the Treasury warranted the enhancing of expenses, and called the attention of the House to the estimates furnished for navy yards during the next fiscal year, as follows:—Portsmouth, N. H., $577,000, against $50,000 last year; Boston, $747,341, against $100,000 last year; Philadelphia, $111,985, against $25,000 last year; New York, $838,511, against $100,000 last year; Washington, $551,775, against $50,000 last year; Norfolk, $258,312, against $30,000 last year. In short the Secretary of the Navy proposed, besides the $800,000 for League Island, a total expenditure of $3,607,394, against $451,000 last year.

While he knew the ungracious position he occupied, he proposed to speak plainly but truly to his party friends in the House. He knew there was not much comfort to be derived from the wounds of a friend. Andrew Johnson, in the last year of his administration, had estimated that he could carry on the government for $303,000,000, and that amount had been cut down over $20,000,000. What did their own administration estimate that it could carry on the administration of the government for a year for? Why $311,567,174 — an increase of more than twenty-eight millions over the amount required by Andrew Johnson, and an increase of $46,628,537 over the amount appropriated for the present year. But this included an error of over $7,000,000 in the footing up of the Post Office Department, which would reduce the increase to $42,000,000.

A LIVELY SENSATION AT TOLEDO.—A few days since, Toledo, Ohio, had a lively sensation. A young woman named Mary Goldsborough was arraigned in the Police Court for wearing male attire. She pleaded guilty, and was fined $18.20. The girl stated to the Court that she had dressed in men's garments for the past seven years, and that she had never been detected before. Within the time mentioned she had driven street cars in Cleveland for two years, and for a time she was employed as driver on a canal. Her parents died when she was quite young, and since she had became large enough she had supported herself. The appearance of the girl was extremely modest, and while relating her story she bowed her head and a deep blush mantled her face. In size she was less than the ordinary height, and rather slim. In complexion she was of the brunette, having a large, dark eye, black hair, cut short and parted on one side, and skin bearing the effects of out-door exposure. The outlines of her face were in every respect effeminate and girlish. Her voice was like that of a boy, and in her manner and expression she seemed like a lad of fourteen years of age. She was dressed in a black sack coat, with a dark vest, revealing between its lappels a white shirt bosom, and dark pants, cut in style. Immediately after her trial, which was witnessed by a gaping crowd of roughs, she left the court-room and disappeared.

—William Gorman, a painter in Foxboro' was found dead by the side of the highway on Monday morning. He had his lantern in one hand and umbrella in the other, and it is supposed he died from an attack of the painter's colic.

New York has had 400 cases of small pox since Oct. 1.

BOGUS REPORTS.—The newspaper reports of the political temperance meeting at Concord, having now been sifted, the amount of wheat is small. — A Judge Fowler, who was represented as being on hand, but declined to be run as Railroad Commissioner, writes to the Concord Patriot that he was not there, and tho' friendly to temperance, never joined the party. We presume he is a democrat.

A Dover correspondent, speaking of the Boston Journal's report, says:—It represented that Rev. Mr. Lyford, "a delegate from the Free Will Baptist Yearly Meeting," pledged the almost unanimous support of that denomination to the new party movement. But there is no clergyman of that name living in the State; Rev. F. H. Lyford, probably referred to, resides in Maine, and is not a member of the Yearly Meeting. This body held its meeting in June last, and of course sent no delegate to this convention. Mr. Lyford not only had no authority to speak for the F. W. Baptists of N. H., but, if he made the statements, misrepresented his brethren. Men of that denomination, generally will oppose the movement. The Morning Star, the able organ of the denomination—always outspoken for the temperance cause—will not favor the new party organization.

FATALLY BURNED.—On the morning of Sunday, soon after midnight, John Pease, a shoemaker, was pained extremely by a cancer upon the side of his face and rose to dress it, thinking that he might be relieved thereby. Very soon after, his son, who lives with him, heard an outcry, and running down stairs found the room full of smoke and his father almost naked, his clothes having burned off. In reaching his left hand over the lamp his nightshirt and cotton flannel undershirt caught fire, and in his effort to free himself his hands and face were burned. After six o'clock on Sunday, no pain was experienced by the burned man, but he died of his injuries at 11 o'clock in the evening. Mr. P. had suffered terribly from his cancer for over a year, which had manifested itself twenty years ago, but had not been active until within a year. His age was 75, and he leaves two sons.—Concord Pat.

A HIGHER LAW.—The laws made by human powers, against drunkenness, and other vices, may be evaded, and there are men whose business it is to aid in the evasion:—but the Higher Law, which punishes such vices by physical and mental penalties, cannot be evaded,—and will never be repealed.—On Monday morning, in Maine, the conductor of a passing train discovered in Westbrook, the dead body of Margaret Ann Thompson, a widow from St. John, N. B., who was employed in the vicinity as a housekeeper and had been missing since Friday. An empty whiskey bottle near by told the story. Stupefied she had sank down and frozen to death.

—An African Omaha hotel runner, with a droll grin, praised his house so loudly and denounced its rivals so fiercely, that a pompous eastern passenger finally roars out: "Stop that noise, there! we've heard enough of it." "All right, Sah," replies Sambo, with a scrape of the foot, and a grotesquely-polite gesture toward the battered rim of his hat: "all right Sah. Which road does you own, Sah, de Union Pacific or de Western?"

—During an alarm of fire in a schoolhouse in Easton, Pa., the scholars all waited till one of their number, a little crippled girl, had got safely out, and then they, with a rush, cleared the room. They had been taught to give the little cripple the precedence every day, and when the hour of peril came they did not forget their duty toward her, but remained perfectly quiet till she was safe. It was a beautiful incident.

—A Sunday School teacher was giving a lesson on Ruth. She wanted to bring out the kindness of Boaz in commanding the reapers to drop larger handfuls of wheat. "Now children," she said, "Boaz did another very nice thing for Ruth; can you tell me what it was?" "Married her," said one of the boys.

—"Professor," said a student in pursuit of knowledge concerning the habits of animals, "why does a cat, while eating, turn her head first one way and then the other?" "For the reason," replied the professor, "that she cannot turn it both ways at once."

Holloway's Pills.—TORPIDITY OF THE LIVER. There must be a proper and regular supply of bile to temper the blood and duly evacuate the bowels, or the body cannot be healthy. Of all evacuants and antibilious medicines in existence HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are the most effective and unfailing. Yet so gentle is their action that it does not in the slightest degree ensfeeble the system. On the contrary, by relieving it of obstructions and impurities, the Pills tend to restore its elasticity and vigor. Sold by all Druggists.

Health's Best Defence.

"The weak eatheith herbs," says St. Paul, so that eighteen hundred years ago the value of medicinal plants was appreciated. In the Old Testament botanical remedies are repeatedly recommended, but in no passage of sacred history is man recommended to swallow calomel, or blue pill, or any other mineral preparation. The sick were directed to eat herbs to strengthen them, to purify them, to heal them, to restore them. In that day the art of making vegetable extracts was unknown. The herbal medicines were mere infusions.

It was reserved for a later age to unite the sanitary essences of tonic, aperient and antibilious roots, barks and plants, with an active stimulant, and thus secure their rapid diffusion through the debilitated or disordered system. The crowning triumph of this effective mode of concentrating and applying the virtues of medicinal vegetables was achieved in the production of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Never before had a perfectly pure alcoholic stimulant been combined with the expressed juices of the finest specifics of the vegetable kingdom. Never, yet, though eighteen years have elapsed since its introduction, has this great restorative been equalled. It is taken at all seasons, in all climes, as the most potent safeguard against epidemics, as a protection against all unhealthy exhalations that produce debility or beget disease; as a remedy for intermittent and other malarious fevers; as an appetizer; as a sovereign cure for dyspepsia; as a general tonic and invigorant; as a gentle, painless aperient; as a blood depurent; as a nervine; as a cure for bilious affections; as a harmless anodyne; and as the BEST DEFENCE OF HEALTH under unfavorable circumstances, such as sedentary pursuits, undue bodily or mental exertion, hardship, privation and exposure.

A HUMBUG.

How often we hear this expression from persons reading advertisements of Patent Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they may be right.

It is over 22 years since I introduced DR. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT, to the public. I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and storekeepers through a small section of the country, many taking it with great reluctance; but I told them to let any one have it, and if it did not do all I stated on my pamphlet, no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were taken on trial by persons present. I was, by many, thought crazy, and that would be the last they would see of me.

But I knew my medicine was no humbug. In about two months I began to receive orders for more Liniment, some calling it my valuable Liniment, who had refused to sign a receipt when I left it at their store. Now my sales are millions of bottles yearly, and all for cash.

I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Vomiting, Spasms, and Sea-sickness, as an internal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally—see oath accompanying each bottle—and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Mumps, Frosted Feet, Bruises, Sprains, Old Sores, Swellings, Sore Throats, &c., &c.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

What the Doctors Say:

AMOS WOOLLEY, M. D., of Koscinsko County, Indiana, says: "For three years past I have used ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM extensively, in my practice, and I am satisfied there is no better medicine for lung disease in use."

ISAAC A. DORAN, M. D., of Logan County, Ohio, says: "ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM not only sells rapidly but gives perfect satisfaction in every case within my knowledge. Having confidence in it and knowing that it possesses valuable medicinal properties, I freely use it in my daily practice and with unbounded success. As an expectorant it is most certainly far ahead of any preparation I have ever yet known."

NATHANIEL HARRIS, M. D., of Middlebury, Vermont, says: I Have no doubt it will soon become a classical remedial agent for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and the Lungs.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY

In Medication.

The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring to overcome for years, has at length been obviated. A vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge.

DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S

is the most important medicinal novelty that modern chemistry has produced. It contains two botanical extracts, perfectly harmless in themselves, but embodying all the remedial properties of mercury, and destined in this pleasant form to supersede and banish from general use, the nauseous pills and portions of which that dangerous excitant is the main ingredient. More than One thousand experiments were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and altogether the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever.

In Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feebler sex are subject, the Lozenge will be found infinitely more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an antibilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopœia.

☞ It is guaranteed that no one who has once tried Dr. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S Liver and Stomach Lozenge, will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught or pill.

NOTICE. — CIRCULARS AND SHOW CARDS sent to dealers free of expense.

If your druggist has not these Lozenges on hand, write to the Proprietors, enclosing 50 cents, and a box will be sent free of postage.

☞ The Empire Minstrels, a local company from this city having members of considerable talent in the heel-and-toe line, gave a Concert at Kittery, Saturday evening, which was attended by a large audience.

THE MASQUERADE.—Mr. Trafton has disposed of nearly all the floor tickets for this evening. They have been taken rapidly, going like hot cakes. The wide awake manager has laid himself out extensively on the affair, and can't fail of success. Go and see the fun. Tickets may be had at the door.

☞ Mr. Albee's Lecture on the farm, Tuesday evening, before the Mercantile Lyceum, was a very pleasant contemplative, discursive essay in favor of a quiet pastoral life, as much more natural and happy than more fashionable and excited existence. The full and appreciative audience enjoyed the lecturer's fine appearance and nice oratory,—although doubtless, something of a more practical and definite character was expected by many. Mr. Albee is a good specimen of an Ik Marvel, and it were a pity his lovely and lovable ideas might not more abound. He admires farmers elevated and refined, as they should be, and may be, when all come to see and feel like him.

ONE OF THE CRITICS.—The Bath Times, by way of showing the difficulties newspapers have to contend against, prints the following from "one that read one of your papers once."

Mr. Whitman I think with a great many others, that your paper would be a great deal more interesting, and you would not have to tease people to take your paper, if you wood leave out all the drunken Rows Dog fights, and every old Building, being shingled, and every countryman that cums into town, his provision cart seems to be inspected by you and every one that fall down! and every new arrival in town, from Mrs. McLaughlin's fancy man, to Gen. Grant it is a ridiculous so much nonsense, put into a paper for the public, a Lady friend sed to me the other day, I guess, the Editor of the Bath Times was a fool, for he always pokes his nose in every bodys business, and stuck it in the paper, (a stranger in town), try and put in a little more common sense.

S. J. COURT, EXETER.—The following is a list of petit jurymen.

Brentwood, John Smith 2nd, Wm. Kimball; Chester, Asahel Weeks, John P. Robie; Candia, Joseph F. Pease, Hiram C. Mathews; Danville, John Elkins, John F. Currier; Deerfield, Samuel Young, Thomas W. Langley; Derry, Joseph Montgomery, Thaddeus Wheeler; East Kingston, George D. Smith, John L. Philbrick; Epping, Daniel E. Silley, John H. Holt; Exeter, Henry Dow, Benj. J. Perkins; Londonderry, Isaac S. Dickey, Gilbert Hills; Newmarket, Edwin Bennett, John Perkins; Portsmouth, Ira Chaplin Dixon, William Critchley, Sen., James M. Teague, Oliver P. Kennard, Albion K. P. Deering, Alpha Senter; Salem, George M. Austin, Isaac A. J. Hastings.

THIRTY-TWO LADIES of Tipton, Indiana, all young and many beautiful, recently met and passed the following brief preamble and comprehensive resolution:

Whereas, We mean business; therefore be it Resolved, That we will not accompany any young men to church or other places of amusement who use tobacco in any manner, and that we discard all young men who play billiards, euchre or poker; and that young men who indulge in profane language need not apply; and that we will not by "hook, look or crook," notice any young man who indulges in lager beer or whiskey; and that we will not harbor young men known to keep late hours.

—The Richmond Enquirer says it is both remarkable and unfortunate that the machinery of the democratic minority in Congress never works well when the fate of the South hangs upon a thread; that the South is cheered at such momentous crises by admirable denunciatory speeches, but there is always some sad blunder when the voting begins.

—Punch's "He smole a chastly smile" and "Many a wink he wunk" have been imitated by a minstrel wit, who said, "You sneezed a snooze and said I snoze it."

—The bricks in the Philadelphia sidewalks wabble about in a manner sadly destructive to the bottoms of sixteen-dollar trousers.

THE RICHARDSON CASE—FREE LOVE. Whatever new facts may be elicited on the trial, or whatever may be the final apportionment of palliation and blame to the several parties, Mr. McFarland's act was a murder. Let it be called by no softer name. It was perpetrated in cold blood. It bears all the deliberate evidences of malice aforethought. It was the fulfilment of a long-harbored revenge. Whatever else may be remembered in the assassin's behalf, let it not be forgotten that he was a murderer. And let the just infamy which belongs to every such crime evermore attach to his dishonored name.

Taking the worst possible view of the relation between Mr. Richardson and Mrs. McFarland, putting the worst possible construction upon their intimacy, admitting it (for the sake of the argument) to have been as guilty as guilt itself, we hold that the shooting of paramours by rival lovers or injured husbands, (to say nothing of its criminality as murder,) should be peremptorily and forever ruled out of every gentleman's so-called "code of honor." A man of true mettle ought to say to himself, "If the wife whom I have married chooses deliberately, and after my utmost remonstrance, entreaty and persuasion, to retire from under my roof, let her depart in peace. I shall neither pursue her, nor shoot at her, nor threaten her, nor ask the law of the land to compel her to return."

It seems to us that a man must be lacking in some element of manliness who, because he cannot hold a woman's affections himself, will therefore deliberately shoot another man who can. Why do we say this? For the good reason that a man cannot steal another man's wife without the wife's consent; and a woman cannot steal another's husband without that husband's consent. In all such cases (with rare exceptions) both parties are either equally guilty or equally innocent. And, if one should be shot, both should be shot; if one should go free, both should go free. Mr. McFarland had no more justification for shooting Mr. Richardson than he would have had for shooting Mrs. McFarland. That is to say, he had no justification for shooting either.

The horrible case is a new illustration of the folly and wickedness of that semi-superstitious sentiment which, in the name of maintaining the sanctity of marriage, outrageously perverts the very idea of marriage, by compelling the life-long union of two persons, either of whom finds such a union to be loathsome, degrading, and unholy. There is no divine, and there ought to be no human, law to compel the continuation of any marriage which, so long as it continues, is nothing better than legalized prostitution. "Whom God hath joined together":—that, and that only, is the divine idea of marriage. Anything short of that is abomination. To chain two human beings fast to each other's side, against the perpetual protest of galled and wounded human nature, is an offense at which angels weep.

The great, indifferent public have no right to say, either, on the basis of any statute law, or on the deeper basis of any popular sentiment, or on the still deeper basis of any supposed religious tenet, that any two individuals, man and woman, shall live together as husband and wife, against the inward protest of their own individual souls. Derived from whatever source, based on whatever foundation, sanctioned by whatever tradition, such a legalized tyranny is unworthy of a Christian civilization, shamefully perverts the fundamental teachings of Christianity, and destroys the sacred claim of religion to the reverence of mankind.—N. Y. Ind.

LOVE AT HOME.—We can make ourselves say the kind things that rise in our hearts and tremble on our lips—do the gentle and hopeful deeds which we long to do and shrink back from; and, little by little, it will grow easier—the love spoken will bring back the answer of love—the kind deed will bring back the kind deed in return, till the hearts in the family circle, instead of being so many frozen, icy islands, shall be full of warm airs and echoing bird-voices, answering back and forth with a constant strain of melody of love.

THE EQUITABLE

LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES,

Office No. 92 Broadway, New York.

The Most Successful Life Insurance Company in the World.

A Surplus Premiums of Profits returned to the Policy-holders, instead of being partially or wholly appropriate to the use of the Stockholders, as is the usage with all "Mixed" and "Proprietary" Companies.

Dividends made Annually, from the start, and not postponed until the third, fourth or fifth year as in most other Companies.

Profits apportioned to the assured on the "Contribution plan," which is conceded to be the only equitable mode of division; and not by the mode adopted by many companies, which is grossly UNJUST to a large proportion of the Policy-holders.

Assets in Cash, $15,000,000.

(None of this is in the Notes-of-hand of Policy-holders, as in many other Companies.)

Its Annual Income, $8,000,000

(No portion of this is composed of Promissory-Notes, as in all Note-Companies.)

The Cash Income is constantly increasing with tremendous rapidity, and as a necessary consequence, swelling the enormous cash accumulation which forms the security to Policy-holders.

All Premiums and all Losses Paid in Cash.

No Promissory-Notes to be deducted from the face of the Policy when it matures, as in all Note-Companies.

DENTAL CARD.

DR. GOODALL respectfully announces that owing to the decline in Gold, he is now able to buy all Dental Materials at a reduction from former prices, and therefore will reduce the price of artificial teeth from $25 to $20 for upper or lower sets, mounted in blocks (with gums)—the very best of work and materials and the highest style of finish. Price of temporary sets reduced to $16 dollars.

He has for an Assistant a very superior and competent Dentist, and can mount whole sets of teeth IN ONE DAY, when POSITIVELY necessary for patients from a distance. In this as in all other branches of Dentistry, terms cash, and satisfaction guaranteed.

I still continue to use "GOODALL'S PATENT SPRING PLATE" with perfect success.

THE NEW PATENT

NEVER-FAILING, SELF-LOCKING

W I N D O W F A S T.

The only substitute for weight and pulleys, and a complete and perfect SELF-LOCKING spring, at less cost than the old, unreliable and unsafe ones heretofore introduced. No Catching, Hitching, Breaking, Slipping, or Dropping, but ALWAYS SAFE,—Self-Locking and NEVER-FAILING. No cogs, cams, wheels, bands or rollers to get out of order, or tempered steels springs to break. It never fails to hold and lock the window just where you leave it, from being raised or dropped down. It can be raised or lowered the merest trifle, for ventilation, and then and there locks itself. No other fixture pretends, does, or can, lock the window securely in every place or position. It works equally well on top or bottom sash, is simple, stronger, more effective, durable, and cheaper than any spring ever introduced. Critics are challenged to find a single fault. It is cheaply and easily applied by any mechanic to old or new windows. Every lock is made in the most thorough manner, and warranted perfect. Descriptive Circulars, with Card list of Prices, sent promptly on application.

In a little crooked house."

When Longfellow rit up theabove, he'd been takin a skirrup about Bosting. I was down to that tangled up community a short time siats, and I can't say its streets are lade out akorden to the rool of 3. "To be certinly not.' Its more like a double barreld cork screw, tied up into a bow not. You can't tell which way the twist runs.

I made 72 consekutive attempts to pass a given pint. I coodent pass it till I mixed in a little sugar and lemon peel and stirred it with a spoon, when I found no sort of difficulty passin the said pint.

I visited the cradle of liberty, so called. Between you and me, I think for a cradle, it's as much a failure as the Cardigan Giant is for petrified hooman bein.

I made a call on Mr. Bunker's Hill. A man who sed he was old Bunker's son offered to sho me round for a $1.00.

"My friend," sed I, "if I cum across anybody fool enuff to let you chizzle him out of his eye teeth, I'le send him to you. You can't come it over me," sed I, stickin my thum into my nose and wigglin my fingers, "for when I was Gustice of Peece, I sent such critters as you to the cla banks." After stealing my pocket hankercheef and a pare of new cotton gloves from my cote pocket, he left me.

Of the Bosting common I can only express my self, as did Andrew Johnson, when he was detested from the Senate a short time siats by saying: "It's a ripper."

Harved Collige is sitooted in this naborhood. Studdyin rooms for the stugents are ska't red all over the sity. Every sl h rooms has a long counter in it and a lot of fansey bottles standing up behind, the professor havin charge of it, filled with keotcals. Its amoozin to see the sopmores studdy—their lessons bein to find out "how much flooid matter the hoomon sistern is capable of surroundin." The stugents cums in a freshmore and is generally carrien hum on a cellar door a softmore. Hackin away at their Hock, Hic is sure to foller.

I met with en adventoor, while visitin Bosting. If thar's any thing for which I have a fallin, its pork and beans with pepper sass squirted all over it. I can ete it 14 times a day, and not lose appertite. It was walkin up Milk street with my bloo cotton umbreller under my off arm, when in the dim vister of the futar, a sine met my gaze wich red, "pork and beans hot or cold." I walket in, and settin down by a table, sed to a slick gal, "cold pork and beans marm, with plenty of pepper sass." I ct a hul plateful, and went out. About one half hour afterwards, another sine, "pork and beans hot or cold," stared me in the fase. I stept in and sed to the gal who bore a family resemblance to the gal at tother place, "Give us a plate of cold pork and beans, with pepper sass." I ete my fodder, pade my bill, the gal smiled, and I departed. I sailed up and down several other streets, seen another sine, "pork and beans hot or cold." I pawsed. Thinks I Bosting folkes goes heavy on pork and beans. In I goes, says: "Beans, marm, with pork and pepper sass." It okurred to me that Bosting gals lookt enuff alive to be twin sisters. Worrying down the pervishuns and wipin my mouth a bodkin, I pade my bill and started out again, to see more of the Hub. Just as I was leavin, I heard the gals say 'te-he.

I went up one street, down tother, gawpin rate and left at the sites, when I felt a kind of goneness at the stumuch. "Ah! another pork and bean establishment across the way." I thot it queer that all the places that delt in them kind of fruit should have the same kind of buildins. Walkin in and takin a cheer, I sed: "Bring the pork and beans, with pepper sass, marm." Thinks I, if them gals haint of the same family, its a singular coinsidents. I ete my vittles, and just as I was goin out them gals all laft out loud. I turned to waiter them with a sarcastick look and remarkt: "Gals, do you diskiver anything green about my harniss?" and they all skooted for the back room. I resoomed my jerney. Soon hungar was nockin agin my bred baskit, and natoor cried aloud for food. Just then another "pork and beans, hot or cold," stared me in the stumuck. I entered and askt for pork and beans with pepper sass. Was I dreamin. I stept on my corns, stuck a fork into my leg, and pinch myself to see if I was asleep. Could it be that too many beans had sot me crazy. A gal exactly like tother 4 gals stood afore me. Flesh and blood coodent stand it longer. I jumpt to my feet and convulsively clutched her arm, and in tragic tones hollored: "Art thou a spirit or gobler damd, sent here by Mrs. Green to haunt me? Back! back! I say, or by the grate jumpin Jimmey, I'le snatch thee bald-hedded."

"Woman," I screamed at the top of my voice: "How many of you is there? speak or forever after keep mum."

"Old man your a fool," said she, jerking herself away. "You've been here 5 times in two hours. Your upper story must be cracktt."

"H-o-r-r-b-l-e," I hissed.

"Five times have you hi-ed in beans enuff for a large family," sne said. "Five times have you stowed away enuff pork to make you ashamed to look a hog in the face without gruntin. You must have an ingy rubber stumuck old man, or else you are a loonatick escapt from sum boarding house."

"Desist! desist! woman," I cried, and rushit into the street.

I groped my way to a water tank and stuck my hed in clear up to my ears, when reason agin returned.

Ide been sold by the confounded crooked streets. Instead of getting into different places I had of course fetched up to the same grocery 5 times. Seein a little boy pass I gave him a quarter to fetch me to the Parker House, whar I was stopping. After paying my bill, I took my carpet bag and umbreller and pinted for the railroad depot. A few hours ride brought me to the old Green Manshun.

I told Mrs. G., of my adventoor. Her sympathy, as usual, was touched. Sed this interestin female:

"Served you rite, you consarned old lunkhead. Sich old fools as you be had orter have a dog tied to em to leed em around. I expect one of these days, onless you quit your blamed nonsense, yool be brot hum dun up in a pine trunk trying to see daylite thru 2 old fashioned penneys."

I shant go to Bosting rite away.

Respectfully owers,
HIRAM GREEN, Esq.,
Lait Gustice of the Peece.

A BIT OF HISTORY.—At this late day it seems a pity to destroy the effect truth gives to a touching story, by denying the existence of truth in the tale of Pocahontas' devotion to Captain Smith, and the attendant circumstances. But history has been raked up, proving that Pocahontas was not a pr ncess at all, her father having been merely a sachem among many sachems of Virginia tribes. She was just a savage of the ordinary Indian kind, who ran naked in the woods till she was 12, lived at 13 with an English colonist, and was married at 15 to an ambitious English settler named Rolfe, for the good of the colony, and from the secret hope of ge ting a good bargain out of her father's lands.

William Strachey, the Secretary of the colony, writing in 1610, speaks of the customs of the Indian maidens to go without clothing till they are twelve years old, and in particular says that "therefore would the before-mentioned Pocahontas' a well featured but wanton young girle, Powhatan's daughter, sometymes resorting to our fort, at the age of ten yeares, get the boyes forth with her into the markett place, and make them wheele, falling on with their hands, turning up their heeles upwards, whome she would follow and wheele so herself naked as she was all the fort over."

It is probable, from a casual notice by the same Strachey, that she lived for a short time as a wife to a "private Capt. named Kocoum," it being for the moment a part of Virginian policy to encourage such unions. Subsequent to this she was seized as a hostage for release of some prisoners and the delivery of a certain amount of corn, and while in custody was married by Rolfe, who had another wife already, and was taken to England, where she died shortly afterwards in 1616. The story of her having saved the life of John Smith is pronounced a pure fabrication.

THE LORRAINE VEGETABLE CATHARTIC PILL.

DR. LORRAINE'S VEGETABLE PILL, OR LA MEDICINE CURATIVE.

Mild, Certain, Safe, Efficient. It is far the best Cathartic remedy yet discovered, and at once relieves and invigorates all the vital functions, without causing injury to any of them. The most complete success has long attended its use in many localities; and it is now offered to the general public with the conviction that it can never fail to accomplish the end for which it is designed. It produces little or no pain; leaves the organs free from irritation, and never overtaxes or excites the nervous system. In all diseases of the skin, blood, stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys,—of children, and in many difficulties peculiar to women, it brings prompt relief and certain cure. The best physicians generally prescribe it, and no person who once uses this, will voluntarily return to the use of any other cathartic.

THE FARMERS' CONVENTION AT MANCHESTER.—Discussion on Milk.— X. A. Willard of Little Falls, N. Y., gave a studied and lengthy address on the subject of milk and its products.

Mr. Gould differed from the lecturer on one point. He understood him to say that it was better to put milk into pans about ten inches deep in order to have the cream rise. He (Mr. G.) believed that milk should not be put in dishes over three inches deep. All the experiments that he had made went to show that the amount of cream thrown up was very nearly in proportion to the shallowness of the film of milk beneath it.

Mr. G. proceeded to speak of the singular adaptation of some localities, often very circumscribed in their area, to the raising of butter, mentioning Delaware County, N. Y., as a remarkable instance. One great desideratum for a dairy farm was an abundant supply of soft water. It was impossible to make good butter on a farm where the water was hard. From his experience, he had come to the conclusion that the latter part of the milking should be reserved for the purpose of butter making.

Mr. Gould also spoke of the importance of selecting quiet animals for the dairy, and of avoiding with the utmost care, anything that tended to worry them or to make them nervous. Great care should be taken not to agitate the milk after it is drawn from the cow, but to carry it steadily in the pail, and turn it slowly in the pan, lifting it only just as high as was necessary. Another thing to be observed was, that the cows should always be milked at a regular time, and the milk should be drawn continuously from the time of touching the teat until the last strippings were taken away. The least intermission would be likely not only to lessen the flow of milk at the time, but for several days after.
